MISS SKARIN NOT GUILTY

Slayer of Seattle Man Freed

Woman Acquitted by Jury of Which Four Were Members of Her Sex

Defense of Honor Plea Wins; Character of Dead Man Under Scrutiny

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Jan. 13.—Clara Elizabeth Skarin was acquitted of the murder of Ferdinand Hochburn by a Superior Court jury here late this afternoon.

Miss Skarin, while waiting for the verdict of the jury after she had been summoned to the courtroom to hear it, sat on the edge of her chair, the muscles of her neck drawn. At the words, "not guilty," read by the clerk of the court, she recovered her poise, jumped to her feet as her face broke into a smile, and seized her attorneys by the hands. She then shook hands with the jurors and with a crowd of friends and strangers that flowed about her.

The jury was out this afternoon from 2 to 3:45 o'clock. Three ballots were taken. The first was nine to three for acquittal, the second was eleven to one, and the third unanimous. The four women on the jury were for acquittal throughout.

"I surely wish the young woman all happiness in the future," said Mrs. Grace B. Quigley, a member of the jury whose tears had flowed freely during arguments of counsel for the defense yesterday and today. "She surely has seen enough of the seamy side of life. Now she may find peace and better things."

"There were others in the case," declared C. L. Doolittle, another juror, "who were far more blameworthy than Clara Skarin. I could never have felt myself justified in finding her guilty."

HISTORY OF CASE

Miss Skarin shot and killed Hochbrunn during a scuffle at Hochbrunn's home here on the afternoon of Oct. 13, 1921, according to her own story told on the witness stand during her trial. She

Father and Two Children Are Among Those to Meet Death

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

KEY WEST (Fla.) Jan. 13.—Four persons are known to be dead following the collapse and fall of the Aero-Marine Airways flying passenger-ship Columbus late this afternoon as she was making the regular daily flight between Key West and Havana. Five others, some them injured, were rescued from the open sea as they were clinging to the wreckage of the ill-fated craft as it hung between floating and sinking, more than twenty miles northwest of Havana.

Those who lost their lives were Edwin F. Atkins, Jr., 30 years of age, New York capitalist; Miss Grace McDonald, New York, nurse, and Mr. Atkins's two children, Edwin F., III, 5, and David, 3.

Mrs. Atkins, Pilot W. E. Miller, Miss Julia Haverty of New York, Otto Abrams of New York, and the mechanician, Harold Thompson, were rescued.

The Henry M. Flagler arrived here at 9 o'clock tonight with the five survivors.

Capt. John Albury of the ferryboat Flagler saw the seaplane fall when he was about three-fourths of a mile distant and immediately turned his ship toward it.

HEAVY SEAS INTERFERE

The seas were running very high and several attempts had to be made before a lifeboat could be landed. Mr. Atkins and Miss McDonald were swept off the wreckage to which they were clinging before the lifeboat could reach them. The two children, who were asleep in the cabin, are believed to have been killed instantly when the wreckage was carried on top of a huge wave and catapulted into the middle of the next wave, nose first.

"We were flying about 200 feet in the air at the rate of sixty-five miles an hour when I noticed that the engine on the right side of the plane was missing," Pilot Miller said. "I immediately attempted to adjust it, but couldn't and, reducing the speed, forced a landing.

"The seas were running very high, waves fifteen or twenty feet in height leaping up. We hit on the top of one wave and then went into the middle of the next one, nose first. The passengers opened the cockpit and all came out except the two Atkins children who were asleep at the time and evidently were stunned and instantly killed by the impact with the wave."

RESCUE WOMEN FIRST

The pilot said that Mr. Atkins was clinging to a part of the wreckage when a huge wave washed him

KU KLUX KLAN COMMITTED DEATH CRIME, WITNESS SAYS

Skipwith Led Gang Which Broke Into Planter's Home at Night, Constituting Capital Offense Under Louisiana Law

BY ORVILLE DWYER
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyrighted 1923 by Chicago Tribune]

BASTROP (La.) Jan. 13.—Capt. J. K. Skipwith, aged exalted cyclops of the Ku Klux Klan of Morehouse parish stood at the close of today's testimony in the open inquiry into the murders of Watt Daniel and Thomas F. Richards, chargeable with a capital crime punishable with death.

The death penalty in Louisiana is hanging.

The State, however, has not arrested "Old Skip," sinister ruler of the Klan here, and it is stated that he will not be arrested immediately. But he is under constant surveillance and will not be permitted to leave.

Curiously enough, the crime of which the State has absolute evidence from the witness stand has nothing to do with the torturing to death of Daniel and Richards on the night of August 24. It consists of leading a band of night-riding Ku Klux Klansmen to the home of Alonzo Braddock, farmer outside of Mer Rouge, of breaking down his door in the middle of the night, of kidnaping Braddock for alleged moonshining, also of turning him over to Sheriff Carpenter at Bastrop.

PENALTY IS DEATH

Immediately after testimony closed this afternoon, members of the Attorney General's staff stated that the breaking into a man's home in the night and while armed, to commit any crime, is a capital offense in this State, punishable with the extreme penalty.

Five other men of Bastrop, Ben Pratt, Sam Cox, Marvin Pickett and his son "Cud," it was testified by Braddock, who identified them positively were with Capt. Skipwith. The raid was made on the night of October 13, more than a month after the killing of Daniel and Richards.

Another important development of the day was the disclosure, accidentally, that the State is in possession of the identities of "several men from Arkansas" alleged to have been in the black-hooded mob which kidnaped and murdered Daniel and Richards.

Suggestion that several men from Arkansas participated as Ku Klux Klansmen in torturing to death Daniel and Richards and that these men are known to the prosecution, came out by accident in the hearing. It was the first time that Atty.-Gen. Coco and his aides have allowed any anticipation to creep into the record that they are in possession of the identities of any of the black-hooded men in the murder mob.

ATTORNEY BLUNDERS

W. B. Stuckey of Mer Rouge, former State Senator, was on the stand. Asst. Atty.-Gen. Guion had interrogated him and turned him over to Garrett for questioning.

Senator Stuckey had answered all questions briefly, stating that he had always been openly against the Klan of Morehouse Parish and that he has said so repeatedly.

"Mr. Stuckey," Garrett asked, "did you ever make the statement that you knew several of the men who were in the hooded mob which killed both Daniel and Thomas Richards?"

"And did you state that you had

FLOGGED WOMAN WANTS FEDERAL PROTECTION

Victim of Texas Mob Tells Story of Outrage; Ku Klux Klan Threatens Catholics

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

HOUSTON (Tex.) Jan. 13.—Mrs. R. H. Harrison, victim of floggers at Goose Creek, left her home today and started for Houston to ask protection from Judge J. C. Hutcheson.

Just before leaving she told a friend:

"I am convinced that the local authorities here and at Houston will do nothing for me in this case. Thus far they have confined their questions to me as to whether R. A. Armand (also a flogger's victim) and I were anything except good friends. I am going to Houston to appeal to the Federal authorities. I am afraid to remain in Goose Creek."

Goose Creek today was in a state of marked excitement as a result of the sensational events that have taken place there.

DEMANDED DEATH

"Two members of the party kept insisting that Mr. Armand and I be killed right there," Mrs. Harrison said, "'Kill them both!' they cried and 'throw their bodies into the bayou.'

"The men seemed divided as to what to do to us finally. Several seemed utterly to lose their heads

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—President Harding and leaders of the House of Representatives in conference at the White House today definitely decided on postponement of revision of debt-funding legislation.

The President advised House leaders that authorization for broader powers to the American Debt Commission be undertaken constructively when negotiations now pending between this government and the visiting British financial mission are completed.

EUROPE SEETHING AS NEW WAR THREATENS

Ruhr Invasion, Memel Seizure and Grosswardein Combats Froth With Danger

BY HENRY WALES
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Two new wars menace Europe. The seizure of Memel by Lithuanians threatens to drag in the Poles as well as the East Prussians. Combats between Grosswardein frontier posts endangers hostilities between Hungarians and Rumanians. Budapest already is reported to have ordered a mobilization of certain categories.

The Jugo-Slav Cabinet is conferring with King Alexander regarding summoning an extraordinary conference of the Little Entente to decide on measures to aid Rumania if the Budapest government is unable to control irregulars in the Grosswardein region.

With the Ruhr occupation arousing Germany to the most extreme pitch and resulting in the splitting of the British from the entente, and the Lausanne conference in a deadlock over Lord Curzon's refusal to abandon English oil rights in the Mosul fields, while Kemal redistributes his army corps to prepare to strike Turkey into Europe as well as Mesopotamia, a scratch across the political tinder box might set Europe aflame again.

YANKS READY TO LEAVE

Amidst the war rumblings Gen. Allen is rushing preparations for evacuation of the American Army of Occupation and first sections of the returning American troops are expected to pass down the Rhine to Antwerp early next week.

In the absence of the Supreme Council, which dissolved since France and Great Britain split on reparations, neither the Ambassadors' Council nor the League of Nations is able to cope with the situation and take measures to preserve peace.

The Ambassadors met today and decided to appoint a French colonel to command the 200 poilus in Memel, constituting the sole force of the zone—and to protest to the Lithuanian government against the occupation of Memel port and urge the technical committee, which has been preparing a report for almost four years for a definitive attribution of the Memel territory, to hasten the completion of its findings.

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

The League of Nations has secret information that the British are urging returning the Memel zone to Germany, which is reported to have been inspired by the Lithuanian surprise attack, which was modeled exactly like Gabriel D'Annunzio's coup in Fiume and Gen. Zeligowski's grab in Vilna.

Ambassador Myron T. Herrick took no part in the discussion on Memel this morning, although the erection of the zone was purely an American idea, suggested by Woodrow Wilson at the Paris conference.

The Grosswardien situation is more than serious, especially in view of Fascisti activities in Hungary and is avowedly aimed to reobtain for the Magyars all territories lost under treaties. Lieut. Hajas, a popular hero, who fought to retain Burgenland from Austria last year, is reported to be heading the irregular frontier troops in the Grosswardien fighting.

FRENCH FIRED ON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LIBAU (Latvia) Jan. 13.—A report from Memel states that Lithuanian troops opened fire on French troops Saturday noon. Eighty were killed and wounded, principally Lithuanians.

This is the first time in decades that Germans have fought alongside the French, as the German residents of Memel wholeheartedly are supporting the French garrison of 200, which represents the League of Nations. Both sides are well equipped with machine guns.

Memel now resembles a besieged medieval city. The canal surrounding the town prevents the Lithuanians from entering, as the three jack-knife bridges connecting the city and the mainland have been raised. Lithuania insurgents have cut all telegraph lines, and at present Memel is isolated.

A train from Kovno, which met a Latvian train at the Lithuanian border last night, was filled with soldiers.

RHINE GIRLS PLEA TO YANKS

Coblenz Headquarters Stormed as Sweethearts Beg to Be Taken to America

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

COBLENZ, Jan. 13.—American military headquarters here has been overrun in the last three days by women bent on airing their love affairs with American soldiers who have departed or are about to depart from Germany and are turning the place into a sort of domestic relations court. Some of these women want American soldiers already in the United States to be returned here so they can marry them; others want to go to America to get married. Still others say they are willing to marry soldiers here, but first want assurance that they will be taken aboard the St. Mihiel.

Almost every man unfortunate enough to be in the guardhouse is fortunate enough to have some German girl asking that he be released so that he might marry her. All sorts of complications have arisen from these soldier marriages or promises to marry and other domestic relations formed on the Rhine.

Headquarters is about to issue a bulletin on the subject laying down the law. The bulletin will explain to the soldiers first, that the laws of the United States do not permit a woman to acquire American citizenship by marriage, and will call attention to the law limiting the quota of immigrants; second, that the quota of immigrants from Germany is understood to be filled; that a soldier's wife must have a passport, and fourth, the responsibility for getting his wife to the United States must be assumed by the soldier-husband.

Chaplains have been trying to straighten out these affairs; they run across many romances and some attempts by the older and mercenary women to take advantage of inexperienced young soldiers to force a marriage.

Love and marriage often have given headquarters something to worry about, for the American doughboy always has seemed a good catch to German girls, particularly since the depreciation of the mark has made the Americans millionaires.

The soldier marriages caused Maj.-Gen. Allen last April to issue a caution to troops. It is estimated that 1000 soldiers entered into the marriage state in the occupied area during the year ending last June and some outside that area without the knowledge of officers. Many of those families proceeded to the United States when the American forces were reduced.

LIMITED ON SHIP

The St. Mihiel, it is expected, will take with the troops only the wives and families of officers and enlisted men above grade IV. This would include wives of only about forty enlisted men and twelve children, but it is understood that as soon as the space available on the ship has been allotted whatever room is left will be devoted for the carrying of brides. The wives of the officers number seventy and the children eighty-five, but many of these will return on commercial liners.

Washington Stirred by French Plan for Reparations Conference

BELIEVE HUGHES PROPOSAL ALIVE

Economics Only Should be Discussed, Belief

Rhur Invasion is Key to Allied Solidarity

Capital Sees Essen Accord Lessen Tension

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Unofficial intimations from Paris that the Poincare ministry is considering a call for a new reparations conference created wide interest in government circles here, although it was said definitely that no hint of such a development was given in State Department advices.

Paris dispatches referring to the possible conference followed an authoritative disclosure here that administration officials viewed the Hughes communication suggestion as still alive and before the French and other Allied governments. Whether unofficial talk in Paris points to a possible resort to the principle advanced by Mr. Hughes is not known. It is generally assumed, in view of the tone of today's report from the Ruhr concerning difficulties of the task before the French technical forces, that economics rather than politics must be the basis of any new conference approach to the crisis. That would be wholly in line with the Hughes' suggestion.

WATCH RUHR REPORTS

The nature and scope of any future stage to restore Allied solidarity as to the course to be followed with respect to Germany depends entirely on the turn of events in the Ruhr region, as emphasized in reports reaching Washington from American agents abroad.

There can be no question that fears of the gravest nature have been entertained here and in London that violent disorders might accompany the French occupation. As time passes without such complications, coupled with action of the Reparations Commission in extending the moratorium to the end of the month and the Franco-German agreement reported from Essen for resumption of coal deliveries, presumably international tension is lessening in a way to foster hope for a new understanding among powers.

Should France determine to call an Allied conference and, as suggested from Paris, invite American participation, interest will center in the American attitude. However, it can only be reiterated that the administration has steadily refused to become involved in any discussion of a political nature relative to European conditions, but has strongly supported the idea of exchanges of views by international experts in economic matters.

Decision of the Washington government as to participation in the Brussels economic conference, projected before the break-up of the premiers' council in Paris, was never made, because no invitation was ever extended.

However, there was a strong inclination here to join in the conference provided it was held strictly to economic matters. Of another conference proposal emerges from the present crisis, presumably the American attitude would be determined by the scope and purpose of the meeting.

KLAN OPPONENTS FREED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Jan. 13. After fifty hours' deliberation the jury in the trial of Frank Robinson, former Sheriff of Nueces county, and three other defendants charged with the murder of Fred Roberts, large ranch owner, last October, acquitted the defendants late this afternoon, according to a telephone message received in San Antonio tonight from Laredo where the trial was conducted.

The defendants besides Robinson were Lee Hetzel, Joe Aceba, and Cleve Goff, all of Nueces county, where the killing occurred.

Roberts was killed as he sat in an automobile after an argument with Robinson. The Ku Klux Klan issue was injected into the trial. All of the defendants were said to be opposed to the Klan and the political party in power in Nueces county.

Jan. 13.—A letter, purported to be from the Ku Klux Klan of Marinette, was received by Ed Leroy, editor of the Marinette Eagle-Star, and former Assemblyman, today, in which he was threatened with a "coat of tar and feathers" if he persisted in writing editorials in opposition to the Klan.

CATHOLICS WARNED

LAWRENCE (Mass.) Jan. 13.—St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church is under police guard and its pastor, the Rev. James T. O'Reilly, also is being guarded as a result of threatening letters said to have been received by members of the parish. The letters were signed "K. K. K."

WOONSOCKET (R. I.) Jan. 13. The police and postoffice authorities were asked today to investigate the sending through the mails of four letters, all signed with the initials "K. K. K." in red ink. One addressed to Rev. Edward O'Donnell, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church, contained a threat to burn the church. Another threatened the lives of State Senator Patrick J. Cox and his daughter, and the other two asserted that the homes and stores of a druggist and market man here would be burned. The police began an investigation at the request of Senator Cox.

the concentration of troops on the frontier, but it demands that the Allies force Rumanians to respect its boundaries and send an investigation commission to the spot. The Bucharest government rejects the proposals, asserting that the Rumanians are not to blame for the affair, and is threatening to take strong measures if Hungary is not able to quell the trouble immediately.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—By an overwhelming vote of 123 to 12, the Reichstag today registered its approval of the government's attitude toward the Franco-Belgian invasion of the Ruhr, thus, according the nonpartisan Cabinet, headed by Chancellor Cuno, parliamentary support of sufficient caliber to assure it freedom of action so far as the consent of the political parties is concerned.

However, the situation growing out of the presence of armed French forces in parts of Germany previously unoccupied is considered a very serious one and nothing is suggested as to what line of further action is at the government's disposal.

The feeling in political circles in this connection was reflected in an expression by a well-known Democratic leader, who said tonight:

"Germany has arrived at the entrance to a dark, a very dark tunnel."

He referred not only to possible reaction from Paris to the German official attitude, the German government considering the Treaty of Versailles abrogated, but also was of the opinion that the internal situation was fraught with grave danger.

Since the coal syndicate eliminated itself from further control of the Ruhr mines output, independent owners and operators have tacitly agreed to supply France and Belgium against cash payments, as they are no longer about to hold Germany financially accountable for their deliveries. Official quarters are not intervening in this situation, inasmuch as it was not certain in Berlin tonight that the French authorities in the newly occupied area would enter into such an agreement.

The government is giving serious consideration to the adoption of emergency economic measures calculated to meet the sudden turn in the situation throughout Germany, without anticipating diplomatic and foreign economic ratifications, which may become urgent issues at an early date.

Today's session of the Reichstag took on an aspect of pronounced gloom as the Chancellor's statement failed to strike the inspiring note which the Deputies and crowded galleries expected. Chancellor Cuno liberally amplified his previous presentation of the legal aspects of the Ruhr invasion and its relation to the treaty. The party leaders who followed him also failed to lift the debate out of the atmosphere of perfunctory protest.

Chancellor Cuno graphically described the military character of the Franco-Belgian advance into the Ruhr, pointing out that it was carried out against a peaceful nation which neither could nor would offer any resistance. The Chancellor alluded to great sacrifices Germany had made to meet her obligations under the Treaty of Versailles.

"But despite all Germany's exertions," he said, "new burdens were constantly being laid upon our shoulders until our economic structure was destroyed as all can see today."

APPEALS TO WORLD

"I ask the world," said the Chancellor, "if more could possibly have been done by any nation unnerved and weakened by losses through the war and through hunger and deprivation of every kind?"

Chancellor Cuno detailed the various German attempts to provide an acceptable solution of the reparations question, all of which were rejected, as was the peace pact intended to remove the political obstacles from the path of a purely economic settlement.

The Reichstag chamber was crowded. The British Ambassador was present but the French Ambassador was absent, as were French newspaper correspondents.

The Chancellor's utterances were applauded by all sections of the Reichstag with the exception of the Communists.

The session was opened with an appeal by Paul Loebe, president of the Reichstag, to the French nation.

"Decide for yourself," he said, "whether the way you have taken can lead to the desired result . . . then under the injustice which you have done us."

Fire Threatens Millions' Worth of Wet Goods

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—A million dollars' worth of liquor stored at Internal Revenue Bonded Warehouse No. 2 was threatened tonight when a fire swept through the seven stories of the Miller Thompson Paper Company's bag plant adjoining the warehouse, near the Manhattan end of the New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel. Five alarms were sounded.

Believing the paper plant doomed, fire fighters concentrated their apparatus on the liquor warehouse.

One of the firemen is reported to have been injured seriously, and calls for additional ambulances have been sent.

Seven other firemen were injured, one seriously, by a back-draft explosion, bringing the number of casualties to eight.

seen those men at the Ashland County fair in Arkansas?"

Instantly there was a strange and confused activity among the lawyers of the prosecution. Guion leaped up and walked quickly to Garrett's side at the other end of the long counsel table. District Attorney Garrett appeared confused, stood up and sat down again and then: "I withdraw the question," he said quickly.

In addition to Senator Stuckey the only witness of the early session of court was A. L. Smith, a planter, the owner of large properties in Ouachita parish on the Ouachita River, and admitted member of the Klan.

Mr. Smith is a typical southerner of the old south. He is 66 years old and recognized as a leading citizen of Northern Louisiana.

His testimony had to do chiefly with a number of conferences in which he took part with leading men of Mer Rouge and Bastrop, and in which continued attempts were made to bring about peace in Morehouse parish. He said that his interest in affairs in this parish centered chiefly around his friendship for the Davenport brothers, J. A., Leon, and Hugo, of Mer Rouge, who had become involved in the controversy with the Klan.

Senator Stuckey left the stand almost immediately after Garrett's mistake. His testimony centered around the asserted attempted assassination of Dr. B. M. McKoin in Mer Rouge sometime before the kidnapping and murder of Daniel and Richards on the night of August 24, and he described vividly conditions in the parish before and after the murders, until the government agents and this hearing came.

He told of standing in Bastrop after one of the numerous "peace" conferences.

"I, with John Freeland," he testified, "attended the meeting which had been held. Capt. Skipwith came along and Smith Davidson called to him.

"Well, captain," he inquired, "have you settled the Mer Rouge trouble?"

Capt. Skipwith said he had.

"On what basis?" Davidson asked.

Capt. Skipwith replied: "I told 'em that every man in Morehouse who didn't keep his mouth shut would be whipped until he couldn't sit down for some time."

"Was that after the kidnaping of Daniel and Richards?" Stuckey was asked.

"Yes," replied Stuckey.

"Not after the attempt to assassinate Dr. McKoin?"

"I have never been willing to admit that there was any attempt to assassinate McKoin," the old Senator answered quickly.

"My opinion and the opinion of most people in Mer Rouge is that he fired shots through his own car."

"Now why would he do that?"

Stuckey replied: "To get the sympathy of the Klan, so he could get the Klan to help punish some one."

"Do you mean to state that McKoin deliberately fired those shots through his own car?"

"Yes, that is the universal belief in this community."

A conference sought by Capt. Skipwith, Exalted Cyclops of the Klan in Morehouse parish, with Atty.-Gen. Coco, and which had been granted him by the Attorney-General and was supposed to be held today, did not materialize. It was stated that Skipwith's attorneys had advised against it at the time and it was therefore postponed.

BANDIT SLAIN; OFFICER SHOT

Typed on it was the name Matty Frey, and written in pencil were the names of Cecil Costello, 520 Morgantown street, Point Marion, Pa., Jane McAmon and Eugene Payne.

The letter was written on stationery of the S. S. Harvard, and was signed "Marjie." It is believed the bandit must have found the letter.

Stephens, who was charged with robbery, declared that he did not know his confederate's name. He said he had met the man slain by Patrolman Anderson in Pershing Square several days ago, when his acquaintance boasted of robberies he had committed and declared he was looking for a partner with plenty of nerve. This was the first hold-up they had attempted, Stephens declared.

His companion bragged of hold-ups he had committed in Los Angeles. Stephens said, naming the Busy Bee confectionery as one of the "jobs" he had "pulled."

Lieutenant of Detectives Smith assigned Detectives Knapp, Craig, Finlinson and Burgess to investigate.

N. H. Petersen, private detective employed by the Burns Agency, was held up on Pico street last night by a bandit who shot him twice and robbed him of $45.

The bandit ordered Petersen to get out of his automobile and walk away from it. The detective, who had a revolver in the side pocket of the car, did not move fast enough to suit the bandit after he had alighted, and the bandit sent a bullet into the calf of each of Petersen's legs.

Taking $45 from the detective, the bandit fled.

Petersen crawled to his automobile and managed to drive to the Receiving Hospital, where his wounds were treated. Detective Sergeant L. G. White was assigned to the case, receiving a description of the bandit from Petersen which may result in an arrest.

His Hearing Restored

The invisible ear drum invented by A. O. Leonard, which is a miniature megaphone, fitting inside the ear entirely out of sight, is restoring the hearing of hundreds of people in New York City. Mr. Leonard invented this drum to relieve himself of deafness and head noises, and it does this so successfully that no one could tell he is a deaf man. It is effective when deafness is caused by catarrh or by perforated or wholly destroyed natural drums. A request for information to A. O. Leonard, Suite 111, 70 Fifth avenue, New York City, will be given prompt reply.—[Advertisement.

QUIET IS KING AT SACRAMENTO

Legislative Halls Silent as Lawmakers Rest

Some Industrious Patriots Work on Bills

Governor Gets Indorsement of "Gas" Tax

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan 13.—Silence and somnolence reigned in the legislative halls of California today, the Senate and Assembly of the forty-fifth session having adjourned yesterday until Monday at 11 o'clock.

Most of the members went either to San Francisco, or to their homes. A few sat at their desks and worked over their mounting correspondence, and attaches were on hand as usual; but the only real activity apparent was in the office of Speaker Merriam, who continued work on his committee lists and announced that he hoped to complete them some time Monday, but perhaps could not present them before Tuesday morning.

BILLS SHOWING UP

Bills for early introduction began to appear. Some scores of them were referred to the legislative counsel for his approval as to form.

With the resumption of the sessions Monday, the real work of the Legislature will begin. The Senate has begun to receive bills, and the Assembly will take similar action very soon.

Talk of a joint resolution for adjournment of the first half of the session on the 28th inst., is heard. Under the Constitution, the Legislature continues in session for not more than thirty days. Then there must be a thirty-day recess, and then it reconvenes to complete its work.

"GAS" TAX INDORSED

Gov. Richardson today received from the Motor Car Dealers' Association of Los Angeles a resolution indorsing a gasoline tax, providing that the proceeds of such a tax are used exclusively for highway maintenance. The resolutions set out that the association would like to see the proceeds divided, one-third to the State, and two-thirds to the counties, on a basis between the counties of the amount of gasoline sales in each county. The resolutions also urge that the counties should agree to take over the upkeep of "an equitable part" of the major street systems within county limits.

DELAY REVISION OF DEBT FUND

Republican, Iowa, and Representative Coe, Republican, Wyoming.

After the conference the White House spokesman stated that it was concluded to defer consideration of revision of the funding law for at least two weeks, but that action probably would be taken at this session of Congress.

A full surpport of the President's debt funding program was pledged at the conference in behalf of the public, it was stated, and it is hoped by the administration that extended debate in the Senate will not carry the subject on until the adjournment of Congress, March 4. This possibility, however, has been foreseen by the administration and President Harding has let it be known that he will not call an extra session of Congress to consider the foreign debt question.

There were discussions of the issue in the Senate today when Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alhambra, made another protest because Democrats were not included on the Debt Commission. He pressed Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, to know whether he favored allowing Democrats to have membership thereon.

"I ask him now—he evaded the question the other day—if he thinks it is right and just that Democrats should not have representation on that commission," said Senator Heflin.

"I will say to the Senator," said Senator Smoot, "that I have no objection whatever to having Democrats represented on the commission and I think there will be no question about it so far as I am concerned when the law is proposed to be changed."

Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, wanted to know whether Senator Smoot would favor modification of the present law before imparting to the Senate and Congress exactly what proposal had been made by the British government.

"Why, no," replied Senator Smoot. "At the very time that a change in the law is proposed the information certainly will be given to Congress."

Senator McKellar held it would be better to have the facts as to the negotiations now by the country and Congress rather than have these negotiations proceed in secret.

Body of Mexican Labor Leader to be Honored

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13.—Numerous committees representing labor bodies were at the station tonight awaiting the arrival of the body of Ricardo Flores Magon, Mexican labor leader who died last November, while in Leavenworth prison, where he was serving a sentence for conspiracy against the American government. The body will lie in state at the headquarters of the Regional Confederation of Labor for a week, burial probably taking place the 21st inst.

The unions are considering calling a twenty-four-hour general strike throughout the republic on Monday, the 22nd inst., to show the sympathy of the workers.

SANITORIUM RECONSIDERED

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 13.—Heeding the pressure of farmers against further tax burdens, the Rock County Board at Janesville yesterday nullified its action of November to build a county tuberculosis sanitorium this year.

MISS SKARIN NOT GUILTY

shot him in defense of her honor and her life, she testified.

The State maintained the wealthy real estate dealer was killed for gold he was known to have in his possession.

It was more than two months after the slaying—on December 21—when a plumber who entered the house to repair a broken pipe, found the body in the alcove of one of the rooms. Miss Skarin had left Seattle late in November, ostensibly for Portland, Or., where she told friends she was to meet Hochbrunn. Through letters purporting to have been written by Hochbrunn, but later admitted to have been written and mailed by Miss Skarin, she was traced to Portland and then to California cities.

In September, 1922, Miss Skarin was apprehended in Oakland, Cal., through a chance meeting with a former Seattle acquaintance and a few days after her arrest admitted the killing. She willingly came to Seattle, where a charge of first degree murder was placed against her. The trial began last Tuesday.

MOTIVE IS HINGE

The actual facts of the slaying, Miss Skarin's flight to Portland and California, made possible by gold taken from a trunk in Hochbrunn's home, and the forgery of Hochbrunn's name to letters written from Portland and California were admitted by both defense and prosecution. The entire case hinged on the motive for the killing.

To substantiate the plea of self-defense, Miss Skarin's attorneys called witnesses who testified that Hochbrunn was known as "that beast" who had attacked women and children. Alexander R. Robinson, medical diagnostician and pathologist, replying to a hypothetical question, asserted that Hochbrunn's history stamped him a degenerate. Miss Skarin told the jury Hochbrunn had assaulted her criminally when she was 14 years old and that on a number of occasions she had been compelled to repel his attentions with force. Since 1906 she had been his ward, and for eight years lived with her mother, Hochbrunn's housekeeper, at his home.

HER STORY

She said the scuffle in which Hochbrunn was wounded fatally occurred when she went to his house to demand return of money which she said her mother had given him. He made improper advances, she declared, and attacked her, the shoooting following a few moments later.

Explaining her motive for concealing the death and leaving Seattle rather than reporting it, the girl said she had sought advice from Edward Von Tobel, pioneer Seattle lawyer, and Hochbrunn's lifelong friend, and that Von Tobel had told her to leave town. He went with her to the Hochbrunn home, she testified, slit open the dead man's pocket, abstracted keys and opened a trunk from which he took gold. Part of the gold he gave her, she said, keeping the larger part himself, together with a number of papers. Von Tobel, she said, "framed" the letters bearing Hochbrunn's purported signature, which she afterward mailed from Portland and California points.

FALSE, HE SAYS

Von Tobel, a witness for the State, branded her story as "false in every detail." His first knowledge of his client's death came with the finding of the body, he declared. He admitted under cross-examination that seven months after the slaying he had withdrawn a large sum of gold from a safe-deposit vault and placed it in a local bank, but he asserted that this gold had been accumulated during a period of several years on connection with the settlement of an Austrian estate. The State's attorneys, in their final arguments, asked the jury to vindicate Von Tobel "completely."

The trial attracted widespread attention, and hundreds of persons stormed Judge Mitchell Gilliam's courtroom in an effort to catch a glimpse of the defendant or hear something of the testimony. During the early hours of the trial Miss Skarin, pale, but composed, sat quietly beside her attorneys listening intently to the testimony. As the tension increased, however, she showed effects of the strain and as a witness she frequently burst into tears.

According to the Neu Frei Presse here the Rumanian Ambassador to Budapest has delivered a note of protest to the Hungarian government, which had asked an inter-Allied military commission to inspect the frontiers.

The Hungarian War Minister, M. Beliska, has branded the rumors that Hungary has mobilized troops as false.

Dispatches from Belgrade state that the Rumanian Minister, M. Diamanti, has proposed to the Jugo-Slav Foreign Minister, M. Nintchitch, to convoke at Bucharest an extraordinary immediate conference of the little entente to decide on measures against Hungary, alleging that Hungary has a menacing concentration of troops probably on the frontier near Grosswardein. M. Pachitch and M. Nintchitch have conferred with King Alexander regarding the Rumanians' proposal. A most important decision is expected imminently.

Reports state that frontier combats were caused by Hungarian terrorist irregulars, commanded by Lieut. Pajas, who formerly seized Burgenland, Foreign Minister Bujuvary informed the Budapest Parliament today that Hungarian regulars took no part in the fighting, only the frontier guards participating.

Dispatches from Bucharest assert that the Hungarians have surrounded Grosswardein. The government is sending a note to Paris and London.

PLANE FALLS IN SEA, FOUR DEAD

off, carrying away Miss MacDonald.

True to the traditions of the sea, women were rescued first. True also to traditions, the pilot was the last to leave the plane.

After Mr. Atkins and Miss McDonald had been swept away, Miller succeeded in holding the others on the wreckage until the rescue was effected. A wave turned a part of the plane completely over, the pilot said, but by a strange bit of luck the survivors were dropped back on the wreckage.

The lifeboat was launched about 150 yards from the plane and on reaching the wreckage several attempts had to be made before survivors could be transferred, the waves washing the lifeboat back time and again. The pilot praised the heroism of Capt. Albury and the crew for their heroic efforts in the face of great difficulties.

TIME WITH LIFEBOAT

Mrs. Atkins was the first to be placed aboard the lifeboat and was followed by the other woman survivor, Miss Haverty. Mr. Abrams went next and then the mechanician. After the rescue the lifeboat had to wage what seemed for a time a losing battle in order to get back to the Flagler.

None of the survivors is believed to be in a serious condition, although they are suffering from bruises and the shock. They were placed in a hospital here.

Mrs. Atkins, it was said, apparently is dazed and as yet does not realize what has happened.

An effort will be made to recover the bodies of the victims, but the part of the sea where the disaster occurred is infested with sharks and little hope was held out tonight that a recovery would be possible.

Mr. Atkins, who was spending the winter in Cuba, came to Key

Washington Stirred by French Plan for Reparations Conference

BELIEVE HUGHES PROPOSAL ALIVE

Economics Only Should be Discussed, Belief

Rhur Invasion is Key to Allied Solidarity

Capital Sees Essen Accord Lessen Tension

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Unofficial intimations from Paris that the Poincare ministry is considering a call for a new reparations conference created wide interest in government circles here, although it was said definitely that no hint of such a development was given in State Department advices.

Paris dispatches referring to the possible conference followed an authoritative disclosure here that administration officials viewed the Hughes communication suggestion as still alive and before the French and other Allied governments. Whether unofficial talk in Paris points to a possible resort to the principle advanced by Mr. Hughes is not known. It is generally assumed, in view of the tone of today's report from the Ruhr concerning difficulties of the task before the French technical forces, that economics rather than politics must be the basis of any new conference approach to the crisis. That would be wholly in line with the Hughes' suggestion.

WATCH RUHR REPORTS

The nature and scope of any future steps to restore Allied solidarity as to the course to be followed with respect to Germany depends entirely on the turn of events in the Ruhr region, as emphasized in reports reaching Washington from American agents abroad.

There can be no question that fears of the gravest nature have been entertained here and in London that violent disorders might accompany the French occupation. As time passes without such complications, coupled with action of the Reparations Commission in extending the moratorium to the end of the month and the Franco-German agreement reported from Essen for resumption of coal deliveries, presumably international tension is lessening in a way to foster hope for a new understanding among powers.

Should France determine to call an Allied conference and, as suggested from Paris, invite American participation, interest will center in the American attitude. However, it can only be reiterated that the administration has steadily refused to become involved in any discussion of a political nature relative to European conditions, but has strongly supported the idea of exchanges of views by international experts in economic matters.

Decision of the Washington government as to participation in the Brussels economic conference, projected before the break-up of the premiers' council in Paris, was never made, because no invitation was ever extended.

However, there was a strong inclination here to join in the conference provided it was held strictly to economic matters. Of another conference proposal emerges from the present crisis, presumably the American attitude would be determined by the scope and purpose of the meeting.

Seals Play Pranks with Fish off Huntington Beach

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 13.—Entertainment extraordinary was furnished by about twenty-five seals at the end of the quarter-mile concrete pier here today, the seals catching fish, tossing them and going through many pranks, to the amusement of about 100 fisherman and visitors. The seals stayed half an hour and fishing was poor thereafter.

"Dazed from our experience, almost too weak to drag ourselves along, we wandered around for a while, but finally managed to reach the house where I dressed Mr. Armand's wounds. Both of us were in frightful pain, but his was worst, as the men had rubbed tar or oil into the bleeding places of his body.

KLAN OPPONENTS FREED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Jan. 13.—After fifty hours' deliberation the jury in the trial of Frank Robinson, former Sheriff of Nueces county, and three other defendants charged with the murder of Fred Roberts, large ranch owner, last October, acquitted the defendants late this afternoon, according to a telephone message received in San Antonio tonight from Laredo where the trial was conducted.

The defendants besides Robinson were Lee Hetzel, Joe Aceba, and Cleve Goff, all of Nueces county, where the killing occurred.

Roberts was killed as he sat in an automobile after an argument with Robinson. The Ku Klux Klan issue was injected into the trial. All of the defendants were said to be opposed to the Klan and the political party in power in Nueces county.

MARINETTE (Wis.) Jan. 13.—A letter, purported to be from the Ku Klux Klan of Marinette, was received by Ed Leroy, editor of the Marinette Eagle-Star, and former Assemblyman, today, in which he was threatened with a "coat of tar and feathers" if he persisted in writing editorials in opposition to the Klan.

CATHOLICS WARNED

LAWRENCE (Mass.) Jan. 13.—St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church is under police guard and its pastor, the Rev. James T. O'Reilly, also is being guarded as a result of threatening letters said to have been received by members of the parish. The letters were signed "K. K. K."

WOONSOCKET (R. I.) Jan. 13.—The police and postoffice authorities were asked today to investigate the sending through the mails of four letters, all signed with the initials "K. K. K." in red ink. One addressed to Rev. Edward O'Donnell, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church, contained a threat to burn the church. Another threatened the lives of State Senator Patrick J. Cox and his daughter, and the other two asserted that the homes and stores of a druggist and market man here would be burned. The police began an investigation at the request of Senator Cox.

the concentration of troops on the frontier, but it demands that the Allies force Rumanians to respect its boundaries and send an investigation commission to the spot. The Bucharest government rejects the proposals, asserting that the Rumanians are not to blame for the affair, and is threatening to take strong measures if Hungary is not able to quell the trouble immediately.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—By an overwhelming vote of 123 to 12, the Reichstag today registered its approval of the government's attitude toward the Franco-Belgian invasion of the Ruhr, thus, according the nonpartisan Cabinet, headed by Chancellor Cuno, parliamentary support of sufficient caliber to assure it freedom of action so far as the consent of the political parties is concerned.

However, the situation growing out of the presence of armed French forces in parts of Germany previously unoccupied is considered a very serious one and nothing is suggested as to what line of further action is at the government's disposal.

The feeling in political circles in this connection was reflected in an expression by a well-known Democratic leader, who said tonight:

"Germany has arrived at the entrance to a dark, a very dark tunnel."

He referred not only to possible reaction from Paris to the German official attitude, the German government considering the Treaty of Versailles abrogated, but also was of the opinion that the internal situation was fraught with grave danger.

Since the coal syndicate eliminated itself from further control of the Ruhr mines output, independent owners and operators have tacitly agreed to supply France and Belgium against cash payments, as they are no longer about to hold Germany financially accountable for their deliveries. Official quarters are not intervening in this situation, inasmuch as it was not certain in Berlin tonight that the French authorities in the newly occupied area would enter into such an agreement.

The government is giving serious consideration to the adoption of emergency economic measures calculated to meet the sudden turn in the situation throughout Germany, without anticipating diplomatic and foreign economic ratifications, which may become urgent issues at an early date.

Today's session of the Reichstag took on an aspect of pronounced gloom as the Chancellor's statement failed to strike the inspiring note which the Deputies and crowded galleries expected. Chancellor Cuno liberally amplified his previous presentation of the legal aspects of the Ruhr invasion and its relation to the treaty. The party leaders who followed him also failed to lift the debate out of the atmosphere of perfunctory protest.

Chancellor Cuno graphically described the military character of the Franco-Belgian advance into the Ruhr, pointing out that it was carried out against a peaceful nation which neither could nor would offer any resistance. The Chancellor alluded to great sacrifices Germany had made to meet her obligations under the Treaty of Versailles.

"But despite all Germany's exertions," he said, "new burdens were constantly being laid upon our shoulders until our economic structure was destroyed as all can see today."

APPEALS TO WORLD

"I ask the world,' said the Chancellor, "if more could possibly have been done by any nation unnerved and weakened by losses through the war and through hunger and deprivation of every kind?"

Chancellor Cuno detailed the various German attempts to provide an acceptable solution of the reparations question, all of which were rejected, as was the peace pact intended to remove the political obstacles from the path of a purely economic settlement.

The Reichstag chamber was crowded. The British Ambassador was present but the French Ambassador was absent, as were French newspaper correspondents.

The Chancellor's utterances were applauded by all sections of the Reichstag with the exception of the Communists.

The session was opened with an appeal by Paul Loebe, president of the Reichstag, to the French nation.

"Decide for yourself," he said, "whether the way you have taken can lead to the desired result . . . then under the injustice which you have done us."

Fire Threatens Millions' Worth of Wet Goods

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—A million dollars' worth of liquor stored at Internal Revenue Bonded Warehouse No. 2 was threatened tonight when a fire swept through the seven stories of the Miller Thompson Paper Company's bag plant adjoining the warehouse, near the Manhattan end of the New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel. Instantly there was a strange and confused activity among the lawyers of the prosecution. Guion leaped up and walked quickly to Garrett's side at the other end of the long counsel table. District Attorney Garrett appeared confused, stood up and sat down again and then: "I withdraw the question," he said quickly.

In addition to Senator Stuckey the only witness of the early session of court was A. L. Smith, a planter, the owner of large properties in Ouachita parish on the Ouachita River, and admitted member of the Klan.

Mr. Smith is a typical southerner of the old south. He is 66 years old and recognized as a leading citizen of Northern Louisiana.

His testimony had to do chiefly with a number of conferences in which he took part with leading men of Mer Rouge and Bastrop, and in which continued attempts were made to bring about peace in Morehouse parish. He said that his interest in affairs in this parish centered chiefly around his friendship for the Davenport brothers, J. A., Leon, and Hugo, of Mer Rouge, who had become involved in the controversy with the Klan.

Senator Stuckey left the stand almost immediately after Garrett's mistake. His testimony centered around the asserted attempted assassination of Dr. B. M. McKoin in Mer Rouge sometime before the kidnapping and murder of Daniel and Richards on the night of August 24, and he described vividly conditions in the parish before and after the murders, until the government agents and this hearing came.

He told of standing in Bastrop after one of the numerous "peace" conferences.

"I, with John Freeland," he testified, "attended the meeting which had been held. Capt. Skipwith came along and Smith Davidson called to him.

"Well, captain," he inquired, "have you settled the Mer Rouge trouble?"

Capt. Skipwith said he had.

"On what basis?" Davidson asked.

Capt. Skipwith replied: "I told 'em that every man in Morehouse who didn't keep his mouth shut would be whipped until he couldn't sit down for some time."

"Was that after the kidnaping of Daniel and Richards?" Stuckey was asked.

"Yes," replied Stuckey.

"Not after the attempt to assassinate Dr. McKoin?"

"I have never been willing to admit that there was any attempt to assassinate McKoin," the old Senator answered quickly.

"My opinion and the opinion of most people in Mer Rouge is that he fired shots through his own car."

"Now why would he do that?"

Stuckey replied: "To get the sympathy of the Klan, so he could get the Klan to help punish some one."

"Do you mean to state that McKoin deliberately fired those shots through his own car?"

"Yes, that is the universal belief in this community."

A conference sought by Capt. Skipwith, Exalted Cyclops of the Klan in Morehouse parish, with Atty.-Gen. Coco, and which had been granted him by the Attorney-General and was supposed to be held today, did not materialize. It was stated that Skipwith's attorneys had advised against it at the time and it was therefore postponed.

Typed on it was the name Matty Frey, and written in pencil were the names of Cecil Costello, 520 Morgantown street, Point Marion, Pa., Jane McAmon and Eugene Payne.

The letter was written on stationery of the S. S. Harvard, and was signed "Marjie." It is believed the bandit must have found the letter.

Stephens, who was charged with robbery, declared that he did not know his confederate's name. He said he had met the man slain by Patrolman Anderson in Pershing Square several days ago, when his acquaintance boasted of robberies he had committed and declared he was looking for a partner with plenty of nerve. This was the first hold-up they had attempted, Stephens declared.

His companion bragged of hold-ups he had committed in Los Angeles. Stephens said, naming the Busy Bee confectionery as one of the "jobs" he had "pulled."

Lieutenant of Detectives Smith assigned Detectives Knapp, Craig, Finlinson and Burgess to investigate.

N. H. Petersen, private detective employed by the Burns Agency, was held up on Pico street last night by a bandit who shot him twice and robbed him of $45.

The bandit ordered Petersen to get out of his automobile and walk away from it. The detective, who had a revolver in the side pocket of the car, did not move fast enough to suit the bandit after he had alighted, and the bandit sent a bullet into the calf of each of Petersen's legs.

Taking $45 from the detective, the bandit fled.

Petersen crawled to his automobile and managed to drive to the Receiving Hospital, where his wounds were treated. Detective Sergeant L. G. White was assigned to the case, receiving a description of the bandit from Petersen which may result in an arrest.

His Hearing Restored

The invisible ear drum invented by A. O. Leonard, which is a miniature megaphone, fitting inside the ear entirely out of sight, is restoring the hearing of hundreds of people in New York City. Mr. Leonard invented this drum to relieve himself of deafness and head noises, and it does this so successfully that no one could tell he is a deaf man. It is effective when deafness is caused by catarrh or by perforated or wholly destroyed natural drums. A request for information to A. O. Leonard, Suite 111, 70 Fifth avenue, New York City, will be given prompt reply.—[Advertisement.

Governor Gets Indorsement of "Gas" Tax

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan 13.—Silence and somnolence reigned in the legislative halls of California today, the Senate and Assembly of the forty-fifth session having adjourned yesterday until Monday at 11 o'clock.

Most of the members went either to San Francisco, or to their homes. A few sat at their desks and worked over their mounting correspondence, and attaches were on hand as usual; but the only real activity apparent was in the office of Speaker Merriam, who continued work on his committee lists and announced that he hoped to complete them some time Monday, but perhaps could not present them before Tuesday morning.

BILLS SHOWING UP

Bills for early introduction began to appear. Some scores of them were referred to the legislative counsel for his approval as to form.

With the resumption of the sessions Monday, the real work of the Legislature will begin. The Senate has begun to receive bills, and the Assembly will take similar action very soon.

Talk of a joint resolution for adjournment of the first half of the session on the 28th inst., is heard. Under the Constitution, the Legislature continues in session for not more than thirty days. Then there must be a thirty-day recess, and then it reconvenes to complete its work.

"GAS" TAX INDORSED

Gov. Richardson today received from the Motor Car Dealers' Association of Los Angeles a resolution indorsing a gasoline tax, providing that the proceeds of such a tax are used exclusively for highway maintenance. The resolutions set out that the association would like to see the proceeds divided, one-third to the State, and two-thirds to the counties, on a basis between the counties of the amount of gasoline sales in each county. The resolutions also urge that the counties should agree to take over the upkeep of "an equitable part" of the major street systems within county limits.

Republican, Iowa, and Representative Coe, Republican, Wyoming.

After the conference the White House spokesman stated that it was concluded to defer consideration of revision of the funding law for at least two weeks, but that action probably would be taken at this session of Congress.

A full surpport of the President's debt funding program was pledged at the conference in behalf of the public, it was stated, and it is hoped by the administration that extended debate in the Senate will not carry the subject on until the adjournment of Congress, March 4. This possibility, however, has been foreseen by the administration and President Harding has let it be known that he will not call an extra session of Congress to consider the foreign debt question.

There were discussions of the issue in the Senate today when Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alhambra, made another protest because Democrats were not included on the Debt Commission. He pressed Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, to know whether he favored allowing Democrats to have membership thereon.

"I ask him now—he evaded the question the other day—if he thinks it is right and just that Democrats should not have representation on that commission," said Senator Heflin.

"I will say to the Senator," said Senator Smoot, "that I have no objection whatever to having Democrats represented on the commission and I think there will be no question about it so far as I am concerned when the law is proposed to be changed."

Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, wanted to know whether Senator Smoot would favor modification of the present law before imparting to the Senate and Congress exactly what proposal had been made by the British government.

"Why, no," replied Senator Smoot. "At the very time that a change in the law is proposed the information certainly will be given to Congress."

Senator McKellar held it would be better to have the facts as to the negotiations now by the country and Congress rather than have these negotiations proceed in secret.

Body of Mexican Labor Leader to be Honored

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13.—Numerous committees representing labor bodies were at the station tonight awaiting the arrival of the body of Ricardo Flores Magon, Mexican labor leader who died last November, while in Leavenworth prison, where he was serving a sentence for conspiracy against the American government. The body will lie in state at the headquarters of the Regional Confederation of Labor for a week, burial probably taking place the 21st inst.

The unions are considering calling a twenty-four-hour general strike throughout the republic on Monday, the 22nd inst., to show the sympathy of the workers.

SANITORIUM RECONSIDERED

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 13.—Heeding the pressure of farmers against further tax burdens, the Rock County Board at Janesville yesterday nullified its action of November to build a county tuberculosis sanitorium this year.

MISS SKARIN NOT GUILTY

shot him in defense of her honor and her life, she testified.

The State maintained the wealthy real estate dealer was killed for gold he was known to have in his possession.

It was more than two months after the slaying—on December 21—when a plumber who entered the house to repair a broken pipe, found the body in the alcove of one of the rooms. Miss Skarin had left Seattle late in November, ostensibly for Portland, Or., where she told friends she was to meet Hochbrunn. Through letters purporting to have been written by Hochbrunn, but later admitted to have been written and mailed by Miss Skarin, she was traced to Portland and then to California cities.

In September, 1922, Miss Skarin was apprehended in Oakland, Cal., through a chance meeting with a former Seattle acquaintance and a few days after her arrest admitted the killing. She willingly came to Seattle, where a charge of first degree murder was placed against her. The trial began last Tuesday.

MOTIVE IS HINGE

The actual facts of the slaying, Miss Skarin's flight to Portland and California, made possible by gold taken from a trunk in Hochbrunn's home, and the forgery of Hochbrunn's name to letters written from Portland and California were admitted by both defense and prosecution. The entire case hinged on the motive for the killing.

To substantiate the plea of self-defense, Miss Skarin's attorneys called witnesses who testified that Hochbrunn was known as "that beast" who had attacked women and children. Alexander R. Robinson, medical diagnostician and pathologist, replying to a hypothetical question, asserted that Hochbrunn's history stamped him a degenerate. Miss Skarin told the jury Hochbrunn had assaulted her criminally when she was 14 years old and that on a number of occasions she had been compelled to repel his attentions with force. Since 1906 she had been his ward, and for eight years lived with her mother, Hochbrunn's housekeeper, at his home.

HER STORY

She said the scuffle in which Hochbrunn was wounded fatally occurred when she went to his house to demand return of money which she said her mother had given him. He made improper advances, she declared, and attacked her, the shoooting following a few moments later.

Explaining her motive for concealing the death and leaving Seattle rather than reporting it, the girl said she had sought advice from Edward Von Tobel, pioneer Seattle lawyer, and Hochbrunn's lifelong friend, and that Von Tobel had told her to leave town. He went with her to the Hochbrunn home, she testified, slit open the dead man's pocket, abstracted keys and opened a trunk from which he took gold. Part of the gold he gave her, she said, keeping the larger part himself, together with a number of papers. Von Tobel, she said, "framed" the letters bearing Hochbrunn's purported signature, which she afterward mailed from Portland and California points.

FALSE, HE SAYS

Von Tobel, a witness for the State, branded her story as "false in every detail." His first knowledge of his client's death came with the finding of the body, he declared. He admitted under cross-examination that seven months after the slaying he had withdrawn a large sum of gold from a safe-deposit vault and placed it in a local bank, but he asserted that this gold had been accumulated during a period of several years on connection with the settlement of an Austrian estate. The State's attorneys, in their final arguments, asked the jury to vindicate Von Tobel "completely."

The trial attracted widespread attention, and hundreds of persons stormed Judge Mitchell Gilliam's courtroom in an effort to catch a glimpse of the defendant or hear something of the testimony. During the early hours of the trial Miss Skarin, pale, but composed, sat quietly beside her attorneys listening intently to the testimony. As the tension increased, however, she showed effects of the strain and as a witness she frequently burst into tears.

The Hungarian War Minister, M. Beliska, has branded the rumors that Hungary has mobilized troops as false.

Dispatches from Belgrade state that the Rumanian Minister, M. Diamanti, has proposed to the Jugo-Slav Foreign Minister, M. Nintchitch, to convoke at Bucharest an extraordinary immediate conference of the little entente to decide on measures against Hungary, alleging that Hungary has a menacing concentration of troops probably on the frontier near Grosswardein. M. Pachitch and M. Nintchitch have conferred with King Alexander regarding the Rumanians' proposal. A most important decision is expected imminently.

Reports state that frontier combats were caused by Hungarian terrorist irregulars, commanded by Lieut. Dispatches from Bucharest assert that the Hungarians have surrounded Grosswardein. The government is sending a note to Paris and London.

off, carrying away Miss MacDonald.

True to the traditions of the sea, women were rescued first. True also to traditions, the pilot was the last to leave the plane.

After Mr. Atkins and Miss McDonald had been swept away, Miller succeeded in holding the others on the wreckage until the rescue was effected. A wave turned a part of the plane completely over, the pilot said, but by a strange bit of luck the survivors were dropped back on the wreckage.

The lifeboat was launched about 150 yards from the plane and on reaching the wreckage several attempts had to be made before survivors could be transferred, the waves washing the lifeboat back time and again. The pilot praised the heroism of Capt. Albury and the crew for their heroic efforts in the face of great difficulties.

TIME WITH LIFEBOAT

Mrs. Atkins was the first to be placed aboard the lifeboat and was followed by the other woman survivor, Miss Haverty. Mr. Abrams went next and then the mechanician. After the rescue the lifeboat had to wage what seemed for a time a losing battle in order to get back to the Flagler.

None of the survivors is believed to be in a serious condition, although they are suffering from bruises and the shock. They were placed in a hospital here.

Mrs. Atkins, it was said, apparently is dazed and as yet does not realize what has happened.

An effort will be made to recover the bodies of the victims, but the part of the sea where the disaster occurred is infested with sharks and little hope was held out tonight that a recovery would be possible.

Mr. Atkins, who was spending the winter in Cuba, came to Key

NEW TARIFF LAW BOON FOR TRADE

Imports for October Total $319,000,000

Greatest Monthly Record Since Year 1920

Improvement in Conditions is Indicated

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—October, the first complete month in which the new administration tariff law was operated, witnessed a continuation of the increase in imports of merchandise into the United States, according to figures for the month on the incoming foreign trade.

The statistics, made public today by the Department of Commerce, fixed the value of October imports at $319,000,000, the greatest monthly total since November of the banner year, 1920, despite higher rates of the new law.

Complete figures for September show imports for that month valued at $298,000,000, of which $69,000,000 came in after September 22, when the present law went into effect. Imports for August were valued at $281,000,000 and those for July at $251,000,000. Figures for 1921 included: July, $178,000,000; August, $194,000,000; September, $197,000,000, and October, $188,000,000.

REFLECTS CONDITIONS

The report was declared by officials to be convincing evidence of the upward trend of incoming trade. It reflects, also, it was said, a generally improved condition at home and abroad and a warrant for the statement that the requests of the American people for such foreign merchandise as they demand is being satisfied regardless of what was described by those opposed to the administration bill in congressional debates as a tariff barrier.

No official comment came with the publication of the figures except a brief statement that scattering details, together with customs receipts for the months covered indicated the increase in importations had been general. It was added that the increase was not confined to any one country with which American foreign trade is of consequence.

The figures themselves, however, tell a comprehensive story of the growing import trade since the total for the ten months, including October, was $61,000,000 greater than for the full twelve months of 1921, when the year's imports were valued at $2,509,000,000. Imports for the first ten months of that year were $2,060,000,000, while for the year 1920, when the high record was established, imports for the same ten months were valued at 4,691,000,000.

PRICES HIGHER IN 1920

In the case of the year 1920, attention was called to the higher range in prices. It was believed by some officials that if November and December imports for 1922 show further increases, the volume of the incoming trade for the year will not be so far behind the volume for 1920, the difference being largely representative of the change in value.

This expectation would seem to be borne out by the customs receipts for those months which went to make up total receipts of $413,000,000 for the year, a heavy increase over 1921. November and December receipts showed progressive increases over the preceding months.

The department's statement explained that the delay in compiling the figures for October had been due to the increase in the number of items which must be listed under the new classification. Changes in the rates also necessitated renewed computations of units and other details. Indications were given that further statistics disclosing the imports from the principal countries for October would be announced soon.

LEGISLATIVE STORM RISING

Arizona Democrats Brewing Senate Tempest

Republican Maladministration Principal Charge

Highway Fund Suddenly Shows Great Deficit

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Jan. 13.—The new Democratic administration has made an early start on its chase after asserted Republican maladministration, following charges made in the campaign. This morning Gov. Hunt transmitted to the Senate a letter from the new State Engineer, Frank R. Goodman, in which the Legislature is called upon for an immediate appropriation of $586,586.67, "if there is to be avoided an utter collapse of the State highway department."

Mr. Goodman advised the Governor that he had found work contracted for up to the end of the fiscal year at cost of $2,785,155, while funds on hand or expected to come before June 30 figure up $1,553,253 less than the sum required. Senator Elliott, who steered the finance code in the last special session, today acted as spokesman for the State Engineer, stating that no way had been found out of the dilemma that confronts the administration. His motion for an investigation was carried unanimously, with the vote of the single Republican Senator, Phillips, and Senators Elliott, Cornick and Pierce were appointed on an investigating committee. There is expectation that the House will join when it meets Monday morning.

SENT TO COMMITTEES

Consideration of ways whereby the asserted difficulty may be met was considered weighty enough for reference to three committees, those on appropriations, finance and judiciary, with assumption that action must be taken early to meet the next pay roll of the road gangs. The whole agitation is a tempest in a teapot, with primary intention of making political war medicine, according to former officials of the State executive and highway departments.

It is pointed out that no consideration has been taken of about $700,000 that will be due from the Federal government before the end of the fiscal year, with about $300,000 of the sum already claimed by the State, which has had to pay out all costs of roads before making a claim for the 60 per cent of the cost that comes from the nation.

This financial situation was fully set forth, it is told, in a letter addressed to the new State Engineer, published in the press early in December and signed by the retiring engineer, Thomas Maddock. A former road engineer, familiar with the figures, declares that the department's house was left in order, with every cent of expenditure accounted for and with money in sight for all work that had been lined out ahead.

SUGGESTS FLOATING FUND

If the Legislature chooses to establish a floating fund, he says, it would relieve the department of much financial stress entailed by the present method of handling Federal funds.

Senator Kean St. Charles of Mohave county has put the question of ratification of the Colorado River pact squarely before the Legislature by a Senate joint resolution, which will join in committee the several dilatory or opposing resolutions already offered affecting disposition of the Colorado's flow. Water Commissioner Norviel, Republican, under fire on a charge of precipitate action in granting a permit to the Diamond Creek enterprise, appeared before the committee to state that this action has been taken after two years' consideration and that no objection had been voiced to his action, which followed a similar permit by the Federal Power Commission.

Gov. Hunt has sent the Senate the full list of his more material appointments for confirmation.

DAUGHERTY ASKS DATA ON LABOR UNION ROW

WANTS TO KNOW IF BAY CITY DEALERS COMBINED TO BLOCK CONTRACTORS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—A telegram was received here today by John T. Williams, United States District Attorney, from H. M. Daugherty, Attorney General, in which Mr. Williams is requested to ascertain through the Department of Justice here, whether building supply dealers, other than those who sell plumbing supplies, entered into a combination here months ago, to sell no material to contractors who employed union labor exclusively. It previously was reported by the Department of Justice here, that plumbing supplies were in such a combination.

Atty.-Gen. Daugherty in his wire says he has received numerous complaints from persons representing building supply men, since his recent ruling that the reported plumbing supply combination was in restraint of trade and subject to Federal prosecution. He, therefore, desires to learn if like conditions existed in other lines.

The Department of Justice here will be aided by investigators from Washington in obtaining information, Daugherty said.

Couple Jailed After Raid at Long Beach

Sealskin Coats and Other Valuables Seized

Articles Are Worth $6000; Lookout Gives Tip

Expensive sealskin coats, a trunkful of costly feminine apparel and a chest of silver and trinkets were seized by Detectives Aubrey and Roonye of the Wilshire station, and Detective Le Baron of Long Beach in a raid on the apartments of Grant K. Meyers and his wife, Irma Myers, at 337 East Seaside Boulevard, Long Beach, late yesterday afternoon. Meyers and his wife were arrested and lodged in jail at Long Beach. The loot declared to have been found in their apartment the police value at $6,000. Another cache of equal value was the object of another search by officers here last night.

The raid was made following a confession to police by a former asserted "lookout" for the Meyerses. His identity was not disclosed. He informed officers that his former confederates, working in collusion with a domestic now being sought, burglarized a number of homes in the exclusive Wilshire residential district. Yesterday he accompanied officers to burglarized homes.

LIVED IN SAME HOUSE

The Meyers' former "lookout" occupied a room in the same apartment house in which the couple lived. The disappearance of valuable articles from his room caused his suspicions to center on his confederates. The raid yesterday, police say, revealed the former "lookout's" suspicions to be correct.

Detective Aubrey believes the Meyerses for many months have been burglarizing Los Angeles homes. He is of the opinion that they have been shipping their plunder to San Francisco. In return, he asserts, the Meyerses have been selling here goods stolen in the Bay City.

Though living together, Mrs. Meyers told him, Detective Aubrey says, she was not married to her asserted partner. Following the woman's assertion the couple have an additional charge recorded against them. An investigation is to be made, police say, of former matrimonial affairs of the twain as revealed by the woman for evidence in support of a bigamy charge.

CAME FROM CULVER CITY

The Meyerses, the police assert, recently moved to Long Beach from a Culver City studio apartment which they are said to have traded for the apartment in the beach city. The owner of the building reported to officers, Detective Aubrey says, that in moving, the Meyerses stripped the building of such furnishings as could be removed.

Neither the plunder found in their apartment nor the meyerses were brought to this city last night. The man and woman are being held incommunicado at the Long Beach jail, while the energies of the police center upon a search for the housemaid, declared to have been implicated in the burglaries. The woman is described as being a tall, slender blonde with large hands and feet. The location of the cache of spoils of local burglaries all ready for shipment to San Francisco, police believe, will be accomplished today.

DRY CHIEFS HECKLED BY LIQUORITES

Prohibition Men Declare Movement Already Has Proved Success

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Hecklers kept up a running fire of caustic comment at the expense of Representative Louis C. Cramton, of Michigan and Wayne B. Wheeler, Anti-Saloon League leader, who elucidated the "dry" point of view in a prohibition debate at the National Republican Club today.

Augustus Thomas, playwright, and Ransom Gillette, who upheld the "wets" frequently were interrupted by boisterous applause. An audience of about 500 persons, including a number of prohibition enforcement agents listened with partisan appreciation to the debate.

Mr. Wheeler declared that prohibition already was a success and cited a mass of figures showing decrease in crime and mortality in principal cities as a result, he said, of enforcement. Representative Cramton declared that 80 per cent of the reported violations of the prohibition and narcotics laws were by aliens. Both made an apepal for support of the Constitution, stressing the Eighteenth Amendment in particular.

Messrs. Thomas and Gillette urged repeal or modification of the Volstead Act so as to permit light wines and beer with a clearly defined congressional limit as to alcoholic content. Mr. Thomas termed the prohibition movement a "fanatical crusade" while Mr. Gillette declared it was a sectarian move fostered by the adherents of blue laws and censorship rules.

JAIL TERMS GIVEN ON LIQUOR CHARGES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DENVER, Jan. 13.—Judge J. Foster Symes of the United States District Court imposed the most severe sentences yet given here for prohibition violations today when he sent proprietors and employees of the Broadway Grill to jail for from three months to two years.

Constipation

Constipation of the bowels is a stoppage of the sewerage system that removes waste matter from the body. It is as necessary that your bowels move regularly once each day to carry off this waste as it is that the waste pipes of your home be kept open and carry off the waste from the house. If you would enjoy good health, keep your bowels regular by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed.—[Advertisement.

JOINT FREIGHT RATE ON LIVE STOCK ASKED

MONTANA STOCK GROWERS WOULD SHIP TO LOS ANGELES

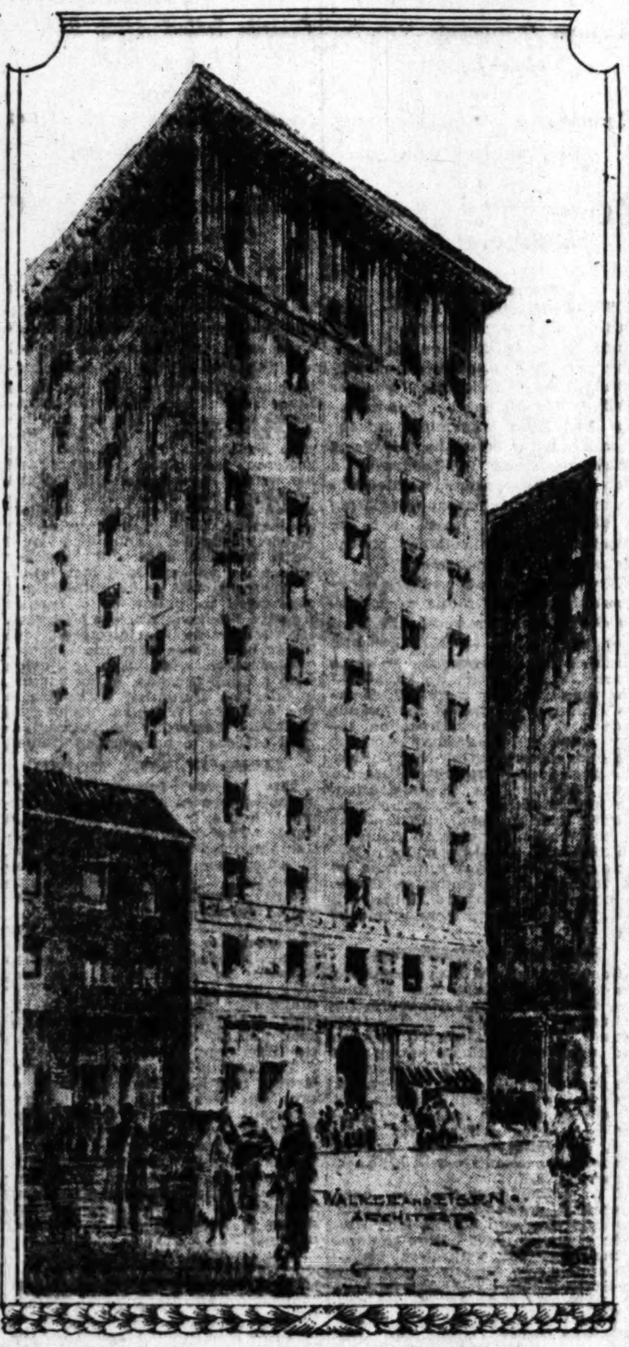
[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HELENA (Mont.) Jan. 13.—Joint freight rate on live stock from all Montana points to Los Angeles where a union stockyard recently has been established, is being sought by the State Railroad Commission. The action is being taken on request of the Montana Stock Growers' Association, which argues that the shorter time from Montana shipping points to the California city would make shipments there advantageous as compared with those to Middle Western markets.

The State Railroad Commission has undertaken a preliminary investigation and will, if necessary, carry the matter up to the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was said today.

FIRM PLANS FINE STRUCTURE

Clothiers to Have Modern Home



Front View of New Olive-Street Building

A TWELVE-STORY store and loft building is to be erected within the year for Alexander & Oviatt, dealers in men's clothing, according to an announcement made yesterday by James Oviatt, president of the firm.

The building, which will represent an investment of approximately $750,000, is to be located on Olive street, just south of the Pacific Finance Building, on a site recently leased by Alexander & Oviatt for a period of ninety-nine years at a total rental of approximately $2,000,000.

The building, designed by Architects Walker and Eesen, is to be class A, reinforced concrete construction, and will be finished in pressed brick, terra cotta trimmed. It will have a frontage of sixty feet and a depth of 170 feet.

FIRM SPACE LARGE

Alexander & Oviatt will occupy the basement, the first, second, and third floors of the structure. The remainder of the building, consisting of lofts, is to be rented to high-class specialty shops.

In the basement of the building, Alexander & Oviatt intend to establish one of the finest golf and sporting goods departments in the west. One of the novel features to be installed in the basement will be a practice golf course.

The main floor is to be devoted to men's haberdashery and hats. The second floor will contain the suit and overcoat departments, and the third floor will house the women's wear department, which will handle English overcoats and sport clothes for women, of a quality corresponding to that of the men's clothing handled by the firm. The fourth floor will be used as a factory for the manufacture of shirts, pajamas, underwear, and lounging robes.

FOREIGN CONNECTIONS

Alexander & Oviatt are importing the majority of the goods they handle, and at present, maintain offices in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. They expect soon to open a shop on the Rue de la Paix, Paris, and another in the McAfee Building, now being constructed on Regent street in London. In the London shop they will manufacture overcoats and golf clothing for the Paris and Los Angeles stores.

Mr. Oviatt says that their business has been increasing during the last few years at an amazing rate.

"In 1922," he said, "our business showed an increase of 40 per cent over that of the preceding year, and in the month of December alone our sales were greater in number than the sales made during the entire twelve months of our first year in business. That was twelve years ago."

CUPID BUREAU SEEKS MAN

No, Not Necessarily a Winsome Bachelor; Just Clerk for License Bureau; Divorces on Increase

If some good correspondence school graduate, versed in the subtle arts and wiles of salesmanship and advertising, will call at the sixth floor of the Hall of Records, he may learn something to his advantage. Ask for Cupid.

While the news columns of this newspaper never are devoted to advertising, an instance has come to public attention which justifies almost anything. The marriage license bureau needs a man.

This statement should not be misconstrued. While there are two very charming young women in charge of the bureau, it is not they who seek the man. Art and art alone needs him. And if he calls, besides receiving a salary, no doubt substantial, he will be permitted, maybe obliged, to kiss all the brides.

Business in the marriage license bureau has fallen. If an efficiency expert with all his graphs and charts were there he could show a varying line that reveals a material falling in the popularity of the w. k. institution of matrimony. And, on the other hand, his charts would show a material gain in divorces.

Twice during the past week divorces requested have equaled or outnumbered marriages. Some believe it shows that the divorce department of the County Clerk's office, in charge of Miss Emily Shumway, is more persuasive than the bureau upstairs in charge of Miss Emma Higgins. Whether they are to blame or not, Miss Shumway is all pepped up over the popularity of her gloom desk while Miss Higgins is sad, more or less, as a result of Miss Shumway's winning ways.

Last Tuesday there were twenty-eight divorces and twenty-seven licenses and on Friday there were forty-two of each. At this rate they'll have to import unmarried men and women and marry them here in order to regulate the supply and demand.

Courthouse officials seem jubilant over the outlook. They believe a cure has been found for the divorce evil. If more people are divorcing than are marrying, soon there won't be any more married people and consequently there won't be any more divorces. Simple? It is necessary to be simple to appreciate it.

HOSPITAL MEASURE MAY FAIL

Referendum Petition Has 14,000 Names; Ordinance Repeal Possible

Possibility that the City Council will repeal the ordinance calling for the erection of a $500,000 hospital at Vermont avenue and Fountain street, rather than submit to an expenditure of $75,000, which might be necessitated for the calling of a special election, loomed yesterday with the announcement by City Clerk Dominguez that petitions containing more than 14,000 signatures of property owners, calling for a referendum on the measure, were reported ready to be filed this week.

The ordinance for the erection of the hospital to be built by the Hollywood Hospital Association on the entire lot at that location was recently adopted by the Council over the veto of Mayor Cryer.

If this petition, when filed, is found, on checking by the City Clerk, to contain enough names to force the City Council to call a special election to lay the measure before the voters, it is probable that the ordinance will be held over until the May primaries, when it then can be submitted to voters without additional expense.

MAN'S BODY IS FLOATING NEAR PIER

Santa Monican Discovers It and Tells Police, Who Will Search Today

Another potential murder mystery confronted Santa Monica police last night with the discovery of a human torso, head and arms missing, about two and a half miles southwest of the municipal pier.

The find was made by Capt. P. J. Morris of Santa Monica late yesterday afternoon. There were remnants of a shirt and trousers, indicating that the body was that of a man.

It is believed the body has been in the water for several weeks. Capt. Morris was unable unaided to get the body into his boat. On his return to Santa Monica, he notified the police, who plan a search today. It is the belief of the authorities that the dead man may have been killed in a fight at sea and thrown overboard.

Capt. Morris operates fishing and excursion boats at the Santa Monica municipal pier.

R. L. Knapp Has Political Hat in Mayoralty Ring

R. L. Knapp, a retired dry goods importer of 4521 Beverly Boulevard, announced his candidacy for Mayor of Los Angeles yesterday. Mr. Knapp is 58 years of age. He retired about a year ago, after a business career which began as a newsboy in New York City. He has resided in California for many years while conducting an importing business with offices in San Francisco and Los Angeles. He has never held public office, but says he has made a study of municipal government in this country and abroad. In politics he is a Republican.

Mr. Knapp states that he has the support of many local business houses and that he already has some 6000 signatures for his nominating petitions.

MEXICAN CATHOLICS ENTHRONE CHRIST

IMPOSING CEREMONY ATTENDED BY 50.000 CHURCH MEMBERS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—In the presence of 50,000 faithful of the Catholic church Christ was enthroned as king yesterday on a hill near Silano. A Papal delegate and bishops and archbishops from all the dioceses in Mexico were present. It was an imposing ceremony. Federal troops were sent to guard the Catholics from the Socialist element, but they were not needed. The ceremony was the most elaborate effort of the church.

POLICE HEAD DIES

DENVER, Jan. 13.—Capt. Frank W Lee, senior captain in the police department, and a resident of Colorado for forty-five years, is dead at his home, 3065 West Thirty-sixth avenue, of cerebro-spinal meningitis, which developed following a severe cold a week ago and an infection of the ears.

PLAZA CASE ON WAY TO APPEAL

Engineer Leaves for Capital With City's Plea

Interstate Commerce Board Will Hear Facts

Immediate Action on Matter is Being Sought

The Plaza union terminal case, veteran of a dozen battle grounds, is on its way to Washington for consideration by the court of last resort—the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Richard Sachse, chief engineer of the State Railroad Commission, and author of the Sachse report upon which the order for a union terminal at or near the Plaza was based, left yesterday for Washington to personally present the matter to the highest authority on transportation problems.

Informally he represents the city of Los Angeles in the terminal case, and he carries with him a copy of the Sachse report, as well as a memorandum, asking the commission to give the question its earliest consideration.

The case is being taken to the Interstate Commerce Commission in order to get it before that body while the State Supreme Court is deciding whether or not it will reconsider its recent decision, which was unfavorable to the Plaza order of the State Railroad Commission.

WILL GAIN TIME

By sumbitting the case to the Washington board now the State Railroad Commission and city of Los Angeles expect to gain considerable time, as the matter should be well under consideration in Washington before an opinion is rendered by the State Supreme Court on the application for a rehearing.

In face of opposition from the railways involved, the city has been fighting for the terminal for ten years, and for five years the matter has been in the courts. The State Railway Commission more than a year ago ordered the railways to join in building the terminal, but upon appeal to the State Supreme Court that body a few weeks ago ruled that the State Railroad Commission had no jurisdiction in the matter.

The Supreme Court has been asked for a rehearing, but since there is no new evidence to advance in the original case it is taken for granted that the request will be refused, and thus the move is now made to interest the Interstate Commerce Commission in the belief that it has jurisdiction in the matter and will proceed to exercise it.

ROWELL IS AIDE

At Washington Mr. Sachse will be joined by Chester Rowell, and they will appear together before the Interstate Commerce Commission, which will be asked to consider the matter informally at once. This will put the wheels in motion and familiarize members of the commission with the case so that when a formal hearing is ordered no delay will be necssary.

Mr. Rowell was a member of the State Railroad Commission at the time it ordered the railroads to undertake the terminal project, and is thoroughly familiar with the case from its inception. Mr. Sachse and Mr. Rowell will present memoranda for the guidance of the commission, together with the record of the case as it came before the California Railroad Commission.

Before he left, Mr. Sachse conferred with City Attorney Stephens, and it was decided that the commissioner would act as an informal emissary from the City of Los Angeles so that the appeal for action might also come from this city. Mr. Sachse will offer the assistance of the Railroad Commission's engineering force in any technical details that the Interstate Commerce Commission may care to take up.

REALTORS LEAVE FOR JACKSONVILLE

CALIFORNIA PARTY HEADED BY W. I. HOLLINGSWORTH IN SPECIAL CAR

A delegation of California real estate dealers, headed by W. I. Hollingsworth of Los Angeles, leave Los Angeles today on the Sunset Limited of the Southern Pacific for Jacksonville, Fla., to attend the national real estate convention there. The party is traveling in a special car. A brief stop at New Orleans is planned.

Those making the trip include Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth, Los Angeles; George Dickinson, wife and niece, Mrs. Tufts, Los Angeles; E. T. Keiser, California Real Estate Commissioner, and his wife, Pomona; Mr. and Mrs. George Hughes, Long Beach; Carl Mock, Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. John C. Bewley, Lodi, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelly, Bakersfield.

BENCH WARRANT OUT IN PHILLIPS CASE

HUSBAND OF MURDERESS IS CHARGED WITH BREAKING SPEED LAWS

Jail yawns for Armour L. Phillips, husband of the elusive Clara Phillips, murderess, who once made her home at the County Jail. Police Judge Floyd of Culver City issued a bench warrant for his arrest yesterday.

Phillips was scheduled to appear on a speeding charge at 10 a.m. yesterday. He was accused of driving forty miles an hour on Washington Boulevard Thursday. A girl was in the machine with him when a speed officer served a summons.

Failure to appear caused Judge Floyd to issue the warrant for Phillips's arrest.

BOYS FIND DYNAMITE, THEN HOSPITAL WARD

TWO BROTHERS PLAY MINER AND STRIKE "LODE" OF ABRASIONS

Two little boys, found a handful of dynamite caps. Thrilled with the discovery, they went behind their home at 843 Summit avenue yesterday, to play miner.

A few minutes later the police ambulance dashed through the crowded streets with the siren screaming, and deposited in a ward of the Receiving Hospital two frightened and injured brothers.

They were treated by Police Surgeon Savarien, who dressed numerous jagged cuts. They are Paul Matchniff, 6 years of age, and John Matchniff, 11.

MAYOR TO OPEN CHARTER MOVE

City Club to Hear Executive Start Campaign

Council Inactive, so Cryer Takes Initiative

Freeholders' Election May be Called by Him

Mayor Cryer at the City Club next Wednesday noon will open his campaign for a new city charter, nothing having been done by the City Council during the eighteen months the present Council has been in office toward starting the necessary proceedings to secure a new charter.

In his annual message one year ago, Mayor Cryer pointed out the defects of the present charter, which was framed in 1888 when Los Angeles had a population of 50,000, and is now a patchwork of amendments totally insufficient for the government of the Los Angeles of today.

In his forthcoming annual message to be issued within the next two weeks, as well as in his City Club speech next Wednesday, the Mayor again will call attention to the fact that steps should be taken at once to obtain a new charter, and it is probable that the Mayor will start the proceedings himself soon by formally requesting the City Council, in a special message, to call a board of freeholders.

STEP OUTLINED

If the Council declines to do this, the Mayor will sponsor the circulation of petitions. If these petitions bear the signatures of 15 per cent of the voters of Los Angeles, the City Council must call an election for a board of fifteen freeholders to draft a new city charter.

New city charters are secured under procedure provided by State law. The City Council under this law, by a two-thirds vote, can call a primary election to nominate a Board of Freeholders. If this is done, either by the Council on petition or of its motion, then petitions are circulated bearing the names of candidates for the Board of Freeholders, and these names are placed on the nominating ballot, and come before the voters at a special election or at the same time as a general election. Candidates must have been qualified electors of the city for at least five years. At this nominating election, the thirty receiving the highest votes are nominated, in the same manner as are Councilmen a tthe primaries. Then, at a later general election, the fifteen receiving the highest vote constitute the Board of Freeholders.

BOARD DRAFTS CHARTER

This board, within 120 days after the election at which its members were chosen, must file with the City Council the draft of a new charter.

The board may, at the time of filing, set the date of the election for approving or disapproving the new charter. This date must be within sixty days from the time the new charter is filed, if a special election is to be called. If the charter is to be submitted at a regular election, it must be the first one held after the new charter is filed at the City Hall.

A majority of the voters casting their ballots on the question of approving or disapproving the new basic law of the city is sufficient to adopt the new charter.

After approval by a majority of the voters, the charter is submitted to the Legislature for its formal approval.

MOVEMENT STARTED

A movement is on foot to bring about the nominating of the Board of Freeholders at the city primaries next May or at the city election next June, so as to save the expense of a special election, and also to get the new charter proceedings under way in ample time for approval by the Legislature, two years hence, or before that time, if a special session of the Legislature should happen to be called.

The last attempt to secure a new charter for Los Angeles was made in 1915 when a Board of Freeholders was elected, of which W. C. Mushet, now a member of the City Council, was a member, but the charter drafted by this board was disapproved by the voters at an election held June 6, 1916.

JITNEYS UNDAUNTED BY HIGHER COSTS

AKRON (O.) Jan. 13.—Although it will cost the average jitney bus owner $180 in license fees and insurance payments to operate in Akron this year as compared with $40 last year, the local jitney business seems to be on as sound a footing as ever. The license clerk's records show that 155 jitney busses have been licensed to operate in Akron so far this year and that 140 drivers have been licensed to drive jitneys. Last year 556 jitney busses were operating in Akron.

DEPOSITORS TO SUE WIDOW OF BANKER

DES MOINES, Jan. 13.—The failure of the Sheffield bank a few months ago is now threatening another eruption in its wake. The trouble centers about Mrs. L. B. Carhart, widow of the late proprietor of the bank. Previous to Carhart's death he deeded his property to his wife. Now creditors are threatening to bring suit against her to recover a portion of her late husband's wealth.

PLATTE RIVER ICE GORGES FLOOD LANDS

OMAHA, Jan. 13.—Dispatches yesterday from Grand Island say ice gorges at the forks of the Platte River, several miles west of the Nine Bridge road, have diverted the water from regular channels and sent it over the lowlands. About a hundred yards of the road near the old sand pit six miles south of that city is inundated and a large number of haystacks in the bottoms are partly submerged. The flood will cause considerable damage to hay owners.

WHEAT POOL TO RELEASE HOLDINGS

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 13.—Having grown tired of waiting for a higher price for their wheat, directors of the Kansas Wheat Growers' Association, Wichita, have decided to order a certain amount of their pooled wheat sold each month from now until the last of next June in order to close out all the wheat in the pool, between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 bushels, in time to make a final settlement with members before the new crop.

POWER PLANT FOR OZARKS UNDER WAY

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 13.—Preliminary permit having been obtained from the Federal Power Commission, the Empire District Electric Company will soon start work on the new $15,000,000 dam on the White River at Table Rock, near Hollister, Mo., according to word from Springfield. The dam and powerhouse will furnish electricity for the entire Ozark region. Many new industries are expected to locate in the Ozarks.

ARTICLE V

Leaving for awhile the subject of physical health cures effected by autosuggestion, let us discuss the role of the latter in relation to our moral well-being. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," said the Man of Wisdom thousands of years ago; and his words are as true now as they were then. And what is such "training" if not the art of implanting a mass of suggestions in the young, receptive mind? Those suggestions may be good or bad, and upon them depend the child's whole destiny.

I shall have more to say on the subject of the rational and scientific education of children later on, but for the moment I should like to insist upon the importance of suggestion and autosuggestion for society. Moral health is essential to physical health, and it is to he interest of the community at large to improve the moral health of its feebler elements. Granted the efficacy of autosuggestion in the accomplishment of this task it must be clear to all that the new method opens up a magnificent vista of possibilities in the direction of social progress.

AIDS MORAL HEALTH

It furnishes us the means of combating victoriously the bad streaks in our nature, whether inherited or acquired, and of developing our intelligence; of curbing a wayward imagination, of adding ponderation to our judgement, modifying our mentality, correcting our moral weaknesses, while curing our bodily ills. Its generalization must conduce to individual and social reform, and the time may come when, freed of the evil suggestions which are so many poisons debilitating humanity both spiritually and physically that the world will have purged itself of all its morbid elements—the criminal classes—embark upon a new and glorious phase of fullest harmony.

We all recognize the value of physical culture. It is not too much to say that to its renascence in my own country and the consequent building up of a generation of robust strong-limbed young men, full of stamina and resistence, is due in a considerable measure our victory in the great war. Well, psychic culture is equally necessary. It will teach us to think simply, sanely. It will teach us to realize that we can be, and should be, the masters of events, and not their playthings. Psychic culture, through the medium of suggestion and autosuggestion, corrects our moral deformities, just as physical culture corrects our bodily defects. We cannot all become champions, but we can all develop our personality in the spiritual or moral domain as we can all increase our muscular force by appropriate exercises.

CRIME PREVENTION

Autosuggestion, then, I am persuaded, is destined to be applied more and more generally in the world's efforts to stamp out crime. I have had occasion to try my method at Nancy upon a few boys of bad character whose precocious criminal instincts had led them to the reformatory. I believe good results were attained, but unfortunately I was unable to pursue the experiments over a long period, as the poor youths, sent in batches, only remained a few weeks before being transferred to the central establishment in another town. However, the French authorities are quite in favor of a prolonged trial of my method being made and I hope to devote myself to this task when I return to Europe. I may say, too that I find great interest manifested here in America in this question of autosuggestion as a remedy against the growth of crime.

"KNOW THYSELF"

Applied psychology, the vast developments of which is only just beginning, will teach us to know ourselves better, to possess ourselves more completely, to control the supreme powers with which nature has endowed us and to use them for the development of our character and of our physical, intellectual and moral well-being.

The subject far outstrips the individual; society as a whole will benefit by man's self-mastery. The doctor has been called "the last of the magicians." But we can all be much greater than the magician by merely utilizing the stpuendous moral power, and cerebral energy latent within us. Revivify intelligence paralyzed by doubt or ignorance, regenerate the physical organism, strengthen the moral fiber. Such are the aims to be attained, preluding an ennobling of human nature, the consequences of which cannot easily be calculated. By means within reach of all we shall secure an advancement of humanity, and it will be possible for everyone to feel within him or her the growth of that sublime force which elevates morally and physically.

LIGHT SPREADING

Perhaps one day the dreams of Utopists may be realized and humanity will shake off the chains of materialism which yet hold us from what we think to be supernatural knowledge, but which, in reality, is already in us, only waiting to be discerned. Who knows? Perhaps prisons may become unnecessary when we shall have learned how even evil and evil-doing can be overcome by suggestion. Backward children will be made normal, and the wayward ones taught through their subconscious mind to become good and useful citizens.

People are still ignorant of the immense benefits to the individual and to society to be obtained by autosuggestion employed for curative and educational purposes. But the light is spreading. And it will not be long before the new science has its place definitely among psychological, sociological and medical studies.

Perhaps the study and practice of autosuggestion is destined to make swifter strides on this side of the Atlantic than in Europe. I do not know. I do know, however, that hundreds of American men and women have not hesitated to cross the ocean in order to probe my system at Nancy. Today I find myself among a host of friends and followers, all keen to help the propagation of the idea of autosuggestion. Converts of such energy must necessarily be a tremendous power, so that I am quite prepared to see the science pushed forward and developed more extensively in the dynamic atmosphere of the new world than in my own country.

First school of technology in this country was Renselaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, N. Y., founded in 1824.

Se Preparan para Recibir en Manila a los Refugiados Rusos

MANILA, enero 13.—Ha sido enviado un destroyer americano para que vigile la llegada de la flota blanca del Almirante Stark, con los refugiados rusos que salieron de Shanghai y que se espera lleguen dentro de uno o dos días a Manila. El Cónsul Americano de Shanghai comunicó al General Wood, Gobernador de las Filipinas, que la marina china había confiscado todas las armas y municiones de los barcos rusos. El Gobernador general ha ordenado que se prepare un campamento en la estación de cuarentena de Mariveles para los desterrados siberianos. Es posible, sin embargo, que los buques hagan escala en algún puerto chino antes de llegar aquí, pues algunos de ellos, según se dice, están en malas condiciones marineras.

NOTAS LOCALES

Dos que Ciegan por Tomar Licor Clandestino

Murieron dos individuos y cegaron otros dos de resultas de beber licor venenoso, según informe rendido ayer al Detective George Contreras, de las fuerzas del Fiscal. En San Fernando fué donde ocurrieron estas desgracias. El referido detective ha comenzado una averiguación del asunto, y ayer, ya tarde, aprehendió a Raymond Campus, de Pacoima, a quien acusa de violar la Ley Wright. No logró saberse ayer quienes eran las víctimas, sobre cuyos nombres se guarda reserva mientras se termina la averiguación.

Se Lleva a la Capital el Asunto de la Estación Central

El asunto de la estación central terminal de la Plaza, veterano de doce campos de batalla, va rumbo a Washington para que falle sobre él el tribunal de última instancia; la Comisión del Comercio entre Estados.

Richard Sachse, ingeniero en jefe de la Comisión de Ferrocarriles del Estado, y autor del dictamen Sachse, en el que se fundó la orden de que se hiciera una central-terminal en la Plaza o cerca de ella, salió ayer para Washington, a fin de presentar la cuestión ante la suprema autoridad en punto a problemas de transporte. De modo extraoficial representa a la Ciudad de Los Angeles en ese negocio, y lleva consigo copia del dictamen Sachse, así como una solicitud por la que se ruega a la Comisión que preste lo más pronto posible su atención a este asunto. Llévase el caso ante la Comisión del Comercio entre Estados, a fin de que este Cuerpo lo estudie mientras la Suprema Corte del Estado decide si ha de reconsiderar o nó su reciente fallo, que fué desfavorable a la orden que había dictado la Comisión de Ferrocarriles del Estado.

El Alcalde Va a Mover el Asunto de la Nueva Carta Constitutiva

A medio día del próximo miércoles va a iniciar el Alcalde Cryer en el Club de la Ciudad su campaña en pro de una nueva constitución municipal, pues, durante los ocho meses que han estado en su puesto los actuales munícipes, nada han hecho para iniciar los procedimientos que exige la obtención de la nueva carta. Hace un año, el Alcalde Cryer, en su mensaje anual, senaló las deficiencias de la actual constitución, que fué redactada en 1888, cuando Los Angeles tenía 50,000 habitantes, y que está ahora llena de enmiendas y es del todo insuficiente para el gobierno de nuestra actual población. En el próximo mensaje anual, que será publicado dentro de dos semanas, así como en el discurso que pronunciará el próximo miércoles en el citado club, el Alcalde volverá a llamar la atención hacia la necesidad de tener nueva carta, y es probable que él mismo inicie los procedimientos pidiendo al Ayuntamiento en mensaje especial que se sirva convocar una junta de propietarios.

GIRL'S TREATISE ON MEN CUTTING

Both Sexes Sprung from Ape, She Admits, but Women Sprung Farther

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 13.—El Granito Weekly, publication of the local union high school, contains a composition on men written by a little girl, which is illuminating.

"Men are what women marry. They drink and smoke and swear, but do not go to church. Perhaps if they wore bonnets they would. They are more logical than women and also more zoological. Both men and women sprung from monkeys, but the women sprung further than men."

Rare Editions Often Found in Gift Volumes

Rare first editions are sometimes brought to light in bundles of books given to the Public Library by persons removing to other cities, according to library officials.

Recently, in a dusty pile thus given, a first edition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in two volumes, was discovered, and similar surprises are frequent, it is said. A first edition of Walt Whitman, valued at $40, was unearthed in a collection donated to the library, and though many of the books are worthless intrinsically, library attendants are always on the alert for the occasional really valuable book.

With such books, it is the policy of the library to restore them as nearly as possible to their original condition. The library solicits book donations of every description, and has a truck which calls for them.

WONDERS IF EARLE USES ANY ACTORS

Mary Pickford Puts Barbs to Her Comment on Words of Ferdinand Pinney

Mary Pickford has her dander up concerning Ferdinand Pinney Earle's statement about "the new art and the old" in connection with the two "Fausts" respectively they are to make.

"Ferdinand Pinney Earle says that, in making 'Faust,' he 'represents the new art,' while I 'represent the old,'" said Mary indignantly. "How does he figure that out? I have Svend Gard, who put 'Johannes Kreisler' on in New York, and who has an international reputation as an artist, and I have Irvin Martin, to superintend the art end of the production.

"You know," Mary smiled just a wee bit sarcastically, "I should think Mr. Earle would need actors as well as art in the making of 'Faust!'"

Ouch! That was rather a fine-edged blow, but next minute she smoothed it characteristically.

"I think Mr. Earle is a fine artist, and I admire his work, but I don't quite understand his attitude. There is nothing either new or old in art. I was reading 'Marcus Aurelius' last night, and he says if we look into the mouth of a lion at the right angle, we shall behold beauty. I don't agree about the lion," Mary laughed, "but I get what he means."

"Perhaps," was suggested, "Mr. Earle means that his 'Faust' will be done against a background of paintings."

"Well, I shall have paintings, too," averred Mary. "Can you imagine anything finer than the paintings used in 'Robin Hood?'" Mary advertised "Robin Hood" and Irvin Martin at one and the same time. "I have had Mr. Earle assist me on some of my pictures, and I have great regard for his artistry, but I certainly wish he would explain his attitude on 'the new and the old art!'"

Sunset Canyon Club Tangle in Armistice Stage

After the annual meeting yesterday afternoon of members and directors of the Sunset Canyon Country Club, it was decided to appoint committees to settle differences, and to hear the committees' reports at 2 p.m. on the 20th inst.

About 1000 members attended the meeting, held at the clubhouse near Burbank. There was heated discussion on the question of approving the minutes of recent directors' meetings.

The meeting adjourned without approving the minutes, and will consider the matter again next Saturday, after the committees appointed to review the directors' acts have reported.

The meeting on the 20th inst., will not be held at the club, but in Los Angeles, at a place to be designated later.

"TOUCHING" OFFICER LANDS MAN IN JAIL

ASSERTED PANHANDLER POSED AS SAILOR TRYING TO GET BACK TO SHIP

Making his plea for money to the wrong man after assertedly working his stunt successfully throughout Southern California, landed Jose Reyes, 23 years of age, in the City Jail yesterday evening on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Detective Lieutenant George E. Smith arrested Reyes when the latter accosted him and asked for $5. Reyes is asserted to have posed as a sailor from San Francisco and to have requested funds to get back to his ship to avoid naval punishment.

Numerous complaints in regard to Reyes had been received by the police department and also by Captain of Marines S. W. Wieber of San Diego.

BANK JOB FOR J[illegible]NSON

Gov. Richardson Expected to Name His Former Chief Deputy to Succeed Jonathan S. Dodge

BY KYLE D. PALMER
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13.—Frank M. Johnson of Los Angeles, former chief deputy in the office of the State Treasurer under Friend W. Richardson is believed to be the choice of Gov. Richardson for State Bank Superintendent to succeed Jonathan S. Dodge, whose retirement, it is rumored, will take place within the next thirty days.

The bank superintendency carries with it a salary of $10,000 a year and is one of the most important offices subject to executive appointment.

Mr. Dodge, formerly County Supervisor of Los Angeles was appointed Bank Superintendent more than a year ago by former Gov. Stephens. Gov. Richardson has declined either to deny or confirm reports that the resignation of Dodge will be tendered. The incumbent holds office at the pleasure of the Governor and ceases to function as soon as the Governor signs the commission of a successor.

Mr. Johnson, who was Mr. Richardson's chief deputy in the State Treasurer's office for nearly seven years, is a boyhood and school friend of the Governor. The two lived on adjoining farms in San Bernardino county, and as young men received their early business training there, Mr. Richardson as the editor of a newspaper and Mr. Johnson as an employee in a local bank. Mr. Johnson resigned a position as cashier of the Farmers Exchange Bank in San Bernardino several years ago and moved to Los Angeles, where he engaged in the real-estate business.

Later he assumed charge of the cashier's division of the Los Angeles branch of the State Motor Vehicle Department and from that position was appointed chief deputy in the Treasurer's office.

Since coming to Sacramento, Mr. Johnson has represented Mr. Richardson upon numerous occasions at various important conventions, conferences and banquets and has, it is said, made a special study of banking laws and conditions in the State.

Although declining to indicate his decision in the matter, the Governor said today that he has received communications from representative bankers in different sections of California recommending his former chief deputy for bank superintendent. Reports that Mr. Dodge would resign his position have been current both in Los Angeles and Sacramento for several months. It is said here that he plans to retire to assume more active charge of the business of the Cawston Ostrich Farm, of which he is the president.

He is also said to have under consideration a number of urgent offers to identify himself with certain influential banks.

Next in interest and importance to appointment of a bank superintendent is the appointment of a successor to E. C. Cooper, appointed as one of his last official acts by former Gov. Stephens.

Mr. Cooper was named to succeed Boss Alex McCabe, who resigned a few days before Richardson took office. Although a communication from Mr. Richardson withdrawing appointment of Mr. Cooper has been submitted to the State Senate, it is understood that the Attorney-General has rendered a decision to the effect that Senate action in the matter is not required, the official withdrawal of the appointment sufficing. This decision not only covered withdrawal of the name of the former Governor's insurance commission appointee, but also disposed of the question relating to Mr. Richardson's withdrawal of eleventh-hour appointments made by his predecessor on the State Prison Board and the Board of Charities and Corrections.

Gov. Richardson today received a telegram from Chief Justice Curtis D. Wilbur of the State Supreme Court announcing that he had qualified as chief justice, thus creating a vacancy for associate justice. Chief Justice Wilbur congratulated the Governor upon his decision to name Superior Judge Louis W. Myers of Los Angeles to fill the vacancy.

Judge Myers is expected to arrive in San Francisco Monday to take the oath of office. His appointment to the Supreme Court was certified today by the Governor and was forwarded to the court office in the Bay City.

The Legislature is expected to begin actual business tomorrow when final organization will be effected through appointment by Speaker Merriam of his committees in the lower house. He announced today that he has virtually completed preparations of the fifty-two regular committees and that so far as possible he has observed the wishes of members in naming committee chairmen and personnel.

BLINDED BY BAD BOOZE IN VALLEY

Two San Fernando Men Die and Two Lose Sight When They Drink Bootleg

Two men are dead and two others are blind as the result of drinking poison liquor, according to a report made yesterday to Detective George Contreras of the District Attorney's forces.

The fatalities and blinding occurred in San Fernando, it was stated.

Detective Contreras has started an investigation of the report, and late yesterday arrested Raymond Campus of Pacoima, on charges of violating the Wright Act.

The identities of the victims were not made known yesterday, pending the outcome of the investigation.

Genus Vagrant Taken to Jail by Round-up Squad

All loiterers coming under the category of "bums, hoboes, vagrants, wobblies and idlers" were ordered arrested yesterday evening by Chief of Police Oaks.

Nearly 100 men were brought to jail by vagrancy charges by squads working under the direction of Sergt. Lane and Officers Sheffied and Heintz.

Nearly twenty-five of the prisoners were taken at Pershing Square. Complaints had been made by women that they were insulted by idlers while passing through the square.

Approximately fifty men were taken into custody at the Plaza. Railroad yards and other retreats of the genus vagrant were searched.

The round-up continued last night.

BULLDOGS WALK OVER SAGEHENS

Redlands Opens Season With 42-to-21 Victory

Oxy Smothers Whittier Five by 13-to-10 Count

Cubs Humble Calteck Quintet in 40-to-15 Game

Coach Guy Daniels's high-powered Redlands University basketball five wiped up the Redlands court with the basket tossers of Pomona College last night in the first game of the Southern California conference and finally ended the painful slaughter when the score was 42 to 21 in the Bulldog's favor.

Redlands had the lead all the way and the fine shooting of Mellette, Redland's star forward put the game on ice for the home team long before the first half was well started. Ten baskets were shot by this young man from the most difficult positions on the court.

DYER IS STAR

Braven Dyer, Pomona grid and court star played the big game of the Pomona team. Although he only played a short time he managed to snag the ball three different times and shoot baskets each time. In addition to this he shot a pair of fouls, making a total of eight points during his share of the game.

The line-up and score of each man follows:

REDLANDS (42)	G	FT	F	POMONA (21)	G	FT	F
Mellette, f	10	4	0	Lowder, f	2	2	2
Jensen, f	1	0	1	Arnold, f	1	0	1

Score at end of first half: Redlands, 42; Pomona, 21. Hall, referee.

Occidental scored a great victory last night by defeating the Whittier Poets on their own court by the score of 13 to 10 in one of the best games ever played at Whittier.

In the first thirteen minutes of play there was no score made by either side, and at the end of the first period the score stood 3 to 2 in favor of Oxy.

Wonderful guarding by both teams was one of the big features of the game. No man could come within shooting distance of either basket without being set upon by the majority of the other team.

Ranvona played a whirlwind game for the home squad by making a total of six points by means of a field goal and a pair of free throws. At center he played a fine game, keeping the Tigers in hot water most of the time. Wagner, star forward for Oxy, did most of the honors for the Tiger squad by piling up three field goals and four three throws.

The line-up and individual scores follow:

OXY (13)	G	FT	F	WHITTIER (10)	G	FT	F
Riley, f	1	0	2	Compton, f	0	0	2
Wagner, f	3	4	0	Ranvona, f (C.)	2	2	1

REDLANDS GETS READY FOR MEET

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 13.—Lloyd Yount, athletic manager at the University of Redlands, has just received definite word as to the date of the annual track meet of the South Pacific Amateur Athletic Union which was awarded to the University of Redlands this year. This meet is to be held on April 21 and it is expected that Charles Paddock will run and if he does he will be the stellar attraction of the affair. The university field will be in Class A shape for work has already been started on the track.

ATHENS IS WINNER IN FAST TILT

Rough Battle Captured by the Visitors at Score of 24 to 20

In a game that was a cross between football, wrestling, boxing and anything but basketball, the Oakland Athens Club quintet evened it up on the Los Angeles Athletic Club five and won, 24 to 20, in the club gym last night. This was the second contest played between the two teams, the Mercury cagemen finishing on top in last night's encounter.

The feature of last night's battle was the attempted refereeing of a large portly gentleman by the name of Mitchell who thought basketball was supposed to be played with a basket. Mitchell called but three fouls during the whole game, which was rougher than the wake of Miss Detroit in violent action, and the wrath of the assembled multitude was brought down upon him time and again.

The Northern squad completely outplayed the locals and ran up 12 points before the Club men had annexed a single digit. During the middle of the first period the Los Angeles Athletic Club players started finding the hoop and the score at half time was 16 to 10. The second half was a rough and tumble affair that found the Mercury men in possession of the ball most of the time but unable to cage it for points. Eggleston of the winners and Laswell of the L.A.A.C. starred. The line-ups:

Golf Association Picks July for National Open

America to Send Best Team Abroad This Year

Meeting of Committee is Very Harmonious

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PITTSBURG (Pa.) Jan. 13.—The United States Golf Association in annual session here late today adopted the report of the nominating committee without a dissenting vote, heard a decision of the executive committee, to send a team abroad this year, and set July as the time for the national open-championship tournament.

The meeting, in the term applied by leading delegates, was one "of peace and harmony" and was featured by an address by J. Frederick Byers of the Allegheny Country Club, Pittsburg, who was re-elected president.

TO MUSTER BEST

Mr. Byers, in referring to the invasion of Europe by American golfers in 1923, declared that the United States would be represented by the strongest team it could muster, though British and Amerlona tournament dates conflict. Some of the leading American players, he said, would be unable to make the trip because they desired to take part in the home competitions.

In deciding to hold the United States open championship in July, the association favored the request of the Professional Golfers Association that the tournament be held a month later than usual.

IN STATUS QUO

The steel-shaft club, the subject of widespread discussion since its introduction, will remain in its present status, so far as the amateurs are concerned. President Byers told the delegates that members of the executive committee and a number of leading amateur players would "try the shafts" next summer and report their findings to a committee. Until the association is certain that steel-shaft clubs are for "the best interests of the game," it will ban such clubs in national championships.

The executive committee, President Byers said, did not see fit at this time to recommend an affiliation with the American Amateur Union.

The only mention of commercialism in amateur ranks came from the president, who declared that "golf must be kept clean and the spirit of commercialism kept out of it. There can be no such thing as a semiprofessional in golf."

UNIFORM RULES

Leading delegates spoke of an international code for golfers and the need of uniform rules for Great Britain and the United States.

Robert A. Gardner, chairman of the committee on selection of courses for 1923 championship, tournaments, announced the following dates for the events: Amateur championship, Flossmoor County Club, Flossmore, Ill., September 10 to 16.

National open tournament, Inwood County Club, Inwood, L. I., July 9 to July 13. Public links championship, East Potomac Park, Washington, D. C., June 26 to June 29. The Midiron Club of Pittsburg entertained the visiting golfers at its annual banquet tonight.

MAKIN GETS START WITH VISALIA CLUB

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VISALIA Jan. 14.—Hal Makin, who has announced that he will join the St Louis Cardinals March 1st, broke into the San Joaquin Valley Baseball league last season with the Visalia Pirates, later going to the Fresno Tigers with whom he finished the season. Makin got into his stride with the Tigers and Visalia regretted his departure from the local lineup after he was released.

Makin was recommended to Ty Cobb by "Dutch" Leonard of Fresno but had already agreed to go with St. Louis and could not get his release after he learned that Cobb wanted him.

NORDENHOLT COPS GOLF CLUB TOURNEY

George Nordenholt of the Los Angeles Country Club sweepstakes walked off with the honors in class A of the Los Angeles Country Club sweepstakes tournament, held over the course of the club yesterday afternoon. Nordenholt's score was, 4-6-2 up.

First place in class B was copped by C. A. Saint also of the Los Angeles Club with the score of 11-9-2 down. A large number of players took part in the affair and a number of fine scores were turned in.

SPORT SHRAPNEL
By
HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Below are some extracts from an article in an eastern paper relative to the U.S.C.-Penn State game on New Year's. It was mailed to me by John E. Alman, principal of the South Pasadena High School, who in turn received it from his brother, who still resides in the enemy's country. The latter is said to be very skeptical regarding the merits of Coast football. John E. Alman, however, while not a native son, and despite the fact that he is an alumnus of Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., is 110 per cent for California. Hence these family arguments.

Herewith are presented a few excerpts from the article of aforementioned New York writer who at the very start deftly shifts the scene of battle from Pasadena to Palo Alto, but desists before substituting the Panthers for the Lions as U.S.C.'s opponents. Hark:

"Taking the glory of triumph from the victor is not a pleasant occupation, but it sometimes seems necessary. On New Year's Day at Palo Alto, under a glaring California sun, the University of Southern California eleven defeated the East, represented by the Penn State aggregation. But there are five reasons why Penn State's exhibition against Southern California cannot be taken as a criterion of what the East is capable of in point of presenting formidable gridiron teams.

"Playing in ten games last season the Lions were defeated three times and tied once. Navy, Pennsylvania and Pittsburg were her conquerors and Syracuse held her even. The most poignant phase of the game at Palo Alto was the fact that Hugo Bezdek used no more than five of his regulars in the struggle. Bezdek's idea was to give those men whom he hopes to play on his 1923 aggregation some needed experience, but at the same time the mentor did not treat the East and those who paid to see the game squarely. It can almost be said that Southern California virtually defeated Penn State's second team.

"Accounts of the game show that the inexperienced playing of most of Bezdek's players caused the defeat of the team. The Lion's mentor sent only three regulars on the field for the beginning of the tussle, and for his folly his charges were set down handily. As George Walsh pointed out, the warm climate played no little part in the defeat of Penn State. Walsh contends that if it had not been for the heat of the day that Penn State would have made a far better showing."

I have seen alibis flying rather thick, but never before witnessed them fired out of a scatter gun. Much of the foregoing will read like news, not only to Hugo Bezdek, but to those who were present.

Not only was the sun broiling at no time during the day, but there hardly was enough left of it to do any broiling at the late hour at which the Lions appeared in the arena. While, when the elevens finally faced each other, it was far from cold, yet it was a fair football temperature, and as the game progressed it became rather chilly.

That paucity of regulars also comes as a distinct shock. Hugo himself probably will be surprised to find that he regarded this as only a practice game. But the truth will out. And now it is recalled that Hugo confided to friends that he didn't care any more about winning that game than he does of retaining his right arm, his eyesight, his hearing, his appetite and the power of speech.

One rather wearies of hearing how our matchless climate ruins visiting athletes, when it is a widely known fact that people come here from all over the world to regain their health. In view of this, many will contend that football teams coming here from the East should be at least 75 per cent stronger and healthier than when playing in their own injurious climate.

How about Gonzaga vs. West Virginia on Christmas Day at San Diego? Gonzaga emerged from the snowdrifts to play this game, but refused to be enervated by the climate as indicated by their rip-roaring finish.

One of the most interesting suggestions for scoring football games in such a way as to reflect the actual merits of the teams is given to me by Father James Linden, athletic director at Loyola College, and a former backfield star at Marquette.

Under the system suggested by him, touchdowns would not all be of the same value. Their value would depend on the manner of their execution, and the breaks would be a less vital factor. Under present conditions, a team may play superior football for the major part of a game, and then lose through a few unfortunate breaks. For a touchdown made with the aid of a fumble, Father Linden would allow four points. When a forward pass is intercepted and the ball carried to a touchdown, five points would be scored. A touchdown made by carrying the ball across without the aid of any sort of a break would count six points as now. He doesn't think much of the goal after touchdown, but if continued, would prefer to see it under the old system. Frankly, it is difficult to see where the present system of trying for a point after touchdown has added anything to the game.

A GOOD TIME WAS HAD BY ALL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VISALIA, Jan. 13.—A three-hour battle, during which 156 games were played by sixteen players from Porterville and sixteen from Viralia, was played here last night to a tie for the horseshoe pitching championship of Tulare county. Practically the entire town turned out for the event.

The game was held under de luxe conditions. Sixteen courts were laid out on orders of the City Council; special lights were installed and a giant stove placed on the grounds at the old Tipton-Lindsay School Grounds, to keep the players warm between periods with the horseshoes.

The match was under the auspices of the Visalia Equine Footwear Association. Hot coffee was served to keep up the strength of the players during the gruelling contest.

After each of the thirty-two players had pitched sixteen games apiece it was found that each had a score of 2211, leaving the championship undecided. This is the most unusual score ever turned up at a horseshoe pitching match, experts declare. Both teams now challenge the world.

Midwinter Handicap to be at L.A.C.C.

Today at the Montecito Country Club the Big Four of golf will tangle in a matched play. Sarazen and Jock Hutchison will travel thirty-six holes with Hagen and Kirkwood. From the playing of the four men of late it looks as if Hagen and Kirkwood had a little the better of the deal but as in most sports the end is never over until the last ball has been sunk.

A few days ago at the L.A.A.C. Walter Hagen, one of the best players the country has ever seen, played a foursome with three of the club members. In the morning round he played superb golf with long drives, trick approaches and perfect putting. In the afternoon Walter went out on the course alone and put up a very poor exhibition of golf.

It is only natural that a player can not do his best at all times so that if one or the other of the big four are off form for this match they will give their two opponents a big advantage.

AT RIVERSIDE

In order to revive interest in golf among the women of the Tahquitz Country Club, at Riverside, a special golf tea was given yesterday afternoon. Many of the women golfers were present and they discussed plans for a regular ladies' day tournament to be held at intervals at the club.

The club has a fine links but for some reason the women have been backward in using them. It is hoped that in the future the women's department will equal that of the men.

AT POMONA

As an added feature of the weekend play a sweepstakes tournament will be held in addition to the regular Saturday and Sunday play at the Mountain Meadows Country Club.

A large crowd played in the ladies' day tourney held at this club last week. A great many more members turned out for the play that was expected. However the tourney was pulled off without a hitch and was pronounced a great success by the greens committee.

Miss Carita Miller won first prize with a score of 55. Mrs. Carl Millen, Mrs. H. L. Sheets and Mrs. W. D. Fredericks tied for second place with only a few strokes to the rear of the leader. Mrs. Orin McClintock won first place for the low net score with a score of 27. Mrs. J. M. Reynolds was second with 33, Mrs. J. C. Bowen copped third with 34, and Mrs. Paul Kinney and Mrs. T. J. Tomlinson tied for fourth place, each getting a 35.

Because of the success of the tournament another battle will be staged in the near future by the women.

AT CALIFORNIA

Last week while Johnny Smith, Bill Ware, Linden Burzell, and Johnny Bassler were indulging in a harmless foursome at the California Country Club, one of the fanciest shots in golfdom was pulled by Bassler. After a nice drive on the fourth hole and with but 125 yards to go to the cup Bassler hauled off with his mashie and the ball went sailing. The four players walked up to the green but could not find Bassler's ball. Finally one of the players looked into the cup and there was the missing ball. It had dropped into the cup from the air without touching the ground. It is rumored about the club that Johnny will take up bomb dropping in the next war.

IN LOS ANGELES

Charles Johnson, pro at the Omaha Country Club, is in Los Angeles to compete in the open championships to be held at Flintridge. Johnson is well known among local golfers and is welcomed to the city by a large circle of friends.

AT D.A.C.C.

On January 20 at the Los Angeles Country Club, the annual midwinter handicap tournament will be run off. A great many golfers at this club have signed up for the tourney and the committee is busy arranging handicaps. There will be an 18-hole medal play with a 64-hole qualifying round and a 32-hole consolation play off. This midwinter event is probably one of the biggest events the club holds and as always it is expected to be a big success.

GEORGE VASSELL TO WRESTLE AD SANTEL

George Vassell, 185-pound grappler of Houston, Tex., will be the next opponent of Ad Santel, light heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, it was announced last night by Kenneth Dix. The pair will meet January 22 in the Philharmonic Auditorium.

Vassell is a well-known mat man and is considered as Santel's toughest contender for the light heavyweight crown. John Brown, the famous wrestling bear, will also appear on the same card with Santel and Vassell.

VERNON GUN CLUB TO HOLD SPECIAL SHOOT

Keen competition for the beautiful take-home trophies is looked for today at the Vernon Gun Club, when a special shoot is put on by President A. W. Bruner.

The affair will call for 100 targets in four events of twenty-five targets to each event. All will be shot at sixteen yards, the high guns to haul down the trophies.

FIRPO OFFERED BOUT IN GOTHAM

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Promoter Tex Rickard today cabled Luis Firpo, South American heavyweight boxing champion, an offer for a match with either Floyd Johnson of Iowa, or Bill Brennan of Chicago, to be held about the middle of March at Madison Square Garden. Rickard promised the Argentine pugilist a title bout with Jack Dempsey within six months if he emerges victor in this contest.

JEFFERSON PARK TO OPEN SEASON SOON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 13.—Announcement was made this afternoon of a spring meeting at Jefferson Park to open February 14, which it is proposed to run until St. Patrick's Day, March 17.

Gad Bryan, promoter of the course, plans to offer a $10,000 derby on the closing day as an attraction to horsemen.

It is planned to offer a $1000 handicap daily, as well as five races with $750 added. There will only be six races as during the fall meeting at the Jefferson course. Joseph A. Murphy has been asked to act as presiding steward.

SAGEHENS VANQUISH POMONA LEGION FIVE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—Welch, the center of La Verne College, was the star of the college-Pomona American Legion basketball game held today in which the varsity defeated the veterans by a score of 33-21. His work with Beckner did the scoring for the college.

White, Gillette and Herriing played the best games for the Legion. The Legion had the small end of a 12-to-9 score at the end of the first half, but played better during the second half making five baskets in the last three minutes of play.

The line-ups were:

La Verne—Beckner, f; Fries, f; Welch, c; Brooks, g; Dicker, g.

Legion—Gillette, f; Blake, f; Herriing, c; Reynolds, g; Williams, g.

O'DOWD AND MALONE TO MEET IN ST. PAUL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) Jan. 13.—Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, middleweight champion of the world, in New York State, and Jock Malone, also of St. Paul, have been signed to meet in a ten-round, no-decision bout here on January 26, it was announced tonight.

Invitations to Compete at Great Penn Relay Sent to American and Foreign Colleges

OLD CARNIVAL LATE IN APRIL

Oxford, Cambridge Among Invited Guests

Greater Number of Entries Expected This Year

Long List of Events Carded for Big Festival

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—Invitations to compete at the great relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania on Friday and Saturday, April 27 and 28, were sent to colleges and universities of this and other countries today. Foreign institutions invited included Oxford and Cambridge of England; University of Havana, St. Louis University of the Hawaiian Islands and [illegible] of the larger colleges in [illegible]. Every State university and practically all of the other big colleges in this country will receive invitations.

[illegible] hundred and twelve colleges and more than 400 schools were represented at the meet last year. George W. Orton, manager of the carnival, said tonight that indications pointed to an even greater number this year.

The program, Orton said, would include a dozen relay championships at various distances for colleges and schools, two individual championships, a two-mile international [illegible] and the pentathlon, in addition to the usual long list of special track and field events. To relieve the schedule for Saturday, he said the middle-Atlantic conference A. A. and the South Atlantic Intercollegiate A. A. one mile relay championships would be moved to the first day.

HESS CONSIDERED FOR LONG BEACH JOB

Whether William Hess, freshman coach at the University of Southern California, will fill the [illegible] of Eddie Kienholtz at Long Beach next season in the capacity of football coach or not, is a much [illegible] question at present in the [illegible] city. The Trojan mentor has been seriously considered by the [illegible] aggregation as a successor to the present mentor, who [illegible] go to Santa Clara next season, but as yet no decision has been arrived at.

Hess had signed a contract to [illegible] coach the frosh for their [illegible] struggles, it is reported. If [illegible] is so he will have to get the permission of the U.S.C. authorities before he can cancel his contract.

JOHNNY JONES JOINS CARLO CURTIS STRING

Johnny Jones, a 112-pound mitter from San Francisco, has placed himself under the managerial wing of Carlo Curtis, local fight promoter. Jones has fought many ring battles in the North and was formerly under Jimmy [illegible] tutelage. Curtis's charge [illegible] to meet Benny Marks at [illegible] or Vernon.

MURPHY TRIES TO REGAIN HIS RECORD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Johnny Murphy of Portland, Or., former Notre Dame athletic star, will travel more than 600 miles this winter to attend indoor meets, in an effort to regain possession of the world's indoor running high jump record.

BECKETT HOPES TO FACE CHAMP

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SOUTHAMPTON, Jan. 13. Joe Beckett, in training here, stated today that negotiations had been completed for him to fight Jack Dempsey in the United States next fall if Beckett defeated Georges Carpentier in their bout in London in May. It is understood that a representative of Tom O'Rourke, promoter, offered Beckett an unqualified contract for a meeting with Dempsey, but while they agreed on the financial terms, the British champion insisted upon fighting Carpentier first. Beckett plans to sail for America in June if he beats Carpentier.

Feylance Wins Sprint Affair by One Length

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 13. — Feylance, one of the best sprinters in the Rose stables, defeated a great field of short-distance runners at Tijuana this afternoon and incidentally hung up his third straight victory, Judge Pryor finished second and Krewer third.

Feylance was reserved until the stretch and when given his head easily overtook the leaders to win by a length and a half. The next four horses were noses apart.

Motor Cop, who has run disappointingly this season, set the early pace but the heavy impost for 122 pounds told in the final eighth.

Another favorite to go under was Woodie Montgomery in the seventh, a nose verdict going to Buckhorn II at fat odds. Pewaukee was the big surprise of the day, winning the first race by a wide margin from the popular choice, Sheik.

First race, five furlongs: Peruchen, 107 (Rose) won; Sheba, 105 (Stevens) second; Pickle Fancy, 105 (Cantrell) third. Time—1:01 4-5.

Second race, five furlongs: Melchoir, 99 (Long) won; Noonhour, 99 (D. Hurn) second; Gallus Berry, 112 (Fletcher) third. Time—1:01 3-5.

Third race, five furlongs: Lady Bourbon, 103 (Miller) won; Ross Atkin, 105 (Thomas) second; Caveman, 116 (D. Hurn) third. Time—1:01 4-5.

Fourth race, five and one-half furlongs: Brian Kent, 115 (Studer) won; Faber, 115 (Singleton) second; Miss Etna, 108 (Ferrier) third. Time—1:08.

Fifth race, six furlongs: Grace E., 110 (Buell) won; Polly Wale, 110 (Studer) second; Romulus, 118 (Pater) third. Time—1:13 3-5.

Sixth race, five furlongs—Feylance, 115 (Claver,) won; Judge Pryor, 110 (Pool,) second; Krewer, 107 (Taplin,) third. Time 0:59 4-5.

Seventh race, mile and one-sixteenth—Buckhorn II, 107 (Long,) won; Woodie Montgomery, 107 (Petzold,) second; Piedra, 107 (Stevens,) third. Time 1:47 3-5.

Eighth race, mile and one-quarter: Wise Judge, 113 (Petzold,) won; Judge David, 113 (Taplin,) second; Chick Barkley, 112 (Stevens,) third. Time 2:09.

RIDLEY AND KRAMER WILL MINGLE AGAIN

Bud Ridley will be sent against Danny Kramer again in the main event at Doyle's Vernon Arena next Tuesday night, according to the dictates of Matchmaker Wad Wadhams. Last week same ringsters met and Kramer was returned the victor after a very torrid session.

Young Farrell and Danny Dillon, 122-pounders of class, are lined up for the semi-wind-up. Both men possess science galore backed up by a healthy wallop, thereby assuring the spectators of a thrilling battle.

The remainder of the card follows: Johnny Webber vs. Abe Miskind, 135 pounds; Louie Garcia vs. Charley Burns, 135 pounds; Young Burns vs. Sunny Goodrich, 158 pounds; Jimmy O'Neil vs. Joe Medina, 135 pounds; Bob Evans vs. Benny Shannon, 128 pounds.

SOCCERITES TO FIGHT FOR LEAD

Athletic Club Eleven Meets Samson Tire Team

Local Uniteds Will Tangle With Scot Outfit

Maier Park Scene of Today's Thrilling Battles

Today's soccer scrap between the Athletic Club and the Samson Tire Company teams at Maier Park, Vernon, scheduled for 1 p. m. promises to be one of the hardest fought games of the year. The leadership of the league is the prize at stake, and both squads are primed for action. Each eleven is well fortified with stars ensuring scintillating plays that shuold keep spectators on their feet.

From all indications the match will certainly not be in the nature of a walkaway for either side. There would seem to be little to choose between either side, each having lost one contest.

MAY LEAD TO TITLE

A factor that will ever be in the minds of the athletes is that the victors will establish a lead that may be sufficient to carry them through to eventual league championship. The only other competitor that might cause them serious trouble is the L. A. Uniteds, and they are trailing two games behind. Having regard to the comparative strength of the teams a one-game lead at this stage of the season is a big advantage.

It has been definitely announced that Dr. Brix will be at center for the Athletic Club This should be good news for the followers of the club, who see in Brix one of the best and most dangerous forwards in the league.

Murray, et al., may have cause to worry when Brix gets going, although the tire men claim to have evolved a system of defense that will nullify much of this star center's work.

ACTION PROMISED

In the second half of the double bill the L. A. United will clash with the Scots, with the kickoff at 3 p. m. This game should be just as full of action as the opener, in that the Uniteds are expected to fight hard to register a win and gain a lap on the victim of the first tilt.

On past performances the Uniteds are favored to win. Their record is more impressive, and they show better finishing ability. The Scots, however, are clever territorially and should they show strength in goal area, will prove a worthy opponent.

Archie Brown, the main stay for the United, hopes to take his place at left back. His return will give confidence to his side. Brown was injured in the recent series at San Francisco, and has been on the side lines ever since.

CAPRICE WILL RACE TO HONOLULU SOON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Jan. 13.—Orders to get the yacht Caprice, owned by the Santa Barbara Yacht Club in trim earlier this spring than usual and returned from San Pedro to Santa Barbara for preparations to enter in a race from this city to Honolulu, were given today by Commodore A. R. Pedder of the club. The members will select the crew to make the voyage across the Pacific at a meeting in the following month. Plans for the trans-Pacific race are lining up strong, members say, with Honolulu yacht men cabling they are entering their best boats. Seattle also is anxious to participate, it is reported tonight.

Here is shown John J. Jawn was then the best utility man in the business, while "Your Uncle Wilbert" was the leading catcher. Ask Dad—he knows. Read about these men and many other prominent characters who made baseball history in the series by John McGraw, "My Thirty Years in Baseball," a feature printed exclusively in The Times daily except Sunday.

BASKET TEAM IMPROVES

Stanford Quintet Coming Along Nicely; Oliva Is Surprise of Season

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Jan. 13.—Though the Cardinals failed to score heavily in hte early encounters of the present hoop season, they did exhibit potential possibilities, and clearly they have men on the squad, who can be molded into a basket team of considerable power. Against Coach "Swede" Righter's College of the Pacific team Kerr's outfit won 18 to 9, Wednesday night, showing good defensive ball, minus any organized method of reaching the ring for field goals of their own.

Righter has done much for athletics at the College of the Pacific. His record in football at the San Jose institution during the 1922 season was impressive; and though his court team failed to beat Stanford, it played a good systematic game on the floor, and it will undoubtedly present a few surprises before the present schedule of hoop engagements is ended.

NOT IN FORM

The 1920 cage team, which won the conference championship for Stanford, defeated the present Cardinal organization in the latter's opening game, 23 to 19, last week. Though the old-timers were, of course, not up to the form displayed three years ago, they put up a brand of game equal to almost anything that Kerr's men may be expected to cope with in the progress of the next two months, and the fact that Capt. Rogers and assistants could hold the former champs to a close game indicates that they must be reckoned with in the race for 1923 honors.

Righter, Mills, Adams, Davies and Austin—as formidable an organization of basketers as ever assembled together, playing the Bob Evans system of court work with which they garnered the 1920 title, is no small dish with which to open a season, and Coach Kerr may be congratulated on the showing of his men against it.

LEADS LIST

Capt. Rogers leads the list of Standford players at forward, with Nip McHose, a diminutive running mate, as the most likely contender for honors at the complimentary position. McHose at present is troubled with poison oak, though he got into the College of the Pacific fracas and did good work for a time Wednesday. Austin is fighting hard for one of the forward posts.

Bob Janssen, last year's center, is again a candidate for the position, fighting with Pigott and Steel for the honor. Steel looks the most aggresive candidate, though he is inexperienced and will have to learn a great deal of the game to get into the real running.

"Cow" Oliva, a big guard, is the surprise of the season to date. Oliva plays the guard position as if he knew something about it, he usually manages to get his hands on the ball when it comes near his end of the floor, and when he get it he puts it into play among his teammates in the proper manner. The "Cow" is a good fighter, and keeps in the scrap all the time. He will be invaluable when he learns the game more thoroughly, and when he becomes a bit more clever at handling himself and the ball on the floor.

OUTCLASSES 'EM

McBurney, Anderson, Hooper, Pollard and Shipkey, all will stage a many cornered fight for the remaining guard post. Oliva outclasses them all right now, and if he improves with the season he will hold his job. Anderson has been starting at the other post. He fights hard, is effective, and whether or not he retains the position permanently, he will always get into the games.

What Stanford needs most is a real shooting forward. Rogers is an excellent floor forward. He plays the game and the system, advancing the ball well, and he provides many opportunities for shots by his running mate, but he himself does not get many chances to shoot, nor is he particularly good at goals from the field. McHose shoots well, but lacks Rogers's size and general effectiveness in the playing up and down the floor. Hoffman, had he not injuried a knee, might have proved just the man needed. Kerr will start a strong line-up against the Olympics tonight.

TRIPLE-A'S PLAY TODAY

Temporarily postponed because of the tie for fourth place between the Rose Room Dancers and Huntington Beach Merchants, interest in the Triple-A division play-off is, notwithstanding, spreading to all parts of Southern California.

A deadlock for second place also is now held by Sawtelle, due in the event that Huntington Beach puts Ventura on the skids this afternoon. If Ventura wins, thus assuring the second place to Sawtelle, the play-off will start according to schedule next Sunday afternoon.

Fred Fairbanks is slated to twirl against the oilmen while Guy Cooper will face the Beangrowers.

Two of the best bush-league squads in Southern California will get together down at Huntington Beach when the Rose Room Dancers and the Merchants' nine tangle horns.

While these important games are taking place, the Sawtelle Merchants will be meeting a tough foe in the Standard Murphy club at Sawtelle. Although this is an independent game, it means much for Larry Arnold's forces to put over a win. Two other strong independent games billed are the Universal Film nine vs. Cox-Haas at Tournament Park, and Shellenback's All-Stars playing the Shell Oil team at Signal Hill.

HANDBALL TOURNEY FOR MERCURIES SOON

Plans for the 40-year-and-over handball tournament which has been scheduled for the Los Angeles Athletic Club courts on January 22, have been completed according to Charlie Keppen. Entries are piling up as fast as the club officials can handle them and from all indications the tournament should be a great success.

Among the veterans who are to enter and who are expected to show some real class are: Jack Nest, Louis Alauzet, Jay Welton, Dr. J. Nevius, Dr. R. Chaffin, Ed Caister, W. V. Thompson, Ad. Frankel, Bob Brain, Major Ryus, Webb Brain and Harry Hudson.

Foresters Clash in Speedy Game at Glendora

Inglewood Legion Takes on Hynes Ball Crew

U.S.S. Oklahoma Nine Meets Oilers at Olinda

BY JOE BUSH

The speedy I.O. Forester club, holders of second place in the County League standings, will take a lay-off in their circuit today and tackle the Glendora Merchants on the latter squad's lot in the feature game of today's Greater Southern California Baseball Association round of play. The Foresters have been winning with regularity of late due to the efforts of their star battery, Fierke and Wiley, and will no doubt put up a great game with the fast Glendora crew today.

At Hynes the Inglewood American Legion nine will lock horns with the Hynes ball-tossers in what is expected to result in a nip-and-tuck battle. Both teams have been going great guns lately and one squad's winning streak is bound to terminate this afternoon. The hard-hitting U.S.S. Oklahoma club journeys to Olinda to mingle with the fast Amalgamated Oil Company bunch. Last Sunday the gobs proved to be a crew of fence-busters by routing the Bellflower pill-maulers after a speedy tussle.

Norwalk, the league leader in the county circuit, meets the Watts Eagles in what is expected to be a wild battle. Palomar and Bellflower also clash in an important game. The Hollywood Merchants tackle Azusa in the Azusa lot. Jimmy Cleary's Athletic Club nine hooks up with the Redondo-Hermosa Merchants at Hermosa Beach. The schedule of today's games follows:

COUNTY LEAGUE

Lynwood vs. Downey, at Downey.
Palomar vs. Bellflower, at Bellflower.
Watts Eagles vs. Norwalk, at Norwalk.
Inglewood Legion 188 vs. Hynes, at Hynes.

CITY LEAGUE

Southgate vs. Manchester, at Thirty-second and Long Beach avenue (morning.)
Los Angeles Chinese vs. Fraternal Brotherhood, at Thirty-second and Long Beach avenue (afternoon.)
New Methods vs. Latins.
L. A. Japanese vs. Salt Lake Tigers.
Harper-Reynolds vs. Kant-Skore Pistons, at Ross-Snyder No. 2.

INDEPENDENT GAMES

Hollywood Merchants vs. Azusa, at Azusa.
Cleary Athletic Club vs. Redondo-Hermosa Merchants, at Hermosa Beach.
I.O.F. vs. Glendora, at Glendora.
U.S.S. Oklahoma vs. Amalgamated Oil, at Olinda.
Oldham's All-Stars vs. White Kings, at White Sox Park.
White Sox vs. Balboa Park, at San Diego.

Irving Long, star of the Lincoln High School basketball team, was elected 1923 football captain last Friday night, at the annual banquet of the letter men of the high school.

JEWTRAW SETS WORLD RECORD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BINGHAMPTON (N. Y.) Jan. 13. — Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, N. Y., New York State ice-skating champion, established a new world's record in winning the three-quarter mile Adirondack gold-cup championship here today in 2:03 4-5. Jewtraw was hard pressed all the way by Ed Corcoran of Johnson City, who finished second, inches behind the winner. Jewtraw's mark bettered by nearly four seconds the former record established in 1921 by William Steinmetz of Chicago at Lake Placid.

White Kings, Pirrone Stars Tangle Today

A choice baseball tit-bit will be served to baseball fans today when Joe Pirrone's squad of All-Stars take on the White Kings, speedy local semipro club, in a game at the White Sox Park. The White Kings have cleaned up most of the local bush clubs in this neighborhood and are all primed to take the measure of Pirrone's galaxy of onion maulers.

Bob McGraw, who was a sensation in the American Association with Minneapolis last year, has been signed by the White Kings especially to twirl today's struggle and with him in the box the Kings feel confident they will come out on top.

Yesterday afternoon "Red" Oldham's All-Star took a 9-to-4 victory over the White Sox at the Sox Park due mainly through the heavy hitting of Manush, Smith and Bodie. Ward and Carr hit well for the colored boys. Pirrone featured in the field with a pair of sensational catches. The score:

TRIAL SUCCESS FOR HELICOPTER

Army Air Service Develops New Flying Device

Machine Rises Straight From Ground Six Feet

War Department Sees Hope of Development

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Announcement that the Army Air Service has developed a helicopter and made successful flights in the machine at McCook Field at Dayton, O., was made tonight by the War Department.

The duration of the experimental flight was one minute and forty-two seconds, during which the machine rose straight from the ground and was maneuvered at will of the operator at an altitude of six feet. It descended and landed easily.

"In flight," the War Department statement said, "it was steady, and the landing was easily accomplished. The helicopter demonstrated a high degree of inherent stability. This flight was witnessed by many Army officials and employees of McCook Field, and while the duration of the flight was less than two minutes it will be remembered that the first airplane flight in a heavier-than-air machine lasted only fifty-nine seconds."

WORK SECRET

The helicopter was constructed by the Army Air Service and designed by Dr. G. De Bothezat, under whose personal supervision it was made. Work was started secretly in July, 1921, and no announcement of the tests was made until demonstrations proved the successful performance of the craft.

The new machine has a total weight of 3600 pounds and has four lifting screws actuated by a 170-horsepower motor. The system of gearing is said to be entirely novel, being designed especially by Dr. De Bothezat.

"The remarkable results obtained," the statement said, "demonstrate in a notable way the importance of making adequate use of scientific methods. The construction of the helicopter consumed only eighteen months, including the work of designing, building, adjusting and testing."

Further and more exhaustive tests, it was said, will be given in hope that the way will be pointed out further to develop and use the craft.

CAMPAIGN STEAMING UP

Loom as Mayoralty Possibilities

Expected to Announce Candidacy Soon

Groomed as Strong Contender

the time for filing nominating petitions for candidates for offices of Mayor, City Council, City Attorney, City Auditor, member of the Board of less than two months the municipal campaign is under way. Mayor Cryer's appearance before the City Club next day where he will urge of a new city charter and of the lack of power of the under the present one, is to mark the opening of his for re-election, although Mayor as yet has made no announcement that he will candidate for re-election.

The Mayor will be assured of a friendly audience at the City Club, as he has just appointed, the Council has confirmed, prominent City Club men— A. Dykstra, secretary of that and James B. Baker of the Board of Public Service Commissioners. The is also determined to place Board of Public Utilities a from Hollywood, where the for improved transportation facilities is especially strong.

HOLLYWOOD FRIENDLY

If the Council does not confirm Mayor's appointment of E. F. of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce as a member of board the Mayor is expected to send in the name of another Hollywood man for appointment to the vacancy on the board. the Mayor's support of the of the Hollywood people for transportation service has many friends and votes for that section of the city is admitted.

The practical admission by Criswell of the City that he will not seek the reduces the number of in the field, and thus the Mayor's chances of re-election. W. C. Mushet, chairman the Council's finance committee has been strongly urged to run for Mayor. His stand for more for policemen's and firemen's pensions, for the ousting of crushers from the Arroyo and especially his dramatic successful battle against the sale at a discount of the power bonds to Irving at $2,000,000 less than afterward brought under competitive bidding, has Mr. Mushet in a strong position.

WOULD BE "HIGH MAN"

Mushet should decline to the Mayoralty race at this he would again be a candidate for the City Council and it would be "high man" the eighteen candidates for in that body. If this he would be the next of the City Council in accordance with the general custom the Councilmen in choosing the "high man" for their presiding officer. President Criswell, having declined to run for Mayor, will also run again for the City Council. He was "high man" at the last election and it is generally predicted that he will be re-elected.

Bert Farmer and Boyle Workman, each of whom has served as president of the Council, may also take out Mayoralty nomination papers, but if Mr. Workman decides not to try again at this time for the Mayoralty, it is considered almost certain that he will be a candidate for the Council.

Strong efforts have been made during the past month to secure the consent of William May Garland, former president of the Los Angeles Realty Board, to run for Mayor, but it is understood that Mr. Garland has said "no" and that he and Mrs. Garland plan to spend the summer in Europe.

CARTER REFUSES

Similar efforts have been made to draft John P. Carter, formerly United States Collector of Internal Revenue here, as a Mayoralty candidate, but Mr. Carter has also said, positively, "no."

Of the present members of the City Council, Councilman Allan, Conaway and Langdon will not again be candidates for re-election, which leaves three vacancies to be filled, and there may be more as the time for taking out nominating papers draws near. Councilmen Mallard, Sanborn and Sparks are expected to seek re-election, and possibly Councilman Wheeler may try again.

City Attorney Stephens, who was not opposed at the last primaries and who was declared elected, would easily be re-elected, it is thought, should he again be a candidate, because of the strong record he has made in the office. The re-election of City Auditor Myers also is practically assured.

Blank nomination papers for circulation by candidates will be ready about the last of February or early in March. The first day for filing signed petitions is March 12, and the last day is March 31. The City primaries are May 1, and the City election is June 5.

"TIMES" RECIPE CONTEST

Readers of The Times are invited to participate in a series of culinary contests in which this journal will pay cash prizes for the best recipes submitted. There will be six contests, each lasting two weeks. In each contest the best recipe submitted will win a first prize of $10, the next best $7.50 and the third best $5. In addition to these there will be two special prizes of $10 and $5 for the two best recipes for Spanish dishes. These Spanish-dish recipes may be submitted at any time during the twelve weeks, or until April 7. All other recipes must be submitted before the end of the two weeks allotted to the contest in which each is intended as an entry.

The first contest began January 13, and closes Saturday, January 27. It is a contest for the best recipe for a soup or an appetizer. The winners will be announced in The Times on Saturday, February 3.

The second contest, which will be for the best recipe for preparing fish or a fish sauce, will begin January 27 and close February 10. Winners will be announced February 17.

The third contest will be for the best recipe for preparing meat or a meat sauce. It will run from February 10 to February 24. Winners will be announced March 3.

The fourth contest, to run from February 24 to March 10, will be for the best recipe for the preparation of vegetables. Winners announced March 17.

The fifth contest, March 10 to March 24, will be for the best salad or salad dressing. Winners announced March 31.

The sixth contest will run from March 24 to April 7. It will be for the best recipe for a dessert. This may be cake, pastry or frozen or moulded desserts. Winners in this and in the special Spanish-dish contest will be announced April 14.

Honorable mention will be given worthy recipes which do not win prizes.

The Times reserves the right to print any recipe submitted in its columns or in book form. In such case the name of the author will also appear.

Recipes must be written on one side of the paper only, must be legible and plainly marked with the name and address of the author.

No manuscripts will be returned.

It is not necessary to be a subscriber to The Times to compete. Anyone may enter any or all of the contests, submitting as many recipes as desired.

Originality, economy and adaptability to Southern California conditions will be considered in judging the recipes. Contestants should submit only recipes that have been thoroughly tested out in their own kitchens.

Specify exact amounts of ingredients, using level measurements. Do not use trade-marked names of ingredients.

Recipes should be sent in as early as possible. A recipe may be sent in before the actual start of the contest in which it is entered but in this case the fact must be noted at the top.

Address all recipes to The Times Recipe Editor, Times Building, Los Angeles.

Trainer for Dempsey Is Court Loser

Owen Bartlett, house painter, was awarded $250 damages against Teddy Hayes, trainer for Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight boxer of the world, in Judge Jamison's court yesterday.

Mr. Bartlett sued Jack Dempsey, Joe Dempsey, his brother, and Teddy Hayes, for $25,000 damages, declaring that he had been assaulted and beaten at Jack Dempsey's home where he had been employed as a painter. The quarrel resulted after Mr. Bartlett had stated, it was said, that "The whole Dempsey outfit are cheap skates."

The court eliminated Jack Dempsey from the case on a nonsuit on the ground that he was not present during the altercation. The court held also that Joe Dempsey acted as peacemaker, and that Teddy Hayes was the aggressor.

Jack Kearnes, manager for Dempsey, was called as a witness and questioned as to the financial ability of Joe Dempsey and Teddy Hayes.

Fight Against Wider Flower Street Opened

Opposition to the Flower street widening proposal being sponsored by realty interests, for which petitions are now being circulated, developed yesterday with the formation of the Flower Street Protective Association. The opponents are property owners. They have retained Atty. Robert A. Morton.

The project petition calls for the opening of Flower street from Washington street to Santa Barbara avenue, and the widening of the street to a ninety foot boulevard between Sixth street and Santa Barbara avenue.

The petition has not yet been filed with the City Council, nor has a survey been asked by the Engineering Department. Atty. Morton asserted that building projects aggregating $5,000,000 were being held up by the agitation to widen the street. He said that his organization favored the opening of the street and its widening to sixty feet, but saw no necessity for establishing a ninety foot boulevard, inasmuch as Figueroa street, one block distant, was already a boulevard in width and capable of carrying congestion in that district.

City Building Yard Sheds for Trucks

Assistant City Engineer R. W. Stewart, who is Acting City Engineer during the absence of City Engineer Griffin, who is in Chicago, announced yesterday that sheds are being built at the city yards at the intersection of Twenty-fourth and Harriett streets, for the housing of twenty-eight of the sixty motor trucks for the engineering department of the city, the machines costing a total of $207,000.

The Moreland, General Motors and Garford companies, each of which received an order for twenty trucks under the award, have notified the city that the trucks are ready for delivery.

Seven already have been accepted and four more will be received tomorrow, but the others will be held by the manufacturers until the sheds are completed.

These will be provided in various city yards so that the trucks will not be required to make long trips to and from a central parking station. The trucks will be used for garbage collection and in engineering work.

THE MISTAKES OF THE KAISER

AN ANSWER TO THE KAISER'S MEMOIRS

BY RENE VIVIANI

Premier of France When the War Broke Out

[Copyright, 1922, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

XVIII—GERMAN EFFORTS AT VINDICATION

The wording of the German declaration of war has been given. Alleging as a pretext that French aviators had flown over Nuremberg, war was declared, Belgium ripped open, France invaded, the world hurled back. And, in order to preserve moral continuity in her sinister history, it was again by means of a falsification that official Germany sent millions of men to their death.

The burden of this disgrace devolves, first, upon the Kaiser, next upon those coworkers closest to him, Herr von Bethmann and especially Herr von Jagow, who had the audacity to transmit over his signature to the entire world that final outrageous crime against truth. The world knows how false that legend about French aviators was; it knows that the false allegation was officially admitted as such by Germany, that witnesses on the spot protested against it, that no aviators flew over Nuremberg.

BLAME SHIFTED

Hence it was urgently necessary that a more solid foundation be found for the declaration of war, so the accessory yarn about French raids into German territory was invented, just as the other one had also been invented. Herr von Schoen, having returned to Germany, sought to maintain that he had discussed the declaration of war with me, and that, in the course of our talk, he had complained of the bad weather, which might have affected the telegraph wires and made the words of the telegram which he brought unintelligible to him. But he held no conversation with me except to make a complaint, at the outset of our meeting, and then he began to read. But it behooved him to create the belief that we had been warned by him of the inadequacy of the telegram. Yet how could he have done it at my office, before me? I had sent to him the previous evening a note accompanying a protest detailing the number of raids which had been made into French territory by German troops. He knew well that Corp. Peugeot had been killed ten kilometers from the frontier on French soil, and Herr von Jagow likewise knew it, since the Prussian officer, Mayer, was justly killed in reprisal, as were all the rest of the squad except one man alone, who got back to Germany and reported on the occurrence.

Here is one instance among a number: the original German version of one incident accused French soldiers of having made a raid to Reppe. The next day this claim was omitted in a second version, since some Germans were made prisoners on this occasion and their being in our hands was evidence of their crime and of our justified defence.

Another story was to the effect that there had been a French raid upon Montreux-le-Vieux, and this story was adhered to, since the Germans concerned managed to Another lie: on August 3rd, the escape and witnesses were lacking. Minister of the Interior at Berlin declared in all seriousness that automobiles with women passengers, carrying millions in money, were passing through Germany in the direction of Russia. Press indignation regarding this was stimulated even until after the declaration of war, and, on August 6, in an official note, the said Minister denied the story and continued to allude only to "so-called enemy autos." But, by that time, imagination carried to the extremes of delirium, had done its work.

MORE ABSURD CHARGES

Finally, here are two actual proofs of the absurdity of the accusations made by the Germans:

On August 3rd, in the morning, as has been already stated in this chapter, M. Cambon caused to be delivered to Herr von Jagow the note addressed by me two days before at 9:30 in the evening to Herr von Schoen in which I pointed out the numerous German raids across our frontiers. At eleven in the morning Herr von Jagow said that he had not had the time to read it. Then, at the same hour, Herr von Jagow went to M. Cambon and complained, as follows, of the alleged raids by the French: "Monday morning, August 3rd, at eleven, Herr von Jagow came to see me. He came to complain of the acts of aggression which he alleged had been commited in Germany at Nuremberg and Coblenz, particularly by French airmen, who according to him, had come from Belgium." (Yellow Book No. 158.) Now at that time, he said not a word about raids by land! And, at two o'clock on that same day he was to draw up the declaration of war!

So one can understand at once why he made no mention of these aggressions, and why, counting upon the empty yarn about the airplanes and upon the winning of a prompt and easy victory, he confined himself to writing what he did. Who can believe that, at that most fateful moment, Herr von Jagow could have been unaware of what was alleged afterwards, when even some Germans could by no means accept the earlier lie?

But there is still more: when he drew up the declaration of war he knew that the report was false, yet he made it one of the bases. Here is the proof thereof:

PROOF OF FALSITY

The Cologne Gazette in its morning edition of August 3rd, published this: "The Bavarian Minister of War has doubts as to the accuracy of the news that aviators were seen over the lines of Nuremberg and the Eiffel, throwing bombs on the railway." (Quoted by the author of "The Lie of August 3rd," page 184.) The same writer observes that, on that very day, the King of Bavaria made a proclamation to his people yet did not mention this bomb story. Now, Herr von Jagow could not have been unaware that the story was a fabrication when he wrote the declaration of war that same day at two in the afternoon.

But—the declaration of war had to be launched, even in the absence of grievances on which to base it. Moreover, the war, the drama, the shaking of the entire world would swallow up everything, even the memory of the crime to which victory would grant pardon. The man counted upon all this. But denials emanating from Germany, gradually undermined the fabrication; it became necessary to back it up with another lie, without entirely destroying the original one officially. Therefore tales were told about things alleged to have happened far from towns, far from reliable witnesses, on vague parts of the frontier.

"The mountain road of the Vosges." "Occupied German points." What road? What points? Nobody knew.

That is how, in 1914, the Minister of Foreign Affairs of a great nation trumped up a declaration of war, coined it like a piece of counterfeit money and found means, in the midst of such heavy responsibilities, to garner for himself most of the stigma affixed by history.

"BIRDS OF A FEATHER"

Before that, even before the war, he had experienced the contempt of Italy. Having exhausted his efforts to align that noble nation, by dint of bargaining, with the Central Empires, that international broker brought the German General Staff to bear upon Rome. The latter brought up the question of the casus foederis, which supposedly obliged Italy to side with the Central Empires, by the terms of her treaty with them. Italy looked into the matter and replied that everything that was happening, if true, was due to earlier provocation by Austria. And since Germany persisted, declaring that Italy might at least line up on her side, she was given to understand that, in the eyes of the Italian people, "Austria and Germany were birds of a feather."

Oh, what a malign fate pursued those inefficient ministers, that weak Chancellor and that blind Emperor, withholding from them the clear vision of the Latin mind!

What happened to Belgium is known—the disgraceful ultimatum of August 2, the magnificient answer of the weakest nation to the heaviest blow, its resistance for the sake of the right, the respect of Belgian neutrality shown by France and England. "Necessity makes law," said Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg.

It will be recalled that, on the next day, there was an interview between him and the British Ambassador, and the world will not forget the immortal retort by which the latter called back the Chancellor to a sense of honor:

"So are our two nations to fight on account of a scrap of paper?"

"I would respectfully call to your attention that England has a different conception of honor."

Why did not Herr von Bethmann-Holweg take France and England to task on that day for the alleged plans for violating Belgian neutrality which he, of course, invented when victory seemed to him less of a foregone conclusion?

As for France, she stood erect, calm and resolute, having done all that was possible to avoid war, and capable, since she was threatened, of facing the worst peril.

FUNERAL TOLD GRIEF

I left the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at 7:15, conferred with M. Poincare, and returned to my residence, having, throughout my long periods of tenure of governmental office preferred it to official residences. A fateful day that, to be followed by others—days which fitted, without a break for rest, into nights of unceasing labor. It now developed upon me to draw up the official ministerial declaration concerning the negotiations which I had concluded, proclaim aloud the rights of France, her innocence and her courage, appeal to these before the nations and before history, denounce criminal Germany and her accomplice, and, before the opening of the struggle, brand her with the stigma which blood has been unable to wash away. In addition, I had to prepare a speech for delivery at the tomb of Jaures, a victim of the madness aroused during terrible days like those, since that great orator was still lying in his humble abode and since, around the fallen Colossus, ominous rumors and vehement expressions of grief were beginning to arise. All these things had to be done.

On the evening before the battle and before the funeral ceremony, I sat in my quiet study, where my severe rows of law books surrounded me as if seeking to give me their protection at that awful hour against the imminent orgy of violence.

In the morning, the funeral of Jaures became an expression of national grief, and if Germany—as hinted at in the Memoirs—had reckoned upon the death of Jaures for depression of the French state of mind, she had deceived herself.

BRITISH FRIENDLY

In the afternoon, after the Council, I was bound for the Chamber of Deputies, when, at 2 o'clock, the telephone bell rang. M. Paul Cambon, our Ambassador at London, informed me that the British government had authorized him to express in stronger terms than before her friendly attitude toward France; I immediately added to the declaration I was preparing some sentences bearing on the agreement of 1912.

When I arrived, the members of the Chamber, all standing, all magnificent in their bearing, according to me, the French Premier, the unforgettable tokens of enthusiasm and emotion which they felt. It was not for me, but for glorious France, about to enter the arena, that this storm of acclamation arose. The fact that, during those terrible days, I bore aloft the banner of France, and kept it aloft without wavering will be to me always the proudest badge of honor of my whole life.

The grave and virile message of the President of the French Republic, followed by the declaration in which I set forth the position of France, met with unanimous approval both in the Chamber and the Senate: "A free and strong nation, which fights for an ideal rooted in the centuries and unites, in its entirety, to protect its existence; a democracy which has been able to keep its military strength within the bounds of discipline and did not fear, a year ago, to increase the burden of that strength in order to counter the arming of neighbors; a nation in arms fighting for its very life and for the independence of Europe—these are what we have the honor of showing the witnesses of this tremendous struggle, for which preparations have been making for many days, amid the greatest calm and in the most methodical manner. We are without reproach. We shall show ourselves to be without fear."

WAR LAWS VOTED

Then came the voting by the two sections of the French Parliament of the war laws. Then the work of the Chamber was over. Our eyes sought each other, also our hands, because, without our realizing it, our hearts had gone out to each other, and the arms of the elder men caught up in fraternal embrace the younger men, whose faces were alight with manly enthusiasm. Could we part thus?

I spoke to all those men, I spoke to my whole country, to France, to France of the past which I evoked, to France of the future which I invoked. It is not true that an orator creates feelings—no, he makes them burst forth because they lie already deep down in the human bosom; the orator's power consists in finding them and not being overwhelmed when they burst forth! Oh, ye, who were not present at that session of the French chambers, never will ye know how cruelly ye were disinherited by Fate! There we stood in the presence of something more than national unity that unity begun by our kings and carried to conclusion by the French Revolution. Upon that tree, centuries old, the tender flowers of our sacred union blossomed.

We parted. Night fell. Usually at that time in summer, it is clear and cheerful. But this summer night struck me as a thing of terror. Yet, how comforting for all of us was that hour when France found anew her altar, her religion her soldiers, her martyrs, her liberators. "Allons, enfants de la patrie!"

POWER OF DESTINY

Often have I been asked how I met these hours of distress and also those that followed, the hours of Charleroi, of the retreat, the anxious eve of the Marne, the hours when we almost felt the breath of the invader upon us as we waited, like the hunter before the leap of the onrushing beast. No man can say that he draws strength from himself alone—heart and soul and body would break were he to try it. But the spectacle offered by those last days of waiting, the grim march toward the frontier, coming after the hours of religious silence, the willingness of an entire nation for sacrifice, that fusion among men caused by destiny—all this was the supreme fount of strength, the supreme intoxicating tonic.

From the fourth of August onward a sort of mystic faith flashed forth in all of us, feeding upon our labors of each day. I said myself on that day that France could not perish, that she was indispensable to the world, like air, light, equilibrium, universal harmony.

And now she went into the battle and, for four years, she stood with her feet deep in blood and her head held higher than the heavens. She saved herself and she saved the world. Nobody, surely, least of all I, who saw the first soldiers of our allies come to us, will quarrel as to the partition of the laurels. Nevertheless, when our national pride and truth are in agreement, one may well satisfy both. In love with liberty, France had preserved for its protection her arms—that is, her army—for she knew that, as long as wolves were roaming through the forests of the human race, it would be necessary to preserve that emblem of idealism, which would be but a futile symbol of weakness unless strength was brought to its arm!

Since we saw clearly, and acted conscientiously, to the extent that our material means allowed, we halted the barbarians on the threshold of civilization and gave all free men time to leap into the fight, strong and well armed.

Sons of our sons, that will be your title of nobility!

New Mexican Congressman Dies Suddenly

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Stricken by apoplexy while shaving, Representative Nestor Montoya, Republican, New Mexico, died suddenly at his home here today.

Congressman Montoya had served in the lower house for two years. As Congressman-at-large, he was the only member of the House from New Mexico. His home was in Albuquerque, where, for many years, he published a newspaper in the Spanish language. He was 61 years old and leaves a widow and five children.

Cub Trackmen to Begin Work on Cinderpath

With a good number of veterans back in the harness and a raft of new material on hand Harry Trotter, coach of the tracksters at Southern Branch, will begin practice tomorrow afternoon. From all indications the Cubs' chances for a successful track season are especially bright. Haralson, Jones, Hoppner, Harrell, McIlivain, Tyson, Zukerman, Childs, Parks and Crasso, all vets from last season, will be on deck at the first practice. From the raft of youngsters on hand it appears that Trotter will have no lack of material.

The first event of the season will take place February 17. This will be a relay carnival. On February 24 the Branchers will participate in the first conference meet with the Poets on the Whittier field.

STRANGLER LEWIS TO CLASH WITH GARDINI

Strangler Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will meet Renato Gardini on the 24th inst. in the American Legion Hollywood arena, according to an announcement made by Umberto Rovere, the promoter. Jim Londos will also appear on the same program. His opponent will be named later.

Rovere also stated that he has purchased a home in Hollywood and will make that district his permanent residence.

DECLINES OFFER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

7 FACTS ABOUT POSLAM FOR SKIN-SUFFERERS

"Poslam stops itching and burning."
"It heals raw, inflamed skin."
"It clears away pimples."
"Poslam is powerful, yet safe."
"It works quickly and surely."
"A little goes a long way."
"Poslam costs but 50c."

Go back and read those seven things over again. Realize how much—how very much they mean to you! Is there anything you want to-day MORE than a clear, healthy, comfortable skin?

Decide NOW to have a real skin-health. Get a box of Poslam at any drugstore and begin treatment TO-NIGHT! For trial sample, send 10¢ to POSLAM, 243 W. 47th St., New York. Poslam Soap aids Poslam and prevents skin affections.

Keep your car looking new!

You can—easily. And, too, it pays.

Used as infrequently as once a month, Common Sense Auto Polish will preserve the newness of your car. And keep up its resale value. A fact confirmed by the experience and testimony of dealers and car owners during the past ten years, under every climatic condition from coast to coast.

A scientifically correct laboratory preparation, Common Sense quickly removes the dull, gray film that so cheapens motor cars. It completely restores the factory luster. And in doing so, removes all foreign matter, which might react upon the finish.

Common Sense Auto Polish leaves a bone dry, glass hard protective surface that is proof against any abrasive action of dust, the chemical action of water, the atmosphere and other elements.

Try Common Sense. Use it regularly. Can you afford not to? Car manufacturers and dealers, alike, recommend it. It is sold under an absolute money back guarantee.

Accessory, Hardware dealers, Department stores and many Druggists have Common Sense, or can get it for you quickly from their wholesalers in Los Angeles. Or mailed to any out-of-town address, postpaid, upon receipt of $1.00. Address

Prize Winner and Times Cup

Above, Hope of Lariston, winner of the blue ribbon among the shaded silver female kittens; below, Laurel Anderson, holding the cup donated by The Times for the most popular cat in the show.

THE nineteenth annual show of the Los Angeles Cat Club at 807 West Seventh street, closed last night with the awarding of prizes and trophies.

More than 100 of the aristocracy of catdom purred their best and meowed in the most approved style as the judges passed along the rows of cages pinning on the blue and red ribbons. Occasionally there was a display of feline anger but generally speaking it was a well-behaved group.

Mrs. W. A. Martel, president of the club, announced the show one of the most successful ever held and highly praised the show officials headed by F. W. Bundy.

First prizes awarded in the different classes follow:

Blue-eyed white male—Powder Puff Chimes; owner, Mrs. Frank W. Bundy.

Proposal Is to Be Made to Renew National Inter-Scholastic Tennis Tournament

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Proposed revival of the national interscholastic championship tournament will be considered at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association here February 3, it was announced today.

Formerly one of the most interesting tournaments of the year among younger exponents of the net game, the interscholsatic event, was dropped several years ago when junior and boys' championships were established. In view of the constantly growing interest in and developing of tennis, however, the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association has recommended that the competition be restored.

It is planned to retain the interscholastic tournaments as now conducted by the various colleges and universities of the country, making the winners of these events eligible to enter the interscholastic championship tourney.

A change in the previous age limit is suggested, opening the way for entrants who are 21 on January 1, of the tournament year.

Correspondence of the United States Lawn Tennis Association indicates that the 1923 Davis Cup competition will be fully as representative from an international aspect as last year. Although those nations which entered tennis twelve months ago appear certain to re-enter the classic struggle, under the new zoning system it is likely that new competitors will be encouraged to try for the trophy.

Japan already is planning the personnel of its team and communications from Hawaii state that the name of the island territory will be found on the list when entries close on March 15. Hawaii possessed tennis material for a strong team last season and only the unfortunate break of the draw which brought them against Czecho-Slavakia in the first round prevented participation.

BERMUDA YACHT RACE REVIVED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 — Yachtsmen are planning a revival of the annual sailing race to Bermuda next June, a popular sporting event ten to fifteen years ago. Four owners in Boston and New York already have agreed to enter their yachts. The Bermuda race will be open to small schooners, yawls and ketches. A special class may be made for owners of sloops if they wish to enter, it was said. The start this year probably will be from New London or Newport.

feated the fast Caltech basketball team last night at the Pasadena Y. M. C. A. by the score of 40 to 15 in a furiously fought battle.

Branch gained an early lead and as time passed enlarged it. The guarding of Bresee was too much for the Caltech forwards, and as a result there was very little basket tossing by the Engineers.

Gibbs shot goal after goal without the slightest trouble, the five-man offense working perfectly for the Cubs. No less than eight field goals were made by this melon tosser and three free throws. Goertz made the total of six goals and although he threw no fouls he played a fine game all the way through.

The line-ups and personal scores follow:

AD RUBIDOUX BOXES DRAW WITH LINCOLN

Ad Rubidoux and Ralph Lincoln fought to a draw in the main event at the Lyceum Athletic Club and night, with Johnny Buff acting as referee. In the semi-wind-up Johnny La Rose fought Johnny Williams to a good draw, in which both showed considerable fighting spirit.

Jimmy Douglas took the decision in the special event, beating Batling Ray in a well matched and spirited battle. Earl Lane, bleeding from an old cut just above his left eye, lost to Billy Maxwell, who took the decision after a good fight in which Lane showed that he wasn't to be beaten very easily.

Herb Miller was sent down for the count in the second round by Earl Little. Kid Edison had a tough time in beating John Fujier whom he sent down for the count in the fourth round.

RIVERSIDE GIRLS TO PLAY AT HOLLYWOOD

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 13.—Miss Grace Ketcham, physical instructor at Riverside girls' high school anticipates that the varsity basketball team will meet the Hollywood High School girls team some time next week. The local girls have been piling up big scores against adversaries from the smaller cities hereabouts, and much interest is manifested on the proposed game with a school like Hollywood which has ample talent to select from. If this game should by any chance not be dated there will probably be a game played with the Hemet girls.

STORIES UNFOUNDED

It has been published that Sarazen is to receive a salary of $15,000,000 a year from the Briarcliffe Country Club of New York and that his life has been insured by the club for $100,000. The lad informed me today that his salary is to be $10,000 for two years and that he knew nothing about the insurance policy. Thus, as in other walks of life, press agents' stories may be discounted quite as heavily as some of the yarns told by some of their principals.

Hutchison was the shining star of the morning's round at Claremont. He was out in front from the first tee and his birdie 4 won the first hole. He won the second, also being the only one of the four to drive the 229-yard uphill green. None of them found the blind green from the third tee, although John Black, who refereed the match, gave them line instructions. Sarazen missed a short putt for a win here, but he and Hutch were both in for winning 4s at the fourth and had won three of the first four holes of the match. The fifth was halved, and Hagen, who cannot find his putting touch with cold hands (and the morning that ushered in an almost summer day) found the cup from twenty feet on the sixth for a birdie 3 for a win.

WIN THREE IN ROW

The seventh was halved and Kirkwood, with a fine mashie iron, laid his tee shot ten feet high and sank a good putt for a birdie 2 at the eighth. The ninth was halved, all getting par fours, and Jock and Gene turned one up.

Two more were halved and then the Scot and the New Yorker won three in a row, Jock sinking an approach shot for an eagle 2 from the edge of the fourteenth. Dormie four on the morning's round, a quick turn came when Hagen won the fifteenth with a twenty-five-foot putt and the seventeenth with birdies, and Kirkwood captured the 487-yard home hole with a fine birdie 4.

CONTRACT LET FOR TRACK AT TANFORAN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—The contract for the construction of the Tanforan race track clubhouse was let today to Grace & Bernieri, a local firm. Work, it is said, will commence at once and the contractors estimate that it will take them 110 days to complete the job. This will bring the completion of the track into the early part of May.

MILWAUKEE TOURNEY WILL BE COLOSSAL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—A. L. Langtry, secretary of the American Bowling Congress, said today that at least 1500 five-men teams and some 10,000 individuals probably would compete in the annual tournament, which is to be held in Milwaukee starting March 10 and ending April 8. The prize list will probably go above the $75,000 mark, he said.

Student Self-Government but Farce, Pupils Say

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Jan. 13.—Pupils of Chaffey college of agriculture were up in arms today over what they declare to be the inconsistent attitude of Principal Merton E. Hill on the subject of dancing. Notwithstanding a vote of the members of the student body of the school stood at 236 in favor of school dances to 15 against, Principal Hill today was firm on his ruling that dancing in connection with school affairs shall be forbidden absolutely.

The collegians take the stand that the attitude of Principal Hill is directly contrary to recent recommendations of himself and the faculty that the pupils be self-governing and that the activities of the school be directed by the student body. They declare that it is evident that representative government in the school is desired only in so far as it conforms to the hard and fast rules laid down by the faculty, which, they say, means virtually that it is desired not at all.

FAIN WOULD DANCE

The dance question came to the fore when Miss Laurel Gillette moved at a business meeting of the college student body that a committee be appointed to confer with Principal Hill relative to giving school dances in the gymnasium under faculty chaperonage. The suggestion at once met with the hearty approval of the great majority of the members present and a lengthy discussion followed.

Those favoring the school dances, only two offered arguments against them, set forth as one of their principal arguments that it was far better that Chaffey pupils should dance at the school, under faculty supervision than that, in lieu of such ideal conditions, they should form the habit of frequenting dance halls and other resorts of questionable reputation, a tendency declared already markedly evident in the school.

It was pointed out further that Chaffey is virtually the only collegiate school in California at which school dances are prohibited and it was declared that the student bodies of other similar institutions had found that various activities of their organizations could be financed very satisfactorily simply by levying a very nominal sum for admission to their school "hops."

COMMITTEE NAMED

At the close of the student body session, Ernest Frane, president of the organization, named a committee of three to confer with Principal Hill. This committee reported, however, that the principal turned a deaf ear to their arguments and as a result of their visit to him, Mr. Hill promptly called a special assembly at which he announced that he would rather at once resign his position and that the pupils greet a new principal on their return to school Monday, than accede to the request for school dances.

Principal Hill took the stand that if he consented to the student body request, he would feel that he had broken faith with the parents who were sending their children to Chaffey largely for the reason that they were there free from the atmosphere of the dance and that those who wished to dance were suffering no hardship for want of opportunity through lack of dances in connection with school affairs.

Presentation to the Chaffey Board of Education of a petition signed by parents of Chaffey college students, expressing their approval of school dances, was under consideration this afternoon.

Hit by Speeder, Woman May Die at Ninety-four

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—Hovering between life and death, Mrs. Elizabeth Garcia, 94 years of age, one of Pomona's oldest settlers, lies in Pomona Valley Hospital this afternoon with a fractured skull, a broken collar bone and one broken rib as the result of having been run down by an unidentified motorist today. She is the third victim here recently of unknown drivers.

A. L. Palmer, 1051 South Towne avenue, at first believed by police officers to be the driver of the car that struck her, denies the charge. He says he saw the aged woman lying by the roadside at the corner of Sixth and Towne avenues, and stopped to give her aid. Police are conducting a search for the driver responsible.

Mrs. Garcia, of American parentage, married one of the early Spanish settlers here.

RUMORED OIL LEASE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Jan. 13.—Considerable excitement was caused here and in Arcadia today by the rumor that the Standard Oil Company had gone into the local oil fields by leasing a large acreage in Arcadia at $250 annual rental an acre, and had agreed to begin sinking the first test well within six months time.

It is reported that the land leased lies southwest of Valnette and Santa Anita avenues. It was impossible to confirm the rumor today.

Apparently Self-Slain; No Motive Seen for Act of Theodora Downey

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 13.—With a bullet hole in her forehead and her father's revolver lying on the bed beside her, the dead body of Theodora Alberta Doney, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Doney, Buttonwillow, was found early today by her parents.

According to the girl's father no reason is known for her tragic death, and it is believed by relatives that the revolver must have been discharged accidentally.

According to the father, Theodora had been in the habit of using his revolver, both she and her brother being considered good shots. An investigation by Coroner N. C. House and the Sheriff's office failed to reveal any evidence of contemplated suicide.

The dead girl attended public school at Buttonwillow. The father is an employee of the San Joaquin Light and Power Company at that place.

Orange County Citrus Growers Have Good Year

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, Jan. 13.—The erection of a huge precooling plant at a cost of $150,000 in Fullerton, the election of officers and the announcement that the revenue to the stockholders for 1922 amounted to $1,789,697.92 featured the annual stockholders' meeting of the Placentia Orange Growers Association in the Fullerton Union High School Auditorium here today.

The annual report, submitted by Abe Pritchard, manager of the association, contained an exceptionally bright forecast for 1923 and told of the difficulties that had been encountered by both growers and packers in 1922. These were caused principally by high winds and the freeze in January of 1922. The car shortage during the railroad strike also proved a serious drawback and resulted in heavy losses. Despite this there was an increase in dividends and membership in the association.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY RE-ELECTS PRESIDENT

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

UPLAND, Jan. 13.—Mrs. James L. Paul, prominent Upland society woman and church worker, and a pioneer of this section, today commenced her twenty-first consecutive year as president of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian Church, following the annual meeting of the members of the organization, at which her election was unanimous.

Mrs. Paul first was chosen to head the church society in 1903 and has been re-elected each succeeding year. The society was organized in 1889 and Mrs. J. Sourwine was the first president.

ROBBERS TAKE JEWELRY

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 13.—Local police are searching for robbers who entered the Art Steinberg home on Putnam avenue last night and took articles of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Steinberg and Miss Leota Williamson, her niece. Bracelets, rings, brooches and earrings were taken, while other jewelry of greater value was left in the jewel boxes. Entrance was made through a window into Miss Williamson's room and footprints led off through an orange orchard.

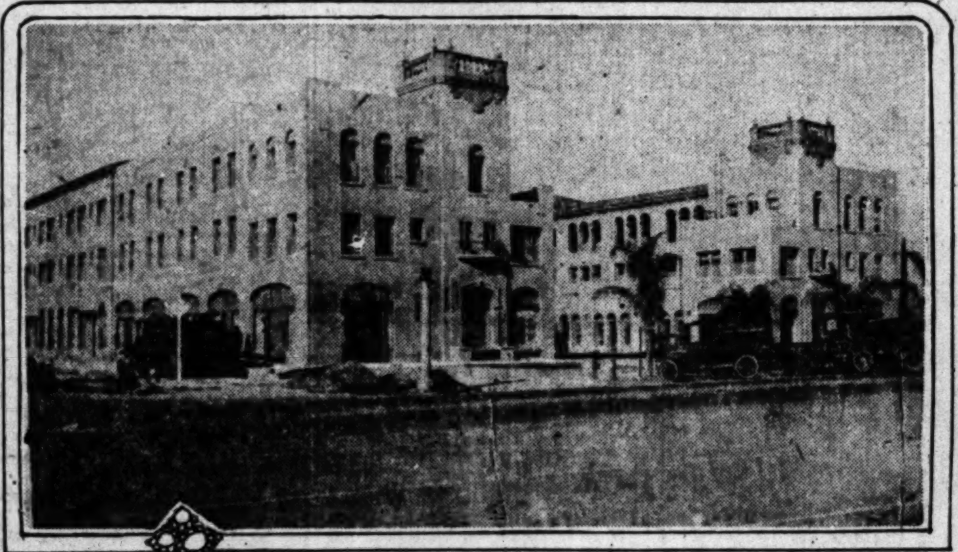
WHERE FULLERTON WILL ENTERTAIN

New $300,000 Hotel Ready for Coming Guests



The Californian Welcomes You

FULLERTON, Jan. 13.—Community pride and confidence in this city's future are responsible for the building of the Californian, one of the State's finest hotels which will open its doors for business Monday.

The hotel which represents an investment of approximately $300,000 was built from the proceeds of the sale of stock to local business men. The project was financed in record time and the building, now ready for the coming guests, stands as a monument to the progressive spirit of those who have made it possible.

While it was thought at the time the stock sale was in progress that it would be several years before the institution became a paying proposition, those who have stood sponsor for the hotel have been agreeably surprised to learn that it will show a profit from the start.

The building, which is ten stories high, has ten storerooms on the ground floor and twenty-one apartments in the front section of the structure. The stores and apartments were all leased weeks ahead of the opening, guaranteeing a profit on the investment. Aside from the space already taken the hotel is equipped with fifty guests rooms all fitted with modern conveniences. Everything that contributes to the comfort of guests in the best hostelries in the State has been incorporated in the building plans and furnishings so that Fullerton now boasts of a first-class stopping place for guests of the city.

The hotel will be under the management of Roy Durban. The formal opening Monday night will be the occasion of a civic celebration in which individuals and organizations from all parts of Orange county will participate. An elaborate banquet will be the feature attraction of the event.

BACK COLTON POLICE CHIEF

Hundreds Indignant Over Riot Leader Suspect's Plan to Oust Officer; Charges Perjury

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 13.—Hundreds of indignant Colton residents were aligned today to defeat an attempt of R. L. Wolfe, indicted rioter to oust Chief of Police Guy George.

Wolfe, in whose trial a jury disagreed as to his guilt, accuses the Chief of Police and eleven other State's witnesses with perjury on the witness stand. Today he appealed to the San Bernardino County Grand Jury to investigate his charges. Dramatically, Wolfe exhibited a letter, purporting to have been received from anonymous sources, threatening his life if he continues his activities against the Chief of Police and other prominent citizens of Colton.

For a week, Wolfe, a giant of a man who defended himself in Superior Court, has been circulating a petition in Colton among radical sympathizers demanding that Colton City Trustees remove the Chief of Police. Wolfe accuses the Chief of "lying on the witness stand."

The petition will be presented to trustees Monday night. City Attorney M. O. Hert and a score of prominent business men will oppose Wolfe's attempt to "get the job" of the Chief of Police at the meeting. Startling events will take place, it was admitted.

Wolfe is attempting to oust Chief George in the effort to be appointed to the job, it was said by friends of the chief today.

"I won't accept the job," Wolfe said, "but I want justice." He said he had filed affidavits against eleven State witnesses in his trial in the United States District Courts in Los Angeles.

Wolfe, accused by the State of leading an attack of strikers against shopmen last August, will be tried again on a charge of instigating a riot.

"Andy Gump" Wants Job in Tulare County

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Jan. 13.—"Andy Gump" is reported as an applicant for the position of Tulare County Plant Pathologist, until recently filled by Dr. P. A. Boncquet, and about which there has been much argument.

Andy is said to declare himself as "inventor of a process by which water can be distilled," and assertes that he has a "sure thing" method of detecting overripe eggs. He wants "Min" to be his assistant and "Chester" his office boy. He guarantees efficient and profitable service but fails to state salary expected. "I am 100 per cent for myself" the communication adds.

The office of plant pathologist was declared vacant the first of the year. The supervisors stated the action was no reflection on qualification of Dr. Boncquet, but that he had been a storm center of disturbance almost since his appointment three years ago and that they believed it wise to declare the position vacant. New appointment was postponed in response to request of growers asking that further sentiment be learned.

CHARITY FUND DRIVE TO OPEN IN PASADENA

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Jan. 13.—A campaign to refill the Community Chest, which contributes to operating expenses of twenty-four charitable and social agencies, begins on Monday. It is expected that $191,786, the public's quota for the chest, will be obtained by Saturday.

More than 300 men and women have contributed their services as campaign solicitors. Sunday the churches will co-operate in interesting the public in the cause.

PLAN TO ENLARGE POMONA HOSPITAL

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—Plans are being made to convert the Pomona Valley Hospital from a privately owned institution to a community hospital by the surrender by stockholders of their stock and an intensive campaign to raise funds for the enlargement of the building and its facilities.

The local institution attended 1169 patients during the year, while the stork made 134 visits. It is the most modern hospital in the valley and by enlargement of its scope would prove a decided advancement for medical science here.

CAR AND AUTO CRASH SERIOUS FOR WOMEN

TWO BADLY INJURED AS TRAIN AND MACHINE COLLIDE ON NATIONAL BOULEVARD

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, Jan. 13.—Collision of a Pacific Electric train and an automobile in which they were riding east of Culver City on National Boulevard yesterday resulted in serious injuries to Mrs. Alicia Martin, 2517 Washington Boulevard, Venice, and Mrs. N. S. Brunton, 2515 Sawtelle Boulevard.

Mrs. Brunton, who was driving her machine toward Los Angeles, was thrown to the pavement. She suffered a possible skull fracture and fractures of the pelvic bone and several ribs. Mrs. Martin received several lacerations and possible internal injuries. Both women were removed to the Culver City Hospital. Mrs. Brunton's condition was described as critical. She is the wife of N. S. Brunton, Sawtelle realty dealer.

San Diego to be Gainer in Redistricting

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 13.—Designation of San Diego as district headquarters of the United States Immigration Service, under a redistricting system worked out by the Federal Bureau, is regarded here as additional evidence of the government's recognition of the growing importance of this port. This follows the recent creation of a customs district here.

On the occasion of a visit here some months ago by E. J. Henning, a resident of San Diego, who is assistant secretary of labor, it was announced that the Immigration Bureau contemplated division of the border district, for all of which E. Paso was then headquarters. Another city similarly recognized is San Antonio.

CALIFORNIA'S RAISINS TRAVEL

Growers Open Markets in Far Places

British Guiana, Argentina and Rhodesia Favored

Association Braves Foreign Competition, Too

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FRESNO, Jan. 13.—Three new territories in widely separated parts of the world have been opened this month by the sales force of the Sunmaid Raisin Growers' according to an announcement made today by J. A. Brogdon, sales and advertising manager.

The association is making its first shipment of California raisins to British Guiana, Southern Rhodesia and Argentina. A report prepared by J. J. Quinn, manager of foreign sales, gives details of the new expansion.

"Although the population of British Guiana is not large it is wealthy," says Quinn's report, telling of placing an order with a consignee of Georgetown, "and we expect a very fair business eventually." Of parallel interest is an initial shipment to Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, South Africa.

HAVE COMPETITION

"This strikes directly at African raisin competition. Africa is producing approximately 6000 tons of raisins a year. However, the growers there are not marketing on a package basis, but are delivering entirely in bulk, hence the call for the Sunmaid product in packages.

"Our most interesting and gratifying development in the last two weeks has been the allotment of Argentina to an American broker, located in that territory, and the shipment of one carload of assorted Sunmaid package and bulk goods for distribution. Again we are striking at home competition. Argentina produces raisins in the Mendoza district.

USE SIMILAR PACKAGE

"The growers pack in a package similar to our own and market along the line of our own efforts. We feel, however, that our arrangements for Argentina will eventually make for us a splendid business in that territory."

"The report further says that Harry Davis, representative of the co-operative raisin organization, is en route to Chile to establish the Sunmaid brand in taht territory.

These expansions are in line with the effort of the Sunmaid organization to make the entire world buy the greatly increased production of California raisins.

Campaign to Aid Alhambra Is Under Way

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Jan. 13.—A plan to conduct a comprehensive publicity campaign setting forth the advantages of Alhambra was launched last night at a dinner in the Elsueno Hotel under the auspices of the Alhambra All-Year Club. The affair was attended by about one hundred prominent local men, and a number of guests from Santa Monica and Los Angeles.

West L. Moulder, who has been active in the proposed undertaking, was chairman. E. R. Conliss, president of the Greater Santa Monica Club, gave an interesting talk on the origin and development of the publicity campaign which that organization has been conducting. S. D. Koch, vice-president, and S. H. Kreager, who created the series of advertisements which brought Santa Monica national prominence, also were speakers.

A number of local men, including Judge William M. Northrup and City Manager Grant M. Lorraine expressed approval of the idea. It was decided to hold a dinner within the next few weeks at which time the project will be presented formally to the people.

SECRET OF BREW NOT DIVULGED

Court Holds Defendant Is Not Required to Tell Liquor Knowledge

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN RAFAEL, Jan. 13.—Although a brewer of illicit liquor, based on a mash content, may be penalized for making such liquor, he is not required to make his formula known, Superior Judge Buter decided today in the case of Charles Alexander, accused of being such a brewer.

Dist.-Atty. Greer had asked Alexander, "how much mash does it take to make a gallon of moonshine?"

The court held that Alexander did not have to answer the question, and the defendant was dismissed.

HAYS SENT PROTEST BY CONFEREES

Bible Workers' Meeting at Arcadia Registers Against Arbuckle Comeback

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ARCADIA, Jan. 13.—A hot protest against the proposed reinstatement of Roscoe Arbuckle has been made here by the Bible Workers' Conference, and a draft of the resolution has been sent to Will Hays.

"If Roscoe Arbuckle is returned to the public picture world, the moral workers of this nation will have reason to fear for the undermining of America's integrity, and today two billions of invested funds will restore to recognition any immoral character whatsoever, and that hereafter money, not principles, will rule our land," says the resolution. "We ask you, Mr. Hays, to purify the movies by purifying them morally. God knows they need it. We believe no man's financial embarrassment should weigh for a single instant against the moral welfare of millions of young Americans.

"If Arbuckle is reinstated the youth of America will know that any putrid act will be condoned by 'lying low,' if you have plenty of backing. Then will be the beginning of the decay such as has ruined nations of the past."

Prof. M. R. McCurda of the University of California was a speaker at the conference, which was declared one of the most successful ever held here.

ONE BOARD MAY GO AT SAN DIEGO

Proposal to Abolish City Water Commission; Give Job to Manager

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 13.—Abolition of the City Water Commission and placing entire control of the municipal water system in the hands of the City Manager, will be submitted at the forthcoming primary election, according to a decision by the City Council today.

As it now stands, one part of the water system is under control of the Water Commission and another part is controlled by the City Manager. The Council contends the additional expense entailed by the commission would be eliminated, and just as good, if not better service rendered by the City Manager.

For almost two weeks there has been no Watetr Commission. Commissioners F. M. White and C. T. Chandler were removed by Mayor Bacon the 2nd inst. Since that he has made no announcement of appointees.

BOYS FIND GUN, ONE DEAD

Weapon is Discharged Accidentally at Whittier; Victim an Orphan 13 Years of Age

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, Jan. 13.—The accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of a playmate cost the life of Michael Erreca, 13 years of age, here today.

The boy had gone to the home of William Plotts, wealthy rancher and oil operator, of Sixth street, where he engaged in play with the two sons of Mr. Plotts, Thomas and Robert, both about the same age as the accident victim.

The boys were playing in the large yard of the beautiful ranch home and found a shotgun in the garage. Thomas Plotts was holding the weapon when it exploded. The boy says that at the time the shot was fired the weapon was not pointed at the Erreca boy, but that the rebound caused it to fly up and send the charge directly in the abdomen of the unfortunate lad.

The injured boy was taken to Memorial Hospital, where it was found that the shot had perforated the intestines at so many places that there was no chance of saving his life. He died shortly after reaching the institution.

Funeral services will be held Monday at St. Mary's Catholic Church here, with interment in Los Angeles.

The dead boy was an orphan and made his home with an uncle, F. S. Sotro, who has a citrus ranch on East Whittier.

rels, or 5,216,402,772 gallons. This was close to 21,000,000 barrels more than the production during the same period in 1921.

Of the State's estimated production of 139,000,000 barrels the Los Angeles area alone, comprising Los Angeles and Orange counties, produced approximately 69,705,756 barrels, or 50.14 per cent. Long Beach furnished the big thrill in its jump from 31,662 barrels in January to 2,933,280 barrels. Santa Fe Springs comes next with a jump from 132,371 barrels in January to 2,414,444 in November, the year estimated at 12,151,311 barrels.

Of the State production of 14,035,527 barrels in November, there were 11,850,645 barrels consumed, leaving a total of stocks on November 30, of over 59,750,000 barrels. The tanker service from the harbor to the east coast has increased total consumption considerably and further increase in service that is promised likewise will increase the volume of consumption of crude.

These tremendous figures of crude oil production, which will create even more animated discussion of the fluid gold of California, immediately raises the question apropos of Matson's analysis of where this oil goes. How does it get out of California? Also one's mentality is further disturbed by the fact that oil from the Kern River, Midway and Coalinga fields is piped into the Los Angeles territory, but great volumes are held back because of Los Angeles Harbor congestion.

Oil shipments from Los Angeles Harbor from January to August, 1922, a period of eight months, totaled 20,395,801 barrels, an average of approximately 2,549,000 barrels per month. August figured strongest in shipping 3,990,933 barrels, but when the figures are in for the remaining months a bigger showing is likely. December having one banner day when more than 500,000 barrels of oil were shipped in two tankers headed straight for New York. Thus if the whole year results in an oil-exporting total of over 30,000,000 barrels, it readily can be seen what would happen if these 30,000,000 barrels would be added to the stocks or storage of oil and thus be withdrawn from use; and this would be the case, unless pumping and flow were checked, if the Los Angeles-made harbor should be closed to traffic, or, as in the nineties, practically non-existent.

In the latest reports the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, including advices from the Chamber of Mines and Oil, some interesting statistics on oil production are revealed. Production, Los Angeles and Orange counties 1920, total 30,095,487 barrels; in 1921, total 35,537,492; 1922, total 69,705,756 barrels. November, 1922, California production totaled 14,035,527 barrels; of this the Los Angeles area supplied 8,866,094 barrels, or 60.3 per cent of the State production. Comparisons of State production for three years show 105,668,000 barrels in 1920; 114,709,000 in 1921, and 139,000,000 in 1922.

COMPARATIVE FIGURES

United States production for October (comparative illustration) reached 47,255,000 barrels; Los Angeles and Orange counties, 8,030,868 barrels, or approximately one-sixth of the nation's production. The United States produced in the first ten months of 1922, over 452,000,000, making an estimate for the full year of about 540,000,000 barrels, nearly one-fourth of the world's output for the same period.

California has produced since 1876, when the first wells came in, approximately 1,602,731,276 barrels. The first oil fields charted were in Ventura county, with the year's production of 175,000 barrels. The first wells in Los Angeles county were located at the Los Angeles and Salt Lake fields in 1894 with the year's production totaling but 196,094 barrels. The production for all fields in the Los Angeles area for 1922 was: (December being estimated) Long Beach, 13,229,328; Fullerton, 4,513,123; Salt Lake, 1,256,941; Coyote Hills, 7,001,409; Whittier, 719,318; Montebello, 6,710,747; Richfield, 8,318,485; Huntington Beach-Newport, 10,810,194; and Santa Fe Springs, 12,151,311 barrels.

The start of the above fields were: Coyote Hills and Whittier 1912, with Fullerton and Salt Lake, producing nearly 9,000,000 barrels; Montebello's beginning, 1917, totaling for first year, 789,435; Richfield opens 1919, with 965,403 barrels; Huntington Beach begins, 1920, the year, 38,116; Long Beach starts, 1921, the eighth big field, first year 75,588 barrels, 1922 jumps to over 13,200,000; Santa Fe Springs begins 1921, production first year, 208,216, with 1922 approximately 12,150,000 barrels.

The great harbor committee of the Chamber of Commerce, recently organized, is laying out elaborate plans for making the facilities for oil shipments at the harbor capable of caring for the entire State's output, if necessary, within the next ten years. Five new companies are now building or have applications pending, for tidewater terminals at the harbor, the Associated Oil Company, Pan-American Petroleum and Transportation Company, Shell Oil Company of California, also refining tanks amounting to $5,000,000; Ventura Oil Company, Petroleum Export Company.

From thirty to 250 acres of land adjacent to the harbor have been purchased by each of the following oil companies for the erection of huge refineries: Petroleum Midway Company, Blue Tank Line, Associated Oil Company, and the O'Donnell Refining Company. The Union Oil Company and Standard have large projects afoot but official figures are not available at present.

METHODISTS OF AREA TO MEET

Orthodoxy of Textbook to be Threshed Out

Hope to Reawaken Interest in Southland

Prominent Speakers to Make Talks in February

As a result of present agitation on the part of some Methodist Episcopal ministers, who assert the theological standards of the Methodist Episcopal Church are being subverted by heresy, filtered in through some books in the course of study declared not to be orthodox, and for other reasons, chief among which is the awakening of Methodist activity in the Southland, an area council of church workers has been called for February 8 and 9, to be held in the University Church forenoons, with evening sessions in the Bovard Auditorium of the university. All sessions will be addressed by the best-known platform speakers of the church.

An area in Methodist parlance is equivalent practically to a diocese in the Episcopal or Catholic Church. The designated meetings next month will be known officially as gatherings of the San Francisco area council, because included under supervision of Bishop Leonard of the Methodist Episcopal Church is California, Nevada and Arizona. This council, of course, is a delegated body, but as specialists in church work are brought together from all parts of the country, its sessions are open to all who desire to attend.

BISHOPS WILL SPEAK

Southland Methodists are planning for large daily and nightly attendance during the scheduled meetings because magnetic speakers have been arranged for. The latter will come from all parts of the United States. Among them are Bishops W. O. Shephard, Portland; A. W. Leonard, San Francisco; Rev. Charles E. Guthrie, Chicago, general secretary of the Epworth leagues; Dr. M. W. Ehnes, Chicago, of the committee on conservation and advance; Dr. N. E. Davis, Chicago, board of hospitals and homes; Dr. Allan MacRossie, secretary of the commission on course of study of Methodist ministers.

In addition, leading ministers and laymen of the Pacific Coast will be in attendance and address the meetings.

One important feature of council meetings will be group gatherings of workers to be held afternoons in various classrooms of the university. Each will be presided over by an expert. Problems of vital importance will be taken up and discussed. The groups follow:

Educational, led by Dr. John F. Fishers, dean of Maclay School of Religion; Epworth League, led by Dr. Guthrie, general secretary; foreign missions, led by Dr. Marvin A. Rader, Pacific Coast secretary; home missions, led by Dr. C. E. Vermilya, frontier secretary Home Mission Board; pastors' institute, led by Dr. E. P. Dennet, pastor Trinity Church, Berkeley; social service, led by Dr. W. J. Sherman, San Francisco; lay activities, led by Hon. W. J. Morrish, president Commercial and Savings Bank, Berkeley; church schools, led by Dr. J. L. Corley, Sunday-school secretary Southern California; Women's Home Missionary Society, led by Mrs. H. F. Coates, Los Angeles; Women's Foreign Missionary Society, led by Mrs. S. F. Johnson, Pasadena; Ladies' Aid Society, led by Mmes. Rose of Sonora and Vandewater of Long Beach; training of Christian women, led by Dr. A. C. Stevens, national training school; hospitals and homes, led by Dr. N. E. Davis, Chicago.

DEBATE EXPECTED

With Dr. Allan MacRossie, executive head of the commission on course of study of Methodist ministers, in attendance at the council meetings, opportunity will be given to develop all points at issue over claims and counter-claims relative to the theological standards of the church. Dr. Harold Sloane of New Jersey in a printed volume recently published vigorously attacked the present course of study. The latter's ideas are very orthodox. Dr. MacRossie is credited with inclining to certain reforms, and lively debate is promised on this issue. It will have a very important place on the program during group meetings.

High spots of the council are expected to be the sounding of the keynote by Dr. I. Frank Roach, recently appointed pastor of First Church, Long Beach, over whose appointment a storm raged, finding its way into the newspapers; Bishop Leonard's address upon "Our Objectives," and the report of the committee on findings.

The two evening meetings to be held in the university auditorium will be given over to singing, spiritual devotion and addresses by Dr. MacRossie, Bishop Shephard and Bishop Leonard.

The committee of advance program of the church, at present in session in Chicago, will complete its work just in advance of the Southern California area council, and it is expected fully that the next step in the forward world program of the church will be explained and set forth at the gatherings.

University Church, Dr. Will A. Brown, pastor will entertain all delegates. Headquarters for programs and preliminaries are in the office of the area secretary, Dr. Lewis Thurber Guild, 1019 Wright-Callender Building.

FURNISHINGS TAKEN FROM WOMEN'S SHOP

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VENTURA, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Grace Scott, owner of a woman's furnishing shop, remained in her store till midnight taking stock. When she left, it was the burglar's turn. They stole $1600 worth of dresses, coats, scarves and other articles. The Sheriff's office has an important clue.

SHIPPING and Los Angeles Harbor NEWS

CHANGES AFFECT FLEET OFFICERS

More Than Fifty Navy Men in Shifts

Preparations for Cruise Now Under Way

Submarine Base Hospital to Have More Work

Wholesale shifting of the duties and stations of officers now with the battle fleet and submarine flotillas, Pacific Fleet at Los Angeles Harbor was announced yesterday by the Navy Department. In preparation for the Panama cruise of the United States Fleet more than fifty officers either will join the forces at this base or depart for other duties.

Prominent among these changes is the assignment of Commander Herbert H. Michael as commander of the U. S. S. Camden, flagship of the submarine flotillas, Pacific Fleet. Commander Michael is at present executive officer of the new scout cruiser Concord and will assume command of the Camden after she reaches Panama on February 19. Upon the completion of the Panama maneuver the Camden will go to the east coast for duty, being replaced at Los Angeles by the new tender Canopus, commanded by Commander Jonathan S. Dowell.

CHANGES ON TEXAS

The dreadnaught Texas also loses her navigation officer, Lieut.-Commander Charles R. Clark, by the new changes. He goes to duty with the destroyer squadrons of the battle fleet. Another popular officer to leave the fleet here will be Lieut.-Commander Robert T. Young, now aide on the staff of Rear-Admiral John V. Chase. He is assigned to the naval air station at Pensacola.

In a line with the Navy Department's recently announced policy to place three commissioned officers on each submarine, ten junior officers immediately will come to the local base for duty on the R and S-type underwater craft. They are:

Ensigns G. M. Brooks, to the R-6; Sumner C. Cheever, to the S-38; Stephen B. Cooke, to the R-1; Fred Morris, Jr., to the R-8; Eugene B. Oliver, to the R-7; Thomas A. Parfitt, to the R-3; Robert E. Permut, to the R-10; William S. Price, to the R-4; James C. Reisinger to the S-37; and Herbert A. Tellman to the S-36.

HOSPITAL CHANGES

When the fleet hospital ship Mercy sails with the Battle Fleet for Panama on February 8 the Submarine Base Hospital will thereafter care for all medical and surgical cases at the local base. In charge of the increased activities at the hospitals will be Lieut.-Commander Lucius W. Johnson, transferred from the Mercy to the base.

Other important changes in the local fleet force, as announced yesterday include:

Lieut.-Commander Stanley D. Hart, from duty as surgeon on the repair ship Vestal to the transport Chaumont; Lieut. Albert R. Parker, from the receiving ship San Francisco, to duty as chaplain of the dreadnaught Texas; Lieut. Phillip H. Taft, from the submarine tender Ortolan to the battleship division, battle fleet; Lieut. Truman E. Ayers, from the dreadnaught Texas to the receiving ship, Puget Sound.

SUBMARINE TENDER IN HOME PORT

Spick and Span After New Coat of Paint, Camden is Ready for Cruise

After a leisurely run down the Coast from San Francisco, the submarine tender Camden returned to her home base yesterday afternoon after an absence of almost nine months. As bright and new in appearance as the day in 1900 when she left the yards of her German builders, the Camden during her absence has been completely overhauled, reconditioned and even has had her outline changed.

She went to Mare Island Navy Yard last spring with two stacks and came back yesterday with but one, while her superstructure has also been shifted to more simple lines.

The Camden is the flagship of Capt. Amon Bronson, Jr., commanding submarine flotillas, Pacific, and Tuesday morning Capt. Bronson and his staff will rejoin the flagship. The eight R-type submarines of operative division 9 also will move out alongside the mother ship on that date.

The Camden and her flock of undersea fighters will be the first units of the battle fleet to depart for Panama. On the morning of February 5 they will head south, join the destroyer squadrons at San Diego and proceed to Magdalena Bay with that force. In the West Coast haven the submarines and destroyers will take fuel while awaiting the arrival of the battleship force, due to sail from Los Angeles on next February 8.

MAKES REPORT ON SHIP MOVEMENTS

BUSINESS AT LOCAL PORT IN DECEMBER WAS BRISK, SAYS SCHWAEBE

The report of Collector Schwaebe, completed yesterday, gives the following statement of the movement of vessels in and out of the local port for December.

Coastwise—vessels entered, 127; crews, 9320; net tons, 377,666. Cleared—127 vessels, crews, 9526; net tons, 414,774.

Noncontiguous coastwise — Entered, two vessels; crews, 342; net tons, 13,187. Cleared—three vessels, crews, 654; net tons, 23,701.

Foreign—vessels entered, 133, crews, 2540; net tons, 132,114. Cleared—seventy-six vessels, crews, 1649; net tons, 83,537.

Of the vessels that entered eighty-eight were American, eleven British, twenty-two Japanese, four Mexican, four Norwegian, and one each from Denmark, Germany, Portugal and Holland. Of the vessels that cleared, fifty-eight were American, seven British, five Japanese, three Mexican, two Norwegian and one Holland.

PORT NOTES

Capt. Tom Bias was back on the bridge of the Pacific Mail's passenger liner Ecuador yesterday when she came in en route to New York. It was the popular Pacific skipper's first call here in more than a year. Capt. Bias, who commanded formerly the liner Colombia on the New York-Pacific run, succeeds Capt. Thomas Flemming on the Ecuador. Capt. Flemming recently was appointed a pilot to the port of Shanghai. Two Pacific Mail liners were at the company's terminal at the port yesterday, the Santa Malta arriving from San Francisco to load a large shipment of Southland products for the east coast.

On her first call at Los Angeles Harbor, the steamer Herman Frasch came in yesterday from Sabine, Tex., with 7500 tons of sulphur for the General Chemical Company here.

Commander M. G. Cook, commanding the naval ammunition carrier Nitro, has discovered a new method of signaling when fogbound. The Nitro was entering the Golden Gate this week in a fog so thick that signal-flags were useless. Commander Cooke, with the Nitro's searchlight, wrote the words, "Pilot wanted," on a cloud nearby. Pilot M. J. Healy saw the signal and responded.

The steamer Lakeshore, latest addition to the lumber fleet of the E. K. Wood interests, sailed yesterday for San Francisco for an extensive overhaul before re-entering the lumber trade.

Two more vessels of the sailing fleet back in the lumber trade from the north to Los Angeles Harbor are en route here. They are the barkentines Alta and W. H. Talbot, from Bellingham.

For dry-docking and hull cleaning, the dreadnaught Arizona will sail for San Francisco this morning, leaving the Mississippi as the only unit of Battleship Division Four in port. The Arizona will return to the local base on the 23rd inst.

Woodcrafters Making Great Forward Stride

The first annual meeting of the Western Woodcraft Association, held last night at the California-street school, revealed that the organization is fast becoming one of the leading boys' recreation and educational bodies in the country.

Speakers who told of the work of the association and outlined its future plans included Dr. Charles Lincoln Edwards, director of nature study for the Los Angeles city schools; Mr. Joplin of the Better-American Federation, Harry C. James, founder and chief of the organization, and E. R. Bohan, president, who told of a plan for a program of citizenship training for the coming year.

The board of directors, re-elected, were E. R. Bohan, president; Mrs. G. Witherspoon, vice-president; Norman D. Bishop, secretary and treasurer; Dr. David McLean and Harry C. James.

OFFERED LARGE SUM FOR PRIZE CHICKENS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—A telegram has been received by Paul E. Kennedy, local poultry dealer, from a Texas firm offering him $100 for a pen of five Rhode Island Red fowls exhibited at the Red Club of Texas, held in connection with the Lone Star Poultry Association show in San Antonio. Mr. Kennedy also received word that he had been awarded two prizes.

POMONA IS BUSY IN BUILDING LINE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—A store building to cost $4000, a comfort station to cost $1880 and five new homes, including a double apartment-house to cost $4200 are the chief new structures that will be built in Pomona, according to a report of the past week by the City Building Inspector's office. This brings the month's total up to $45,580.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—The steamer City of Para, one of the veterans of the Pacific Mail Company's fleet of small vessels, was transferred today to Panamanian registry when Francisco Jimenez, Consul of the Republic of Panama, hoisted the flag of that country above the ship in the presence of company officials.

The City of Para, which has been idle here since April, 1921, is to be recommissioned and put into the Pacific Mail feeder service between Mazatlan and Balboa. The vessel will sail from San Francisco on February 5, under command of Capt. A. B. Hunter.

SEATTLE, Jan. 13.—The steamship President Hayes, which will inaugurate a passenger and freight service from the west coast of North America to the east coast of South America for the Shipping Board when she departs from this port at 11 a.m. Wednesday, arrived today and began loading.

Carried on by freighters—and many years ago by sailing vessels—trade relations between the two coasts have been intermittent. Pacific Coast commodities going to Brazil and Argentina have mostly been transshipped on the Atlantic Coast of the United States.

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Jan. 13.—From Australia and Fiji, the steamer Canadian Transporter has arrived with 1600 tons of raw sugar.

The American motorship Coeicha was to leave tonight for Los Angeles, via Everett. She loaded 800,000 feet of lumber at Dollarton.

TACOMA, Jan. 13.—The motorship Donna Lane is listed to arrive here Monday from the dry dock at Harbor Island to load.

The motorship Coeicha is also due Monday to load for California and the steamer Coolina is to take cargo here. The Pawnee, said to be under the Panaman flag, will load for Australia and the Herman Frasch for the Atlantic Coast.

ASTORIA (Or.) Jan. 13.—The steamer Commercial Guide, from the Atlantic Coast via San Francisco, arrived today and went to Portland.

PORTLAND, Jan. 13.—Four thousand tons of copra from the South Seas is an item of the cargo of the steamer Eastern Sailor, now about ready to leave the Orient for Portland in the line of the Columbia-Pacific Shipping Company. Inbound freight, which has been scarce during the past two years, is increasing, according to oriental steamship operators here.

J. V. Mason, head of the Portland Marine Supply Company, has gone to San Francisco to arrange for return cargoes for the steamer Egeria, which is under charter to carry seven cargoes of lumber to Los Angeles. The Egeria is now in the south on her first trip.

In the west coast South American service of the General Steamship Corporation, the steamer Jeptha arrived tonight to load general cargo.

H. F. Alexander, head of the Pacific Steamship Company, was here today to resume negotiations for the purchase of the steamer Rose City from the San Francisco and Portland Steamship Company. Prospects were, according to unofficial waterfront talk, that the deal will soon be completed.

Boy Scouts of Glendale Elect New Officers

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, Jan. 13.—A. R. Eastman of North Louise street was elected president of the Verdugo Hills Boy Scout Council at the first annual meeting of the council last night. Dan C. Kelly was elected secretary and Roy L. Kent treasurer. Charles N. Miller of Pasadena was the principal speaker, calling attention to the juvenile problem.

The retiring president of the council, Charles L. Chandler, was elected scout commissioner, and acted as toastmaster. A two-year budget was presented and approved, providing for an expenditure of $10,000 during the ensuing year and for $12,500 for the year of 1924. Musical numbers were contributed by the council orchestra and Mayor and Mrs. Robinson of Glendale. D. Ripley Jackson led the singing of the assembly.

JUDGE INDICTED ON RUM BRIBERY CHARGE

ACTION TAKEN AFTER FEDERAL AGENTS DEMAND CITY'S CLEAN-UP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALINAS, Jan. 13.—An indictment charging W. H. Chadney, police judge of Monterey, with corruption in office in accepting asserted bribes from bootleggers, was returned by Monterey county grand jury here today. Judge Chadney, when informed of the grand jury's action, surrendered and was released under $4000 bond. He also voiced a denial of charges to newspaper men. He said, "they have nothing whatever on me."

Asst. Dist.-Atty. Treat of Monterey county began an investigation of conditions in Monterey soon after the visit of the United Coast Guard cutter Shawnee last week, when, it is asserted, Capt. C. H. howell warned Monterey officials to "clean the town of bootleggers or the United States would."

When the grand jury convened today Mr. Treat presented evidence. The indictment followed.

The incident of the Shawnee's visit attracted State-wide attention last week. Mayor P. J. Daugherty yesterday dispatched a long letter to Lieut. Commander C. G. Carmine, division commander of the Coast Guard, in protest against Capt. Howell's action in warning Monterey officials. The text of the letter has not been given out.

AGED POMONA MAN ALONE AT PASSING

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—J. M. West, 81 years of age, a gardener, died in his room in this city during the night without anyone knowing of his condition. His body was found this afternoon after he had failed to arise at his usual early hour. He had been under the care of a physician for the past few weeks, and due to this fact no inquest will be held. He was an old resident here and had a wide acquaintance. Little is known of his past and as far as could be learned he has no relatives living. Funeral services will be Monday morning at the Todd & Reeves chapel, with Rev. John Hall, pastor of the First Methodist Church.

PRIZE PEACOCK IS BACK IN GLENDALE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, Jan. 13. — Glendale's proud peacock, winner of first prize at Pasadena's floral tournament returned home today under escort. The float was driven home by Ray Foster of a local auto agency. Mr. Foster was the driver of the float, which is built on a tractor, in the parade on New Years' Day.

The bird has been in the courtyard of Grauman's Egyptian Theater in Hollywood, where the blossoms were kept replenished.

MAYOR TO ENTERTAIN

Long Beach City Manager Also to be Employees' Host

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 13.—Employees of the city will be the guests of Mayor C. A. Buffum and City Manager C. H. Windham at a "get together" banquet Monday evening in the dining-room of the First Christian Church.

The purpose of the banquet is to gain the whole-hearted co-operation of city workers in carrying out the plans and policies of the present administration.

The Mayor and the City Manager will address employees on what the municipality expects to accomplish in the way of improvements during the ensuing year. It will be the first banquet of its kind ever given here.

TWO HELD IN LIQUOR RAID

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 13.—Sheriff Bob Hill, assisted by Grover Hill, county prohibition agent, and Undersheriff Charles Hurst, made his first moonshine raid last night on a ranch near Waukena and arrested Vito Ponzio, said to be the leader of a band, and Tony Lacariski, who probably will be tried on charge of operating a still. Ponzio recently paid a $750 fine in Fresno for a similar offense. Much paraphernalia was found and search will be made for the still proper.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken-out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.—[Advertisement.

PORT TRAFFIC AID PROMISED

Immediate action to relieve congestion at Los Angeles Harbor was decided upon yesterday at a conference among representatives of railroads with terminals at the port, steamship company officials and members of the Harbor Commission.

As the first step in the effort to expedite movement of freight to and from the port it was announced that several miles of additional trackage will be laid near the harbor. This will enable the railroads to keep enough freight cars on sidings at the port to move freight immediately it is unloaded from the vessels.

Railroad representatives at the conference also pledged themselves to do everything in their power to eliminate the freight-car shortage at the port. The plan includes a number of other details which, when worked out, will go far toward relieving congestion, it was stated.

Yesterday's conference was the first of its kind since the enormous increase in intercoastal trade at the harbor. Traffic conditions at the port, it was pointed out, are becoming more aggravated daily as the business there expands.

Present at the meeting were a committee of railroad traffic officials headed by D. W. Pontius, superintendent of the Pacific Electric system; Edgar McKee, chairman of the Harbor Commission, several other members of that body, and Capt. S. S. Sandberg, port traffic manager.

Capt. Sandberg declared after the meeting that the plans outlined at the joint conference will reduce materially the congestion at the harbor if not entirely eliminate it.

ANGORA SLOWS UP PEACE DOVE

Allied Diplomats Dismayed at Turkish Stand

Ismet Pasha Declares Some Concessions Due

Ottoman Sees Others' Haste, So Takes Time

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LAUSANNE, Jan. 13.—The voice of faraway Angora, heard today through the mouth of Hassan Bey, who has just returned from the capital, was so discordant to the Allied representatives that many were wondering tonight whether the Near East Conference will ever progress toward peace.

Ismet Pasha, who backed Hassan Bey, could neither be threatened nor cajoled into seeing the financial questions affecting Turkey as the Allied delegates wanted him to see them. He said the Turks had made concessions ever since they came to Lausanne and that it was now about time the Allies reciprocated.

As some of the Allies feel they have gone far enough in the matter of conciliation, they did not seem to know whether to accept this as a serious declaration, but Ismet laughed outright for the first time since the inauguration of the conference, and most of the European diplomats got the impression that Mustapha Kemal Pasha's favorite general was having his little joke.

TURKS TAKE TIME

Far from being split asunder by the Paris reparations differences, France and England seem to be working even closer together at Lausanne, apparently with the supreme object of settling the peace in the Near East as soon as possible, so they may be free to concentrate on the greater problem of the reconstruction of Europe as a whole. The Turks, who are good psychologists, immediately sensed this policy and are not disposed to hurry.

The conference leaders summoned today a meeting of the full commission on economic and financial questions to act on the report of the subcommission concerning the Ottoman debt, war damages and the expenses of the Allied occupation of Turkey.

This subcommission recommended that the Turkish debt up to the time of the World War should be apportioned among the territories detached from Turkey, such as Syria, Mesopotamia, the Kingdom of the Hedjas, Palestine and Albania, but the Turks insisted that all debts incurred by Turkey during the war should also be distributed among the so-called succession states. These debts, they said, were incurred for the good of all the former Turkish Empire, including those parts now detached.

CURZON WARNED

Marquis Curzon for Great Britain maintained that the date to be taken should be the beginning of the war, and warned the Angora delegates that they gave the impression of deliberately putting an obstacle in the path of the peace for which all were striving.

After emphasizing that the Turks had done nothing but make concessions, Ismet Pasha said:

"We are only asking for the minimum in everything."

Then he laughed heartily.

Lord Curzon remarked:

"Now that Ismet Pasha has had his little joke, I think it is time he made his concession."

But Ismet Pasha replied:

"Excuse me—we are very poor at Angora."

FREIGHT COSTS VARY GASOLINE PRICES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Prices charged for gasoline by the Atlantic Refining Company in Pennsylvania during the first half of 1922, averaged about 3 cents a gallon above the prices of the Standard Oil Company in the neighboring State of Ohio, because of greater freight costs on crude oil to the Pennsylvania territory, Wm. Irish, vice-president of the Atlantic company, testified today at the Senate oil inquiry.

LOS ANGELES HARBOR BASE FOR ENTIRE FLEET

of Facilities is Recognized in Navy Reorganization; Trade Boom Seen

Insurance is protection against future disaster. It is a guar- against loss, damage or death. The thoughful individual this protection from insurance companies, but the life commerce of a nation is insured by its navy. Los Angeles is now the principal beneficiary of our nation's naval policy, signed by Admiral R. E. Coontz, Chief of Operations, and which became effective on the first day of the year.

Los Angeles Harbor, through the reorganization of the United States naval forces and as set forth in General Order 94 of the Navy Department, has become the tactical base of the United States Fleet.

Since the first of the year there has been no Pacific Fleet, nor has there existed an Atlantic Fleet. Both have been consolidated into the United States Fleet—not a temporary consolidation to be in effect just so long as the mammoth maneuvers, to be opened next month off Panama, are in progress, but it is to be a permanent reorganization.

NOW IT'S BATTLE FLEET

That which was the Pacific Fleet is now the Battle Fleet. The Battle Fleet is the nation's first line of defense. The test of a nation's power is in its Battle Fleet, in its capital ships which constitute that first line of defense.

The Naval Treaty has dictated that the United States shall maintain only eighteen first-line battleships. Twelve of this number—the newest and most powerful of the eighteen capital ships—will be stationed at Los Angeles Harbor, but they, alone, do not constitute the Battle Fleet. General Order 94 specifies that the first line of defense shall be augmented by thirty-eight destroyers, by seven of the navy's ten air squadrons, by forty of the Navy's ninety-four submarines and to which another division of nine or ten submarines will be added at a later date, and

CHAMBER CONTEST POPULAR

Photographic Competition Bringing Hundreds of Fine Pictures

More than 800 pictures have been entered in the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce photograph contest to close Tuseday night, the 23rd inst.

Keen interest has been registered by contestants in each of the southern counties, although Angelenos predominate. San Bernardino county residnets have flooded the contest committee with winter and summer scenes of the Big Bear region, many of these amateurs possessing a professional eye for picture-taking.

Arroyo Seco is another favorite picture-taking region and numbers of fascinating desert scenes are including among the most artistic. Exposition Park Buildings, the Southwest Museum and business districts have been submitted in duplicate by a number. Los Angeles parks, motor roads, palm-lined drives, bungalows with great flowers gardens, historic homes and missions are other common subjects.

Harbor activities and some splendid pictures of new oilfield districts have furnished good industrial subjects for the files of the Chamber.

Thirteen prizes only can be awarded and the selection of the best pictures will be difficult out of the large number of excellent pictures turned in. First prize will be $25, second, $15 and third $10, with ten others of $5 each for the permanent use of negatives.

Plane Mounted on Skis Carries Actors in Play

The sleigh has been supplanted by an airplane mounted on skis at Truckee, Cal., where the Universal Company is filming "Bavu," a play based on the Russian revolution, which is directed by Stuart Patton.

The plane, piloted by Capt. C. L. Anderson, former army aviation instructor at Reno, Nev., is being used to transport the players, camera men and others from Truckee to Lake Tahoe, a distance of approximately seventy-five miles, where many of the scenes in the play are being taken.

Previously sleighs had been used but this method of transportation proved so slow that the plane finally was obtained, mounted on skis and put into use. The journey from Truckee to Lake Tahoe now is negotiated in about one-tenth the time consumed in making the trip by sleigh.

Wallace Berry is taking the leading role in the play. He is supported by Estelle Taylor and Forrest Stanley. Harry Webb is the assistant director. The play was written and produced on the stage by Earl Carroll, who formerly resided in Los Angeles.

Chamber to Aid Bakers in Move for Bread Week

Co-operation with bankers for the first Bread Week, the 21st to 28th insta., will be given by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and Civic clubs, as well as by grocers and wholesalers.

Proclamation of Bread Week for the city by Mayor Cryer recently encouraged the Southern California Wholesale and Retail Bakers' Association to make elaborate plans for the entertainment of men prominent nationally in the bread industry in connection with an educational campaign.

Invitation has been extended to community leaders, and those engaged in the trade will hear Dr. H. E. Barnard, secretary of the American Bakers' Association, of Chicago; and John Hartley, secretary of the National Retail Master Bakers' Association, at a banquet at the Elite, at 6:30 p. m., Thursday, the 25th inst.

Evening meetings in three Los Angeles High Schools have been arranged to educate housewives and show methods used in up-to-date bakeries of the country. Speakers and motion pictures will be included in the programs.

Paper of Local High School Is Praised Highly

In a letter received yesterday by Ben Seid, editor of the Manual Arts High School Weekly, H. N. McClaine of Columbia University stated that of all of the high school papers in the United States which were examined by the students of the school recently, the Manual Arts Weekly was one of the highest five.

"The paper published by your school was one of the few selected by a group of Columbia University students as typical of the best in high school journalism. I will appreciate receiving a few of your current issues from time to time that I may use them in my journalism classes," concluded Mr. McClaine.

This is considered one of the highest honors which a Los Angeles high school paper ever has received, according to R. A. Maynard, instructor of journalism at Manual Arts.

MONTE VISTA LODGE PLANS TO BE AIRED

Plans for 1923 to be acted upon at the annual meeting in February will be discussed at an open-house gathering announced by the Council of Community Service of California, for the 20th inst., at Monte Vista Lodge, Sunland. The meeting will be from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Mrs. J. T. Anderson, president, and Mrs. Milford G. Cooper and Mrs. Florine Hellman Wolfstein, secretaries, have prepared notices for the meeting. Invitations have been sent to all organizations and individuals interested.

Practically every woman's organization, national or local, in California, is represented in the membership of the council.

CONDITIONS IN MEXICO RELATED BY AUTHORITY

Enrique C. Creel, Former American Ambassador, Sees Hope for Disrupted Country

The disorganization of Mexico is due generally to the disorders of the revolutions of the last ten years, but particularly to the disrespect of property rights that accompanied it, thinks Hon Enrique C. Creel, former Mexican Ambassador, who has just returned here from Mexico and who yesterday gave an interview to The Times based on his recent observations in his country after an absence therefrom of eight years. Mr. Creel, one-time Mexican diplomat, Governor and Cabinet member, represents as well as any other Mexican the best of the old governing class, ousted by the series of political eruptions started by Francisco I. Madero in 1910. His study of present-day Mexico is the first studious one made by a member of the old school in Mexico, and Mr. Creel speaks with a singular absence of bitterness for the losses of himself and his class, and with considerable hope for the future.

Mr. Creel under the Diaz administration was Governor of his native State of Chihuahua, where he was closely associated with the immense Terrazas holdings and also served his country as Ambassador to Washington and for a time as Secretary of State in the Diaz Cabinet. He has lived here for nearly nine years. He now returns after spending eight months at Mexico City, where he made it a point to look into economic, political and social conditions. Since Mr. Creel has been away from his country during the greatest period of the revolutionary convulsions, he views things in their before-and-after light. In his conclusions he says:

"During the eight years I was away from Mexico the population was reduced by 3,000,000 inhabitants and the wealth of the country by 3,000,000,000 pesos, which is equivalent to $1,500,000,000 American currency.

"After such great losses I might have expected to find a national graveyard and poverty, ruin and desolation everywhere. But I knew better. What is left is enough to build a great country whenever the machinery is started running with order, regularity and energy.

"The country is coming out of the chaotic conditions brought on by a series of revolutions. Some improvement already can be noticed and there is hope for reconstruction and advancement.

"The country is at peace for the first time in twelve years. The revolutionary movements have been defeated or have died out. They are not popular. The Mexicans don't want to have any more revolutions.

"One of the things that at present produces unrest and keeps away from President Obregon some of the best and most important classes of Mexicans is the situation brought about by the agrarian laws. It is not that the large land properties have been subdivided, but in the acts of confiscation without just compensation. Such things are condemned not only in Mexico, but in all civilized nations.

"I am in hope that Article XXVII of the constitution of 1917, which is responsible for these confiscations, will be changed in some satisfactory way, both for Mexicans and foreigners."

Mr. Creel went on to outline the economic disasters of this system of disrespect for property rights.

"Money is very scarce," he says. "The rate of interest fluctuates from 10 to 36 per cent per annum, which is prohibitive. The monetary system consists of gold and silver coin. The gold is being drained out of the country and the silver money is at a discount of 2 per cent. The depreciation may continue, as the silver in each Mex-

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS MOVE

Merchants' and Credit Organizations Take Quarters in New Sun Building

Feeling that the growth of both bodies forced them to seek a more central location, where they can expand more easily the Los Angeles Retail Dry Goods Merchants' Association and the Los Angeles Retail Merchants' Credit Associations moved last week to new quarters. The Sun Building, a recently completed sky scraper at the intersection of Seventh and Hill streets, was selected as the organization's new home, the retail association occupying the ninth floor and the credit association the tenth.

About one-half of the space taken by the Retail Dry Goods Association will be maintained for their own quarter. The remainder will be sublet.

Former quarters for the Dry Goods Association were in the Broadway Central Building, where a two-room office suite was maintained.

At the new quarters, the various branches of the association will have more room. The branches are the traffic, protective, bad checks and impersonation.

Of the branches, the protective department is the most interesting. It is this corps of experts who are warring on shoplifting in Los Angeles—a war that has brought splendid results.

A large room of the Association's space, facing Seventh street, has been retained for directors' meeting.

The Credit Association was organized in 1910 with quarters in the Hollingsworth Building. It remained there several years and had only eight persons on its staff. The Association then moved to the Wright and Callender Building where headquarters were maintained until 1919 with fourteen employees. Next the I. W. Hellman Block was occupied.

The Credit Association now has seventy-five employees and has 420 merchants as members.

The Credit Association stands second in the United States in per cent of recovery of outstanding accounts a month.

WOODCUTS SPECIALTY OF GERITZ

Los Angeles Artist Wins Recognition for Work in Unusual Handicraft

Instruction in the art of woodblock (or linoleum block) cutting and printing was had by Xavier Guerrero, head of art education in Mexico and in charge of the Mexican Art Exhibit here, from Frank Geritz, widely known Los Angeles block worker, with a view to introducing the process into the high schools of Mexico. He heard of the block cutting in vogue at the Los Angeles High Schools.

Senor Guerrero also invited Mr. Geritz to send an exhibition of his block prints to the Mexican National Academy of Fine Arts at Mexico City.

Mr. Geritz, who has executed woodblock portraits of many screen, stage and opera celebrities, and has exhibited extensively, is also instructing with the University of California Extension Division, and has just closed a class composed of high-school teachers. Two new classes have been formed, one evening and the other morning. The evening class will be held Wednesdays and starts on the 17th inst. at 7 p.m., while the morning class will be held Saturdays and starts on the 20th at 10 a.m. Both are to be held at 805 South Flower street. Registration for the classes is to be made at 815 South Hill street.

With seven block prints and one etching, Mr. Geritz had the largest exhibit in the forty-sixth annual exhibition of the San Francisco Art Association at San Francisco, just closed. He also had fifty-six block prints at the San Diego Museum and twenty-six at the Glendale High School, through the Los Angeles Museum traveling exhibition.

NATIONAL ARMY PLAN OUTLINED

Make-up of Defense Forces Made Plain

Skeleton Organization of Army Wisdom

Former Service Men Base of Scheme

BY COL. W. S. BARLOW, U.S.A.

In recent articles I have spoken of the "Reserve Officers' Training Corps" and of the "National Guard." I now approach the subject of the "Organized Reserve," one of the most important and far-reaching schemes for the national defense ever recommended by the War Department and approved by Congress.

At the close of the Great War the people were very eager that the country should return as quickly as possible to normalcy. To accomplish this the most drastic reductions in national expenditures were made in every direction, the blow falling most heavily upon the personnel of the Army and Navy.

The War Department realized the great need for preparation in time of peace, and the necessity of having a plan by which officers and men could be trained and held in readiness in large numbers in skeleton organizations. It also felt the advisability of utilizing the experience of the immense number of trained officers discharged after the World War; and therefore cast about for a scheme which would carry out these ideas to the fullest extent, with the least expense to the government. The plan selected was that of the "Organized Reserve," which briefly is as follows:

The Organized Reserve consists of skeleton armies, corps, divisions, brigades and regiments, with at present nearly eighty thousand officers personnel, and a small enlisted personel consisting mostly of specialists, of whom there are at present about 800. The nine corps areas into which the United States is divided by the War Department for the control of the "Regular Army" have charge of the Organized Reserve; each corps area is responsible for the organizing, equipping, administration and training of the Reserve forces within its geographical boundaries.

MAKE-UP OF ARMY

The military forces of the United States before the World War consisted of the Regular Army, the National Guard, and the volunteers, the latter, during the World War being known as the National Army. The National Army was organized and trained after the war began, all the work being done after instead of before the outbreak of war; this caused great delay and the loss of valuable time. It was only because the Allies held an impregnable wall behind which we might prepare that we came out as well as we did; the next war may not and probably will not begin under such favorable circumstances. The Organized Reserve is designed to take the place of this National Army, doing as much work as possible before the outbreak of war, and having ready for use a skeleton organization by twenty-four other ships serving as tenders, supply ships, mine layers, etc.

That which was the Atlantic Fleet is now the Scouting Fleet, with the Atlantic Ocean as its field of operations. The Scouting Fleet includes the six oldest battleships now in service, thirty-eight destroyers, three air squadrons, forty-three submarines and nineteen auxiliary ships.

CONTROL FORCE ALSO

In addition to these two fleets there are also, the Control Force, with four mine-layers and a flagship; the Asiatic Fleet, with eleven patrol ships, a mine detachment of four ships, nineteen destroyers, eleven submarines and four auxiliaries; the European Naval Forces with nine destroyers and one flagship; the Special Service Squadron with five light second-line cruisers; the Naval Transportation Service with seventeen ships; ten smaller ships on special duty; one survey ship and two ships on duty with the Bureau of Fisheries.

Thus far no official has ventured to declare authoritatively that Los Angeles Harbor has been chosen as the base of operations for the entire United States Fleet.

"You may speculate on that, if you wish," the naval officials state.

It is not a wildcat speculation. Admiral Coontz has assigned to the battle fleet, with base headquarters at Los Angeles Harbor, the following capital ships: Maryland, 32,600 tons, eight 16-inch guns; California, 32,300 tons, twelve 14-inch guns; Tennessee, 32,300 tons, twelve 14-inch guns; New Mexico, 32,300 tons, twelve 14-inch guns; Idaho, 32,000 tons, twelve 14-inch guns; Mississippi, 32,300 tons, twelve 14-inch guns; Arizona, 31,400 tons, twelve 14-inch guns; Pennsylvania, 31,400 tons, twelve 14-inch guns; Nevada, 27,500 tons, ten 14-inch guns; Oklahoma, 27,500 tons, ten 14-inch guns; Texas, 27,000 tons, ten 14-inch guns; New York, 27,000 tons, ten 14-inch guns.

The U.S.S. Maryland, the most powerful battleship the United States possesses, and the only American ship equipped with 16-inch guns, is designated in General Order 94 as the flagship of the United States Fleet. It is the executive quarters of the commander-in-chief of all the ships in the United States Navy.

The Maryland has been assigned to the battle fleet "for tactical training," hence it will be stationed at Los Angeles Harbor. That it will remain here is an assured fact. By a rule of the Navy Department all oil-burning capital ships are assigned to duty on the Pacific Coast, where fueling facilities do not present the perplexing problem that prevails on the Atlantic seaboard. Here is the fuel oil supply. Here the oil-burning battleships will remain.

The Maryland is now on the eastern coast. At the conclusion of naval maneuvers in Central-American waters the Maryland will come to Los Angeles Harbor. If she does return to the Atlantic it will be only for a short period to have her range-finding equipment readjusted.

Out upon the battleships that roll at anchor in the harbor there is some speculation among higher naval officers that Admiral Hilary P. Jones, the present commander-in-chief of the United States Fleet, will hold the Pennsylvania as his flagship. If this be true, Los Angeles will be the headquarters of the United States Fleet, nevertheless, for the Pennsylvania also is a unit of the battle fleet.

That Admiral Jones will come to the Pacific Coast at the conclusion of the naval maneuvers, there is no doubt. Capt. W. H. Stanley, assistant chief of staff of the battle fleet, stated authoritatively yesterday that Admiral Jones will visit the Pacific Coast, following the maneuvers, on an inspection tour which will extend over several months.

In July or August the commands of the fleet are scheduled to be changed. Among the higher commands in the Navy, two years of duty at sea are followed by two years of duty on land. It is a precedent of the Navy. Those officers now serving on the ships will be transferred to shore duty. That change is due next July.

Admiral Jones will probably be given a high post in the shore establishment. Likewise, Admiral Eberle, the present commander of the battle fleet and second in command of the United States Fleet, will be transferred or retired.

Admiral Coontz, chief of naval operations, and who, while on duty here with Admiral Rodman two years ago, displayed a keen interest in the future of Los Angeles, is a probable candidate for the post of commander-in-chief of the United States Fleet. The consolidation of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets—with the local harbor as the base of the battle fleet—was effected by Admiral Coontz, as chief of naval operations, after two years of analytical study.

At a later date the battle fleet will be increased. Two powerful battleships are now under construction. At Camden, N. J., the U. S. S. Colorado is nearing completion. At Newport News the finishing touches are being applied to the U. S. S. West Virginia.

The Colorado and the West Virginia, each will be armed with eight sixteen-inch guns. In weight, speed and strength they are equal to the Maryland and are being completed as compensation for the retention of the Matsu by Japan. When they are completed they will displace the Delaware and the North Dakota, now assigned to the scouting fleet, and which must be scrapped under terms of the naval treaty.

The Colorado and West Virginia are oil burners. They will be assigned to the battle fleet at Los Angeles Harbor, which, with the Maryland, will give to Los Angeles Harbor the three most powerful battleships afloat in the United States Navy—the only three United States battleships carrying sixteen-inch guns.

"You may safely speculate on that," said one high naval official yesterday.

CREDIT TO HARBOR

The establishing of the nation's first line of defense at Los Angeles Harbor is doubtlessly one of the greatest investments in continued progress that Los Angeles could receive, not alone for protection from aggression, but for the increase of commerce.

Los Angeles Harbor in a brief span of years has grown from a barren and unsightly slough to the eighth harbor in the United States. Its amazing growth has been more noticeable during the last few years, and yet it continues to grow faster than ever before. Its ever-increasing value to shipping has been recognized by the naval department, which has conclusively chosen the local port as its naval base in preference to larger and older harbors on the Pacific seaboard.

The concentration of the majority of the naval units in Southern California waters necessarily does not mean necessarily that Southern California is a vital point at which an enemy may strike. No other harbor can offer such convenient training areas under as favorable weather conditions as Southern California. This is the principal reason—this and the superior facilities for fueling and supplying the fleet.

Greatest of all—as Los Angeles should regard the establishing of the United States Fleet here—it is a boon to trade between Los Angeles and foreign countries.

"The United States cannot export or import without ships," said Admiral Coontz, the man responsible for the reorganization of the United States Fleet, recently. "Ships cannot carry on foreign trade without having first obtained the good-will of foreign nations. The good-will of foreign nations cannot be obtained if the United States does not maintain a navy of sufficient size to guarantee the sovereignty and the rights of our citizens abroad.

"It has been the experience of ages that commerce and naval power are indissolubly united. Competition is keen. There is no side-stepping the fact that commercial rivalry has many times in the past, and in the very recent past, developed into national rivalry and has led to war. And war, based upon commercial rivalry, is lost if, during the war or after the war, commercial advantages are nullified.

"The Navy is an investment to the nation in a way other than that of protecting trade. The Navy is a developer of trade."

PRIVATE INTERESTS HIT

In the face of the wealth of advantages which Los Angeles commerce reaps from the establishing of the fleet at the local harbor, there exist certain private interests who are endeavoring to deprive the battle fleet of what meager accommodations it now possesses.

Lack of accommodations necessitates the anchoring of most of the battleships outside the breakwater, where the mighty ships roll violently in open sea. Only two of the battleships can be anchored within the breakwater. The fleet is on the verge of losing these two berths through protests of certain commercial shipping interests.

"We must have quiet waters within the breakwater for our hospital ships, our repair ships and for the battleships when they are fueling," said Capt. Stanley, assistant chief of staff. "The battleships cannot take on fuel in the open sea. Our hospital ships cannot anchor outside the breakwater. If these two berths are taken from us we will be forced into the open sea for anchorage."

Though San Diego will remain the base for the destroyer forces, the headquarters of the battle fleet's six destroyer divisions will be at Los Angeles Harbor. The Charleston, a second-line cruiser, has been assigned as the flagship of the thirty-eight destroyers with the Altair, Melville and Rigel as tenders.

SHIPS CONTROLLED HERE

The destroyers to be controlled from Los Angeles Harbor are as follows:

Squadron 11—Delphi (squadron leader,) Chauncey, Fuller, Percival, J. F. Burnes, Farragut, Somers, Stoddert, Reno, Farquhar, Thompson, Kennedy, Paul Hamilton, William Jones, Woodbury, S. P. Lee, Nicholas, Young and Zeilen; Squadron 12—McDermut (squadron leader,) Yarborough, Lavallette, Sloat, Wood, Shirk, Kidder, Selfridge, Marcus, Mervine, Chase, Robert Smith, Mullany, Hull, MacDonough, Farenholt, Sumner, Corry and Melvin.

The aircraft squadrons, which will be directed also from Los Angeles Harbor, though their base will remain at San Diego, will consists of the Procyon as flagship, and aircraft tender, the Langley and Gannet as tenders, and the following air units: Observation Plane Squadrons 1, 2 and 3; Torpedo and Bombing Plane Squadson 2; Fighting Plane Squadrons 1, 2 and 3.

The fleet base force, to be stationed at Los Angeles Harbor, consists of the Procyon as flagship, Mine Squadron 2, with the Aroostook (to be assigned later,) the mine layers Ludlow and Burns and the mine sweepers Tanager and Whippoorwill, and the fleet train, including the Brant, Cardinal, Partridge, Kingfisher, Tern, Cuyama, Kanawha, Neches, Jason, Arctic, Relief, Prometheus and Sonoma.

SUBMARINE FORCES

The submarine forces which have been ordered to the Pacific Fleet, with headquarters at the Submarine Base at Los Angeles Harbor, include the following: Division 8, submarines S-18, S-19, S-20; Division 16, submarines S-30, S-31, S-32, S-33, S-34, S-35, S-45, S-46 and S-47; Division 17, submarines S-36, S-37, S-38, S-39, S-40, S-41, S-42, S-43 and S-44; Division 9, R1, R-2, R-3, R-4, R-5, R-6, R-7, R-8 and R-10; Division 14, R-11, R-12, R-13, R-14, R-15, R-16, R-17, R-18, R-19 and R-20.

The first three divisions will be stationed at the Submarine Base. The last two divisions will report at Pearl Harbor. Division 19, to be organized later, will also be stationed at the Submarine Base. Twelve of the nation's mightiest battleships, thirty-eight destroyers of the latest model, forty of the most modern submarines, seven air squadrons, twenty-four miscellaneous Navy ships, base headquarters at Los Angeles Harbor.

Thus does Los Angeles Harbor become the greatest naval base on either of America's sea coasts.

Despite the 5-5-3 ratio agreed upon at the Washington Conference, which designates that the United States Navy shall equal the power of Great Britain and shall be one and two-thirds times the strength of the Japanese navy, the United States Fleet is inferior to both of these foreign powers. Great Britain is permitted to keep nine capital ships with speeds greater than twenty-five knots and Japan is permitted to retain four battleships with speeds greater than twenty-seven knots—while none of the battleships of the United States Navy exceeds twenty-one knots. But, though the United States Fleet may be outclassed in a few respects, the cream of that fleet will have Los Angeles Harbor as its home port.

The growth and progress of Los Angeles depends to a certain degree upon the foreign trade which will enter through and pass out of Los Angeles Harbor. The future of the local harbor lies in that foreign trade. In this will the United States Fleet, with its base at the door of Los Angeles, be most beneficial to this city and Southern California.

The United States Fleet is the best advertising agency Los Angeles Harbor can employ. The last few years that have passed since the Pacific Fleet dropped anchor here, have proved this.

Even as Los Angeles Harbor is boosted by the fleet, so must the fleet be boosted by Los Angeles. The men who man the ships off Los Angeles Harbor expect it.

"If foreign trade is to endure," Admiral Coontz has written in a recent article, "it must have adequate protection in the form of a navy. The United States Navy exists as the best safeguard of national liberty and honor and the best investment for the protection of trade that can be provided."

GRAPE MYSTERY IS REVEALED

Farm and Tractor Section Tells of Industry That Refused to Die

"Viticulture, the Industry that Refused to Die a Natural Death," is the subject of an interesting and timely article in the Farm and Tractor Section of today's big Times. The great interest in grape lands and grape planting has been something of a sensation in California agricultural circles during the past few years.

Some of the vineyardists were so sure that the Eighteenth Amendment would kill the grape industry that they dug out their plantings and set out orchards. Then all kinds of grapes began to climb in price until figures never before dreamed of were being paid for the fruit of the vine. Wine grapes, fresh, have been shipped to a clamorous horde of buyers all over the country ever since prohibition came and there has seemed to be no end to the demand. What becomes of these grapes? The growers have a theory, of course, but they are bearing up well under the terrible suspicion. Is the thing going to keep up? Well, read the article in today's big farm department and see what George Law thinks about it.

LINER FLOATING CIGAR STORE

President McKinley Unloads 50,000,000 Smokes At Seattle

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEATTLE, Jan. 13.—What is said to be the largest single shipment of cigars to arrive in the United States came in on the Admiral Oriental liner President McKinley on her last voyage. The shipment comprised 50,000,000 high-grade cigars consigned to the East.

CONDITIONS IN MEXICO TOLD

ican peso is worth only 23 cents, American gold.

BANKS DESTROYED

"At present there is no banking system in Mexico. The old Federal banks were all destroyed by the revolution and are going through a process of liquidation, except two or three institutions which also suffered heavy losses.

"The railroads are running in a normal and regular way, though very much handicapped by the lack of rolling stock. The Mexican engineers, conductors and other employees have learned their trade and do good work. (Under the Dias regime most of the skilled railway employees were Americans.) The salaries and wages which they are receiving are in many cases higher than the wages American railway men receive in this country.

"Wages in general have advanced in Mexico, but the laboring classes are not yet satisfied, and are asking for still more pay.

"I found that the expenses of the Federal government are very high. Under President Diaz the budget amounted to about 100,000,000 pesos per annum. The expenses of the Obregon administration are about 270,000,000 pesos per annum. There is room to reduce the expenses to 200,000,000 pesos, and I expect tath this will be done soon.

"The laboring classes of Mexico are all organized into unions, as you call them here, or syndicates, as they are termed in Mexico. These have been created under the Constitution of 1917. I see no objection to the organization of these unions, or syndicates, within the law and with full respect to property and to the rights of third parties. But I do find it very inconvenient for Mexico when such syndicates have no respect for the law. I noticed that a number of these syndicates use the Bolshevik flag of red and black and have a tendency to overpower the legal authorities. Many of them are against capital and have an ill feeling toward the legitimate owners of industrial enterprises.

INDIANS SUPINE

"Of the population of Mexico, 80 per cent are Indians, and these are indifferent and care nothing for politics. Obregon for them is as good a president as Carranza or Madero or any other. Of the total population, the middle class comprises some 15 per cent, which is active and progressive. The wealthy population and the intellectuals comprise some 5 per cent.

"The Indian population easily can be taken care of because of their lack of ambition, their ignorance and their habit of obeying their superiors. This habit is very deeply rooted with them, as it was the education they received from the Spaniards and from the Catholic Church."

Like other keen observers, Mr. Creel thinks the fate of the middle class is most important, although its 15 per cent is low, considering the middle classes, however well defined, of the United States and European countries.

"The middle class," he says, "is an important factor and it is necessary to develop the tact so as to do justice to it, to satisfy its ambitions and to use it for the good of the country. This can be accomplished by neutralizing the influence of the agitators, who in Mexico are the dangerous element, and special means should be taken to destroy their evil propaganda. They are all Bolsheviks.

"The wealthy population"—here Mr. Creel is speaking of the class he himself represents—"is rather selfish and is feeling discouraged about the great losses the revolution has caused it. Members of this class follow the Wilson policy of watchful waiting, and they do nothing to improve their condition.

"The intellectual class is the most important and when once organized, with wise combination of their moral forces, it will become a power and exercise great influence in the administration and in the regular evolution and progress of Mexico."

APPROVES AGREEMENT

The agreement between Adolfo de la Huerta, Mexican Secretary of the Treasury, and the international committee of bankers, made at New York several months ago, Mr. Creel thinks an important step in arranging Mexico's obligations, since by it Mexico agreed to make payments on the accrued interest on the foreign debt.

"This agreement," he declares, "is the most important financial transaction ever made in Mexico and it is an honorable act on the part of the Obregon administration. In Mexico it was believed by some of the members of the administration and by the business community that as a natural consequence of this agreement, which showed good faith and honorable principles on the part of the Mexican government, the recognition of the Obregon administration by the United States would follow.

"Mr. Hughes made this point clear, that recognition is a question of principles concerning the rights of American citizens whose lives and properties should be protected in Mexico according to international law, and not a financial transaction to which the government of the United States had not been and could not be a party. The adjustment, recognition and obligation to pay the interest on the Mexican debt establishes what may be called a new aspect, a new order of things as to the economic situation of Mexico. On account of the new foreign obligations the budget of Mexico for 1923 has been increased to 297,700,000 pesos, or three times what the budget of President Diaz was. How is Mexico going to pay this heavy amount? Has there been any growth in the business of the country since 1910?

OIL FIRST ASSET

"The facts are as follows: There has been a very important development in the oil fields. The output in 1920 was 163,540,000 barrels of forty-two gallons each, and in 1921 it was 194,756,000 barrels. In 1910 the output was 3,634,080 barrels. How long will this enormous production of oil last? That is the question. In the opinion of experts it is going to last for fifteen or twenty years, perhaps more, but anyhow it is wise not to depend too much on the oil wealth of Mexico.

"In mining there is no substantial increase and the mine owners are disgusted and discouraged with Article CXXIII of the constitution of 1917, which gives the laboring classes a share in the profit of the mines, access to the books and the right to intervene in the management, all of which is a threatening danger to capital.

"The cotton industry in general is not producing any more.

"The cattle business was almost destroyed by the revolution and it will take many years to recover.

"Agricultural industry has been very much disturbed by the constitution of 1917 and the action of the agrarian agitators, supported by the government. Under Article XXVII any land may be condemned and divided among the people without proper compensation to the legitimate owner, Mexican or foreigner. Without protection of property and capital there can be no foundation for agricultural development."

Mr. Creel paused and with a sigh said: "This statement of the economic conditions of Mexico is discouraging."

RECOGNITION EXPECTED

"But," he added, brightening, "notwithstanding, the natural resources of the country are great, and as soon as full protection is given to capital by modifying in one way or another Articles XXVII and CXXIII of the constitution of 1917, the recognition by the United States of the Obregon administration will be made, in my opinion, and capital will flow to Mexico. With money the real work of reconstruction will be made; banks will be established, new industries started, great agricultural developments will make the country rich and the people happy and peaceful, and that is the way and the only way for Mexico to become a prosperous country and to be able to pay the interest on its debt and meet all of its obligations.

"Is there any hope for such changes to be made in the constitution of Mexico? In my opinion, yes. The Chamber of Deputies has just appointed a committee of its members to join forces with another committee to be appointed by President Obregon, representing each of the departments of his Cabinet, to make a thorough study of Articles XXVII and CXXIII with a view to decreasing rules and regulations that shall give full protection to property and to capital.

"If this is done there will be American, British and French recognition and Mexico will be a prosperous country."

SCHOOLS STRESS DRAMA

League Sets Aside One Week Late This Month During Which Many Plays Will be Presented

Special emphasis is being laid on the drama in all of the classes of the local high schools and colleges during the week of the 22nd to 26th insts., as that week has been set apart by the Drama League of America as National Drama Week. This time coincides with the alumni week of the school of speech of the University of Southern California when the alumni and the former members of the Lance and Lute dramatic fraternity combine their celebrations for the annual reunion.

During the week many plays will be presented by the students of the school of speech, and the present members of the Lance and Lute for the benefit of the alumni. Prof. Anthony BGlanks of the school of speech will read John Drinkwater's play, "Abraham Lincoln," as one of the most interesting parts of the program.

An interesting program has been arranged by the Lance and Lute for their annual banquet, which is to be the 26th inst. at the Mary Louise Cafe at Seventh and Lake streets.

The main speaker on the program will be Dr. R. B. Von Kleinsmid, president of the university. He has chosen as his subject, "Dramatics as a Fact in Education." Harold J. Stonier, far famed as a speaker, will also speak. Prof. Stonier is the executive secretary of the University of Southern California.

Richard Ordinsky, one of the most famous exponents of the Little Theater movement, will tell of his experiences as a playwright and producer. After the banquet an original play by Margaret Penny will be read.

Students of the Southern Branch are also planning to observe the week by giving a number of plays. No elaborate plans such as those for U. S. C. have been made, but work on the annual Greek drama will be started.

Manual Arts High School students will produce their class play on the 25th and 26th insts. according to Mrs. E. R. Gray, head of the dramatic department, who is directing the play, "The Charm School."

It is believed that the play will be one of the biggest successes that has ever come to the dramatic students of the school as there is to be new scenery, costumes, and lighting effects, coupled with an excellent cast. The play itself is enough to draw a large crowd, it is believed, as "The Charm School" is known as one of Barrie's most popular plays.

Art Exhibit at Library Draws Many Visitors

One of the best etching exhibits ever shown here is on display in the art department of the Public Library and is attracting hundreds of art lovers. The etchings are the work of Ralph M. Pearson, one of the best-known artist-etchers in this country.

The exhibit is made doubly interesting through the fact that several of the etchings are incomplete, showing the various phases of their production. The exhibit was brought to the library through the courtesy of the Stendahl Galleries of this city. The display includes many of Mr. Pearson's early works and several etchings which were completed but recently.

NIGHT COURSE IN AUDITING OFFERED

A new night course offered by the Commercial Experts Training Institute will open on the 18th inst., according to an announcement made yesterday. A. L. Windmiller, instructor, who has wide business experience, will give a special lecture on auditing and bookkeeping.

Courses in secretarial and stenographic work will be offered at the same time, it was stated.

More than 100 students from the Institute formed a sightseeing party yesterday to inspect Los Angeles Harbor, and were taken through the customs house, immigration offices, docks and other places. The party included sixty members of the institute's public speaking class, which has been studying the harbor.

WITNESS IS FACING CHARGE OF PERJURY

Charges of perjury are contained in a complaint issued yesterday against T. J. Barker. The complaint was signed by Justice Hanby.

It charges that Barker perjured himself during the trial of Elwin G. Reid and Cornelia Reid on charges of burglary before Justice Cassidy at Huntington Park on June 27, last.

He is said to have testified that he received two notes, one for $2500 and another for $900, from Cornelia Reid. The notes were stolen from him, according to the testimony he is said to have given.

The perjury complaint was sworn to by Cornelia Reid, who declared that she had never given him the notes.

PLAGUE AID IS ASKED BY LEAGUE

Tuberculosis Association Dollars Not Coming in as Rapidly as Desired

Are you a "dollar delayer"?

Such is the title given in the report just filed with the finance committee of the Los Angeles Tuberculosis Association by Sidney Maguire, executive secretary, to those who have failed to answer the appeal of the organization to send in their hundred pennies in currency, check, money order or draft to the official headquarters, 522 Chamber of Commerce Building.

There are nearly 15,000 "dollar delayers" listed on the report, and it is because of their delinquency that the 1923 program of offensive warfare against the great white plague can not be charted immediately.

A special campaign is being made to clean up the returns on the Christmas seal sale by tomorrow, so that plans for the coming year can be budgeted in full at the next meeting of the board of directors, prominent citizens who are not only giving their money but time as well in the battle against the dread disease.

Mrs. J. M. Danziger, chairman of the finance committee, has made a wager with Mrs. J. J. A. Van Kaathoven, president of the organization, that the offices will be deluged with returns by tomorrow on the theory that the majority of nonreturns are due to forgetfulness and not to any desire to fail to contribute to the cause.

"Now that the excitement of Christmas and New Year's is over," says Mrs. Danziger, "I am sure that the majority of citizens are checking up their records and that we shall have a shower of returns within the coming week.

City's Auction of Houses Has Been Completed

The city having held its fourth and final auction of houses condemned for the opening and widening of Hill street from West Washington street to Thirty-eighth street, property owners who were assessed a total of $978,686.70 will now receive a 5 per cent refund on their assessments as a result of the $75,000 total, received from the sales.

The purchasers paid for the houses at the time their bid was accepted, and must remove the houses at once. As soon as the houses are all removed, grading crews will at once start work of making the new street, which will be 92 feet wide to conform to the rest of Hill street.

Property owners are so much pleased at the opening of the district resulting from the improvement that petitions to the City Council now are circulating, asking that the new Hill street be extended from Thirty-eighth street to Figueroa street, making Hill street a great unbroken traffic artery from the center of the city to the Southwest.

At the final auction held on Friday, Col. W. G. Schreiber, chief of the Bureau of Assessments and official city auctioneer, sold eighteen houses, receiving for them a total of $14,445. In some cases, the city had condemned only a portion of the houses, and in these cases, the entire houses were sold, and the owners of the uncondemned parts were given their pro-rata shares of the amounts received for the entire houses. The largest price received for any of the ninety condemned houses sold was $6,000, this being paid for a four-family apartment house.

Charge Falls as Marriage Is Performed

Jack B. Credelle squared a Mann White Slave charge yesterday by marrying the girl in the case. The ceremony was performed by Justice J. Walter Hanby.

A year or more ago, Credelle, it was charged, took Miss Peggy Frisbie, from her home in Artesia, to Yuma, Ariz., where a so-called wedding ceremony was performed. Later they returned and lived in Ontario, where Credelle was arrested on the Federal charge.

It was agreed by the Federal authorities that if Credelle would marry the girl the complaint against him would be dismissed. Department of Justice Agent Bone accompanied Credelle to the Hall of Records yesterday, where a license was procured and the ceremony was performed.

CABLE TO TELL OF KING'S TOMB

"The Times" to Have Daily Reports From Luxor Excavators

In conjunction with the North American Newspaper Alliance and the London Daily Mail, The Times has arranged with Arthur Weigall, former inspector-general of antiquities for the Egyptian government and a renowned archeological authority, for a series of daily cable accounts of the progress of excavations in the famous Valley of Kings at Luxor, Egypt.

These excavations will throw a flood of new light on ancient history. Especially important will be the opening of the sealed chamber in the tomb of Tutankhamun, which will occur in February.

Dr. Weigall is qualified, as perhaps no other living man, to interpret the revelations of the excavators in terms of historical facts.

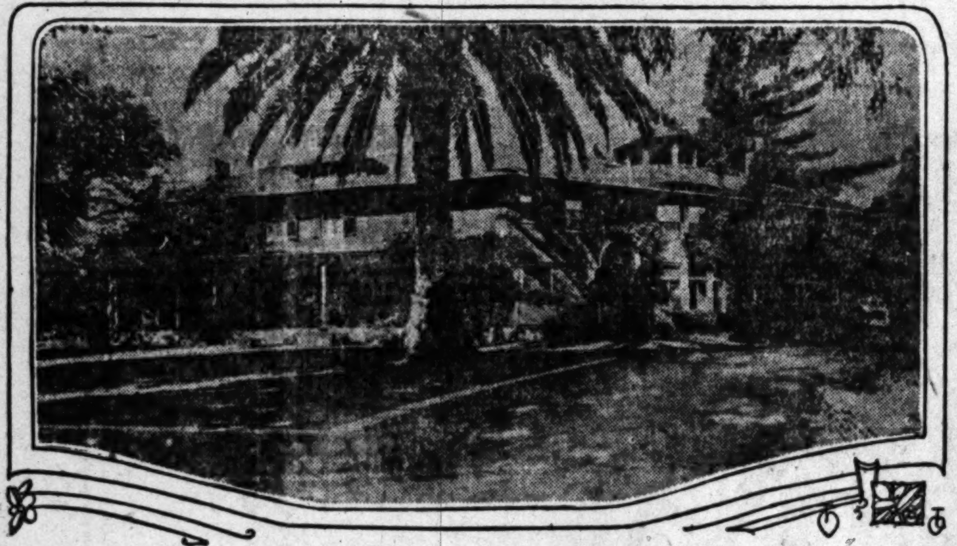
Where Retarded Children Are Made Normal



The Williams School in Pasadena

HOPE FOR HANDICAPPED

Work of Pasadena School in Life-Training of Defective Child Commended

Recently opened in Pasadena is a school which is attracting the favorable comment of many educators and physicians who have long struggled with the problem of where to place the child unadapted to the usual surroundings of educational life.

The question of training for the retarded child is one which looms large for every parent and teacher, and for the medical man, too, it is a problem, since the first thought of the parent of such a child is that medicine or surgery may hold hope for the correction of the difficulty.

In a lovely old house at 449 North Madison avenue, two women, whose own personal experience has brought them close to the problem, have arranged with careful detail an environment which should make for the best development of the physically or mentally handicapped. Two acres of ground afford space for tennis, ball, croquet and individual gardening plots.

SURROUNDINGS IDEAL

A separate bungalow in the garden has been fitted with windows across the entire front, making an ideal workshop, where are to be found bench and tools for the making of simple articles of furniture, boxes, racks and such other objects as the child is capable of turning out. Sunshine and cheerfulness pervade the place and many are the visitors who look with pleasure upon this effort toward the ideal for children so frequently forced into grooves they cannot follow.

Among the visitors interested from the educational as well as the hunamitarian point of view in this new venture, which is known as the Williams School, is Mrs. Mertice Buck Knox, co-author with Dr. Herbert Hall of "The Work of Our Hands" and "Handicrafts for the Handicapped." Mrs. Knox has loaned to the school a valuable Norwegian loom on which is the beginning of a rug to be finished by one of the pupils. Writing of the enterprise and its aims, Mrs. Knox says:

"A wave of interest arising in Europe has swept across the Atlantic, reaching tidal proportions here. Every large city has its school for the blind and deaf, its classes for cripples and its ungraded rooms, of all of which Los Angeles shows excellent examples.

GET AT CAUSES

"Underneath this outward evidence of interest there is a far-reaching attempt to get at the causes of individual physical or mental divergence from normality. The phrases which we see in every newspaper and constantly hear in conversation on these subjects were, many of them, new ten or twelve years ago. 'The Binet-Simon tests'—to ascertain the mental age; the 'atypical child;' 'inhibition;' 'inferiority-complex,' and many others are an everyday part of our present speech. But among those referring to childhood there is none more happily worded than the phrase 'Opportunity School.'

"Anyone who has been familiar with the work of such schools in the public education system in Los Angeles or Pasadena—whether or not called by this name—needs no word of praise from me of the splendid results obtained. Every one has heard of the success of individual children, and hundreds more boys and girls are working toward an equal triumph. Often a child limited in many things is gifted in one and that one talent is developed.

"But perhaps the greatest single element of success is that children who are unhappy, realizing in a vague way that they are "different." that what is easy for others is confusing and almost impossible for them, have a chance to reach their fullest mental and physical development. Whether this is the development which we might call average or normal is not so important as whether it is the highest to which that individual can attain. Happiness and success in life are not altogether dependent on brilliant achievement or even on education.

IGNORANT BUT HAPPY

"A few years ago I heard my old friend Elizabeth Farrell, director of the classes in which thousands of ungraded children in New York City have been taught, say that we should remember it is only a hundred years since a majority of people, even in enlightened England, could not read or write, yet they were happy, successful in spite of this obstacle. Any one familiar with Eden Philpott's stories of Dartmoor or Thomas Hardy's of Exmoor or our own Lucy Furman's of the "Unlarned" but wise Kentucky mountaineers along "Troublesome Creek" can see the truth of the familiar quotation:

" 'Knowledge and wisdom, far from being one,
Have ofttimes no connection.
Knowledge dwells in heads replete with others' thoughts;
Wisdom in minds attentive to their own.'

"Among Miss Farrell's proteges were a boy and girl who were very entertaining to me because they could not be taught to read. The girl had been in the lowest grade for six or seven years, forgetting every day what she had learned the day before, but meanwhile learning to do fine embroidery, in which she took great pride. The boy could scarcely write his own name but was the best basketmaker in his class. When last I heard of them this Italian girl was supporting herself with her embroidery and the boy was the most expert weaver in a factory for making rattan furniture. So all hope need not be abandoned, even if a child fails utterly to grasp what we have learned to regard as fundamentals, if he has the ability to learn something else.

CLIMATE BRINGS MANY

"California attracts many parents who have delicate children, convalescent from illness, crippled or otherwise handicapped. The fine climate offers them the chance for rapid improvement unretarded by the hot summers or cold winters of the Eastern States, but in many cases it is hard to find proper schools for such children where they may have the twenty-four-hour care essential to best results, avoiding the excitement and weariness attentant upon the effort to fit into two different enviroments, that of the home and that of the school.

"It is said that money can buy anything, but this is not true of such tuition as would suit such hampered little ones, as many parents have found to their sorrow. An ideal school of this kind would be an 'opportunity home,' such as the Williams School bids fair to prove. The months spent in searching for a suitable place have resulted in finding a handsome old house, as dignified as a plantation mansion, but with modern improvements. Within are light and sunny rooms, the best always given up to the children.

"Music is a part of the curriculum, and rhythmic exercises are combined with more laborious if less interesting, corrective gymnastics, given under the supervision of one of Los Angeles' best-known orthopedists. A trained specialist corrects those disorders of speech so frequently accompanying retardation and two gay and joyous personalities are the teachers, who preside over the classroom work, diverting, with that quick intuition of the born teacher, the mind of the child before the point of weariness is reached.

"Both beauty and accuracy mark the handiwork and in all they do the little pupils show that quick, eager glance which is the normal expression of healthy children and which Stevenson so well expressed when he wrote:

" 'The world is full of a number of things
I'm sure we hould all be as happy as kings.'

"One prophesies for the school great success, for the effort behind it is sincere, the goal worthy and the interest of those able scientifically to aid is eager and alert."

TRAFFIC AID IS PLANNED BY RAILWAY

Company Secures Services of Transportation Expert to Relieve Congestion

Plans for the street railway's part in immediate relief of traffic conditions and for the future transportation needs of Los Angeles, will be the objectives of an extensive survey to be started tomorrow by Joe R. Ong, well-known in the street-railway industry as a transportation engineer. This announcement was made by C. J. Kuhrts, general manager of the Los Angeles Railway, who has procured Mr. Ong's services.

JOE R. ONG.

Having been connected with large electric railway companies and having been engineer for the Wisconsin Railroad Commission, Mr. Ong is familiar with the public viewpoint as well as the technical end of schedules and general service conditions. He has been connected with street-railway properties in Winnepeg, Can., Kansas City, Mo., and Atlanta.

He will take immediate steps to assist the management of the Los Angeles Railway in fitting service to traffic demands as closely as is possible under the present congested condition of downtown streets. According to the railway management, improved service will follow improved traffic conditions.

Detailed traffic checks to show the origin and destination of rides and the various angles contributing to the traffic problems will be compiled under Mr. Ong's direction and will be the basis of recommendations for permanent transportation improvement.

Regarding the survey, Mr. Kuhrts said:

"In bringing to Los Angeles a recognized traffic expert, I am confident that effective measures will result for the immediate and future benefit of the city. There are many and varied angles to the traffic problem of Los Angeles. The survey will show what part the street railway must play in solving this problem and what changes it must make to serve Los Angeles as a whole and render prompt and direct service to the thousands who ride the cars daily."

NAVY CHIEF WILL ARRIVE THIS WEEK

Rear-Admiral Welles to Talk Friday Night on Defense of Pacific Coast

Rear-Admiral Roger Welles, commanding the Eleventh Naval District of Southern California, accompanied by his chief of staff, Commander William Ghent, U.S.N., will arrive in Los Angeles on the 19th inst., to be the guest of honor that evening of the Association of the Army of the United States. He will address that body, consisting of 400 officers of the Organized Reserves, National Guard and the Regular Army, and their friends, on general measures that would have to be taken, under assumed conditions, for the military and naval defense of the Pacific Coast.

Rear-Admiral Welles is one of the most distinguished officers in the naval service. During the World War he was chief of the Bureau of Naval Intelligence in Washington, and has recently served on several joint Army and Navy boards convened to study and recommend to the War and Navy departments provisions that should be taken to insure the safety of the Pacific Coast against possible foreign invasion. Accordingly, officers and former officers of the Army and Navy and citizens of Los Angeles, connected with the Association of the Army of the United States, await with interest the admiral's address.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.—[Advertisement.

MAKING MONEY

It does seem tough. Here is a man trying to make a little money for himself and the government steps in and pinches him for counterfeiting.

DRYING UP

The Mississippi River is reported as being lower than ever known in history at this time. Here is another indication that America is really going dry.

LOST HIS CHANCE

There is the case of the young man who worked and studied for a number of years with the one great purpose of being his own boss. And then he married the cashier of a cafeteria. Now he hasn't the ghost of a chance. He will spend his life working for somebody else, after all.

HIGH FINANCE

Why not put it up to the League of Nations to decide whether Jackie Coogan is to get $10,000,000 or $20,000,000 for next week's pay? Just now the poor child is only making 400,000,000 rubles a day, but he would be good for the amount of the German reparations if the exploiters had him in tow.

A PLAIN BLUNT MAN

Gov. Richardson was rather blunt and direct in his opening remarks to the Assembly. He said that the vote of the people in the primary and general elections could not be considered as other than a repudiation of the orgy of political extravagance that had been going on at Sacramento. He declared that the voters had demanded that the political machine which had dominated the State government be put out of power. It was now necessary to wreck this machine and to this end his efforts should be directed. He seemed to be very positive about it and intimated that there could be no peace or compromise by which the machine might prolong its life. The State must be placed upon a genuine economy basis and the government be again handed back to the people. Gov. Richardson was at no particular pains to be tender with the man he succeeded. Gov. Stephens had done all he possibly could to embarrass the new Governor and discredit his administration and on his part Gov. Richardson disdained to be complimentary. No kissing games were played at the party to which members of the Assembly were bidden.

A WOMAN AMONG MILLIONS

A Pomona woman who lost her voice two years ago has suddenly regained it, after dreaming that it had been restored. Because physicians had said her vocal cord was gone she had had little hope of ever speaking again, so the day of the restoration she told reporters she was supremely happy and devoutly thankful.

It is a remarkable proof of the Coue theory, of course. And nobody doubts that the woman now is rejoiced as well as revoiced. Yet can she ever again be completely happy? Can she ever make up for those lost two years?

A famous epicure once remarked that a dinner lost can never be regained, and millions since have considered the saying worth quoting. Yet what is one dinner to an epicure compared to two years of silence to a woman?

In the midst of one's congratulatory feelings for the good lady one is constrained to pause and sigh with compassion. How terrible it must have been while it lasted! And yet she has great cause for consolation. For is she not one of the few women in the world who, really and truly, have suffered in silence?

ADAM'S ALE WITH A KICK

So much confiscated booze was poured into the stream which is the source of Ben Lomond's water supply the other day that when one turned a water faucet anywhere in the town the liquid which shot out was mighty like a highball. The result is said to have been such a passion for water drinking as the town had never before experienced, and it is quite probable that some of the citizens drew off the water in tubs, but not for bathing purposes.

Adam's ale with a kick in it is something new under the sun, but at the rate illicit stills are being discovered and concealed stocks of liquor confiscated it looks as if it might become quite common. And if the energetic officers at Ben Lomond intend to continue this practice quite a lot of folks who never took much interest in it before will begin looking it up on the map. Indeed, a revised version of a dear old song is likely to become very popular:

Oh, you take the high road and I'll take the low road,
And I'll find the "Scotch" land afore ye,
And if this is true, love, I'll never stray again
From the bonnie, bonnie banks of Ben Lomond.

Can it be that the still operators are trying to make enough of the stuff to whiskyfy all the streams in California? It looks that way sometimes. And bootleggers generally are such public-spirited, generous fellows, so free from all desire for pecuniary gain as to further the idea. But, if so, the prohibition officers, now that the Ben Lomond incident has given them the cue, will quickly find a way to defeat them. With the broad Pacific Ocean so close at hand this sudden hope of the thirsty is doomed to quickly fade.

A GOOD BEGINNING

"Economy," says Gov. Richardson, "is not entirely a matter of the form of government, but must depend primarily upon the spirit and purpose of the officers in control of State affairs."

That is a kind of philosophy that has not been taught in California since the Progressives secured control twelve years ago. Perhaps it is reactionary; but, if it be so, the Governor will find that there are some millions of reactionaries in California who will not be deterred from an endeavor to secure economy and efficiency in State affairs by any phrases or epithets that the opposition may cast at them.

According to this philosophy law is not an end in itself, but a means to arrive at an end. The attitude of mind of the last two Governors has been that money which can be spent ought to be spent. Gov. Richardson goes the other way round. He holds that what ought to be saved can be saved.

Economy was the dominating issue in the late State campaign. But it was also the issue in the campaign made by Gov. Stephens four years ago. In 1910 it was the Progressive issue. It proved to be, however, in the words of Chauncey Depew, "a platform to get in on, not to stand on."

When Gov. Richardson's immediate predecessors were inducted into office the economy pledge was promptly cast into the waste basket. The people of the State are now waiting to see whether it is to go into the waste basket again or whether it is to be actually put into effect through a reduction in the cost of State government.

Former Gov. Stephens was sincere in his pledges of economy when making his campaigns; but he was too weak to fight off the greedy State machine, once he was in control of the State finances. Gov. Richardson has made a courageous beginning; but the campaign for legitimate reform has just begun.

Before any considerable reductions can be made the State must discontinue some of its present activities. The hue and cry will begin when the actual cutting starts. A good spender is commonly referred to as a good fellow. As long as it is his own money there will be no protests from the outside; for it is his own affair. But both Johnson and Stephens played the part of good fellows with other people's money. Their administrations spent what they had no moral right to spend.

There are many desirable things that the State might do if the sources from which it draws its funds were inexhaustible, if money could be created by operating the State printing presses that would circulate at its face value outside California or inside. But there are the taxpayers to be considered, the sacrifices that must be made to raise those funds.

Gov. Richardson insists that those who support the State have some rights, that the taxpayers have a right to equal representation at Sacramento with the tax-eaters. During the last twelve years the Legislature has expended something like $100,000,000 in special appropriations outside the regular budget. People in some sections have come to expect these things, that the State should pay for certain improvements that benefit a single community only, the cost of which should in equity be borne by those who will receive the benefits. Every member of both houses carries to Sacramento with him some special appropriation bills for his district. And then the log-rolling begins. "You scratch my back and I'll scratch your back," as Artemus Ward put it.

Each section says, "Let there be economy; but give us ours first."

That habit of having the State do for them what the particular communities can do for themselves was easy to acquire, but it will be difficult to break. At Sacramento now there are more than 100 lobbyists. Each is there to secure a special appropriation for some section, some group or some interest. And they are adept at pooling their interests. It was this combined attack that broke the resistance of Gov. Stephens and his Legislatures. Will the Richardson administration be strong enough and courageous enough to resist?

That we shall not know until the Legislature adjourns and the last of the appropriation bills have been signed or vetoed. But the people of California are finally awake. They will be content with no lip economy. The lobbyists will raise a clamor that the rejection of those demands for special appropriations will mean political suicide.

But the Governor and the members of the Legislature will do well to look beyond the confines of Sacramento to the great industrial, agricultural and mining districts of the State and ask themselves what the people are thinking. A little group of lobbyists can make a big noise; but the late election demonstrated clearly that the jingle of the money in their pockets speaks louder to the taxpayers than the clamor of the paid lobbyists.

ANNOYING, BUT CURABLE

A Los Angeles woman is suing for divorce because her husband, she asserts, has the suicide-threatening habit.

That's an awful nuisance, of course. When one's domestic partner really forms the habit of threatening to put a sudden end to his or her life there seems to be no shaking it off by ordinary measures. Of course, after they've threatened half a dozen times and failed to make good the threats cease to be alarming, but all the same they are exasperating, almost maddening.

Yet such attacks, even after they have seemingly become chronic, often have been cured through the mere purchase by the wearied spouses of large, vividly labeled bottles of carbolic acid or something equally pleasing to the palate. Then, when the whining member of the family begins threatening, the bottle can be produced with a resigned air and such suggestive words as "Well, good-by, dear—take care of yourself in the next."

Then, just to spite you, the person who was so intent on dying usually decides to live. But, after that, threats to commit suicide become extremely rare. For in most cases the person who is cowardly enough to go about threatening suicide is far too cowardly to commit it.

Still, curable as the habit is, if the wife in this case really wants a divorce she might as well have it on that ground, for it looks as if, no matter what he did or didn't do, she could sue on the ground of "cruelty" if she had to.

WOMEN IN INDUSTRY

Among the many amazing developments of the last two decades the position taken by women in industrial, social and civic affairs marks most emphatically the great distance traveled along the new highway of modern thought and latter-day enlightenment.

Suffrage punctured the first hole in the dam that for centuries had confined feminine activities to a restricted sphere. Now the whole bulwark has been swept away and women can mingle freely in the once-sacred reserves of masculine privilege. The result has been beneficial to men and women both.

At present it is impossible to figure in dollars and cents to what an extent industry in general has benefited by this introduction of new blood. But industry begins to admit that what at first was supposed to be an innovation has proved to be a renovation.

In a letter of welcome to the industrial delegates of the Women's Bureau President Harding has just paid a sterling tribute to the importance of women's work in the modern world and has encouraged them to participate more generally in the future in public and civic affairs.

Secretary of Labor Davis addressed the conference, enthusiastically indorsing the co-operation of men and women in the industrial field and declaring that the time had arrived when sex should have no part in the distribution of jobs or in determining the pay attached to them.

Public opinion is almost solid behind the President and the Secretary of Labor in recognizing that in the industrial world there is a large place for the trained and competent woman worker and that the new part she is taking does not destroy the unity of the man and the woman or interfere with the natural ties on which depend the survival of the race.

It is illuminating to discover how quickly a few years of practical demonstration will cancel centuries of accepted theorizing. Where is the old fogey today who once said women would lose their natural charms if they met men as equals in his once-special province of business?

NEW THRILLS OF FARMING

The sowing of grain from an airplane was tried out at Tracy the other day and proved more or less successful. The seed, flung out from about 100 feet above the ground, as the plane sped from end to end of the field, spread out over a strip fifty feet wide. This is faster planting than ever took place in even the farm hand's sweetest dreams in years gone by, but a great deal more grain had to be used than is customary in ordinary plantings.

But things never go as well the first time as they are made to go in more experienced efforts, and the new scheme is a time-and-labor saver, so the public will be surprised rather than not if it doesn't catch on rapidly. For, though time was when the farmer was a horny-handed son of toil, in these latter years he has become a horny-spectacled director of new inventions.

The plowman no longer plods his weary way, but rides so much that he has to take a tonic before and a digestive tablet after meals in lieu of exercise. With a flock of plows hitched behind his tractor the erstwhile stubborn glebe breaks and rolls over on its back with no thought of resistance.

With riding cultivators, harvesters, binders and milking machines and nothing in the barn to be curried down except the touring car, the truck and the coupe, the modern farmer hasn't enough callouses on his hands to convince an ordinary police judge that he is even remotely acquainted with toil.

Already we see want ads like this: "Wanted—Farm hand; must be able to care for cars and tractors; ability to make minor plumbing repairs and operate small light-and-power plant also desirable," etc. But what will be required of them when planting by airplane becomes general?

It used to be that boys left the country and flocked to town in search of excitement. Now it's getting around the other way. Farm life is getting to be vastly more thrilling than office work, to say the least. Motor cars and telephones already had put an end to farm isolation and now radio and airplanes have come—oh, zip! It looks as if the long-desired back-to-the-soil movement might be automatically brought about by adventure-seeking lads flocking away from city offices to beg for jobs as farm hands.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

A Rut

A rut is a hole which chokes human initiative, which checks human progress, which wrecks human potentialities.

A rut is a toxin which blinds a man to opportunity's choices, deafens him to opportunity's voices, renders him dumb to opportunity's appeals.

If you stay in a rut it will strangle your ambitions, it will strengthen your weaknesses, it will stale and stultify your faculties.

Your rut will damn you both biblically and actually. It will shut you off from success. It will shunt you off into failure. It will besmear and make mockery of another image of the Lord.

A rut is a small-sized grave. It is the fate of the man who, having eyes, refuses to see; who, having ears, refuses to listen; who, having lips, refuses to speak; and who, in consequence, discovers around his prime of life that he can neither see, hear nor say.

Circumstances may be so irresistible. Environment may be so compelling, the winds of destiny may seem so controlling that for the time being you must stick in your rut—but never forget that it is a rut and that you should quit that rut at the first opportunity.

You are the captain of your soul. But if you get into a rut and neglect or refuse to get out of that rut you will lose your hegemony and your soul will become a tattered, shattered, shrivelled fossil of what was once the vital, driving force of worth-while aspiration.

RIPPLING RHYMES

MONEY WANTED

Every day some plaintive gent at my humble home appears, asking me to give a cent I have earned in sweat and tears: "Dig up, in the name of Pete," says the gent, in accents sweet; "we are building a retreat for consumptive auctioneers." Every hour some drivesmith bold to my cottage gallivants; for my stock of minted gold and my store of groats he pants: "Dig up from your treasure chest," is the drivesmith's stern behest; "we would build a place of rest for decayed and shopworn aunts." Long ago when people came on an errand of this kind they were backward in the game, to its faults they were not blind; now the drivesmith doesn't plead; he is arrogant, indeed; "Hand us out the chickenfeed," is his dictum, unrefined. "If you do not promptly dig," says the man who asks my wad, "then your name in letters big will be advertised abroad; to the confines of the State you will have a record great as the cheapest sort of skate, as a piker and a fraud." Let us stop these endless drives which the wartime made a fad, for they shoo from people's lives all the joy they ever had; let's discourage all the bores who go 'round to people's doors asking for all kinds of ores, for the bawbee and the scad.

THIS IS THE DAY

The first written constitution framed by a people for their own government in the history of the world was adopted at Hartford, Ct., in the year 1639. In a general way this constitution was used as a model 150 years later by the framers of the Constitution of the United States.

The first Capitol buildings at Washington were burned down in the year 1801.

THE LANCER

Mr. Pussyfoot Johnson only stayed a couple of hours in Los Angeles this trip, but, after a rest at San Bernardino, he may feel persuaded to return and publicly advocate his well-known prohibition principles. These, he feels, are gaining ground in this country. On the whole he finds us just as sober as New Zealand, which rejected national prohibition recently.

Mr. Johnson, it is understood, feels confident that the United States is sincerely interested in prohibition and may be counted upon to adopt the desired reform somehow, somewhere, some day. Anyway, violation fines have increased 45 per cent right here in this community, which must mean something. One hundred and sixty-five thousand two hundred and seven dollars for 1922 is tangible proof that some one is doing something appertaining to the great cause.

With the adoption of the reform in this country Mr. Johnson feels that his missionary work in foreign countries will be greatly simplified.

There is something rather intriguing about a judge on the bench who can boast several living wives in this community. I am not sure whether it is three or four, and all, I believe, living in Hollywood. They can often be met at the same parties, on perfectly good terms with each other. The incumbent, however, is enjoying the most eclat out of the appointment.

With the subject of divorce reform in the air we cannot suggest a more appropriate chairman of the committee than this particular judge. Nothing like expert knowledge in these little matters.

In the meantime, a news item tells us divorces here for the last year totalled 50 per cent of the marriages for the same period. I understand that His Honor did not contribute to either total during that time.

The hostess is prepared to testify that her guest lived up to her principles with complete thoroughness—but she has come to the conclusion that the secret of a clever hostess is to gather together those friends whose tastes run in the same direction. Otherwise the affair is apt to be a bit of a frost.

In a review of the last British census it transpires that Ireland is the only country in the British Isles where men outnumber women. There are 50,000 more men in Ireland than women.

We understand that Ireland is gallantly rectifying this preponderance to the best of her ability.

The lady who says she cannot live under $10,000 a year and refuses to believe that her husband's funds won't run to that much alimony at least retains a firm faith in the gentleman's business ability. And the judge was merely insulting when he awarded the lady $15 a month.

Perhaps there is hope for us, culturally speaking. At the same time that Mlle. Cecil Sorrel of Paris was bemoaning the comparative failure of her visit to the United States, for which the French government is said to have financed her overwhelmingly luxurious and bizarre costumes, positively dripping with wealth, a famous French artist was declaring that this sort of gorgeousness only appealed to the more barbaric minds—that simplicity and restraint were the best evidences of superior breeding and culture!

So mademoiselle's visit not only elucidated France's opinion of us, but exonerated us from the imputation. Cecil even failed to boggle New York.

Mr. Bonar Law's remark, discussing the Greek tragedy, that "it is not customary to execute outgoing Cabinet ministers" inspires thought. After all, there can always be amendments to the Constitution. We nevertheless take this opportunity to wish W. D. Stephens many happy returns of the day.

THE LANCER.

in the Union, from Canada, and from foreign lands.

INTEND TO PURCHASE.

While the bulk of these request information in connection with plans to visit Southern California this summer, a surprisingly large percentage, according to C. G. Milham, executive secretary of the All Year Club, are intending to buy farms here or to invest in other ways. One letter, from a Mid-west State, said the writer was planning to bring a party of fourteen here this summer, to enjoy a long vacation stay, and that they had in mind becoming acquainted with the country, with the possible idea of buying small farms and remaining as permanent residents.

One of the inquirers stated that he wished to know of the possible openings and opportunities for a man of middle age, who had $35,000 to invest here, and who wished to put this amount into some business that would give him activity out-of-doors.

ATTRACTED BY CLIMATE

Dozens of letters stated that the writers, attracted by the word of pleasant summers and all-year delightfulness of residence, had in mind buying small farms here. One writer from an Atlantic seaboard State, who said that he had a government pension of $3200 a year and a growing family, requested extensive information regarding living conditions, school facilities and the like. He wrote:

"Your advertisements lead me to believed that Southern California offers more to me in the way of living than any other section of the country. I would like to hear from you at your early convenience, and believe that if your information bears out the particulars in your advertisement, you will find us residents of Southern California in the near future."

In addition to the foregoing, many of the letters said that the writers were tired of living in regions where the winters had too much "kick" and the summers too much fire, and were planning to move here, provided that homes could be found. In nearly every instance, these inquirers spoke of buying homes.

USE MAGAZINES

The All Year Club's advertising of the summer and all-year delightfulness of Southern California is now appearing in six national magazines. Early in February, eighteen national magazines will be carrying the advertising copy of the club. Late in April, more than fifty great metropolitan newspapers will also be advertising the summer and all-year attractiveness of Southern California.

The directors of the All Year Club are expecting that this year will surpass the notable 1922 record, when the club's advertising brought more than 100,000 visitors to Southern California, and added many thousands of residents to the Southland.

Modern Looms Vie With Work of Olden Days

An exhibition of textiles, with ninety examples covering well-known periods of design, is being shown at the Los Angeles Museum, Exposition Park, and will continue to the 28th inst. Included in the exhibition are elaborate Chinese brocades of the Chien Lung period, brocades of the Marie Antoinette period and wall hangings of Louis XVI. The silks are from modern looms, but are hard to distinguish from the old hand-woven stuffs.

TWO SUFFER BURNS

Daughter's Dress Ignited and Mother is Hurt as Result

A bonfire in the backyard of the Hursh home at 1363 Guardia street yesterday morning caused serious injuries to 4-year-old Helen Hursh when her dress ignited.

Mrs. Maud Hursh, her mother, succeeded in extinguishing the blazing clothes, but suffered painful burns on her left arm and hand. Mother and daughter were taken to the Receiving Hospital by Cecil Hursh, where they were treated by Police Surgeon Sebastian.

BIRDS RADIO SOUTHLAND CHEER TO FRIGID NORTH

Feathered Singers in KHJ Studio Broadcast Sunshine 3000 Miles Away

The world's tiniest entertainers sing nightly to the world's largest audience. Four little canaries are the singers; a million radio listeners ,more or less, are the audience. The broadcast room of KHJ, The Times radio station, Los Angeles, is the stage. Soft breezes through windows open to the Southern night caress the singers. Back in the farthest row of "the balcony" a furious blizzard hurls itself at the windows, baring icy teeth at those within. The distance from the proscenium arch to that highest, farthest row of the balcony is something more than 3000 miles. Too far, really, for the tiny singers to hear the warm applause so rightfully theirs. Not too far for dozens of those distant listeners to send letters expressing their appreciation.

To "Uncle John" Daggett, manager of the Times radio station, goes the credit for instituting one of the most unusual radio features ever put "on the air." The quartet of feathered songsters were installed in the broadcast-room shortly before Christmas, and already letters from fans declare "you do not need to announce the name of your station to us any more; we know it by the birds."

MUSIC BEGETS MUSIC

Singly or as a group the tiny quartet lends a silver-sweet accompaniment to the musical numbers sent from this station. They become vocal most readily at the sound of the human voice or of a flute or violin. However, any music is usually sufficient to induce one or more of them to sing. The piano will do it, the cornet, the cello, the harp. There is just one requirement which must be met before these consummate little artists will deign to contribute an obligatto; it must be read music. If it lacks harmony, or contains false notes, they are silent with the silence of utter disdain.

Each bird is named. When they made their debut Mr. Daggett called them "Radio K," "Radio H," "Radio J." Those were the three of the conventional canary yellow color. An appreciative newsboy who heard them one evening suggested that they be named "Kindness," "Happiness" and "Joy," and it was so ordered. The fourth? Mr. Daggett dubbed him "Uncle John." He is a quiet little brown chap. "K" is the largest of the quartet, and probably the finest singer. He has an amazing repertoire and is very generous with encores.

SING FOR BLIND GIRL

One of the rare occasions when the four sang together was on the evening when 11-year-old Margaret Brannon was on KHJ's concert program. Margaret is totally blind, but in spite of this handicap and her tender age she is a consummate master of the saxophone.

For an hour, during preceding numbers, the birds had refused to sing. When the little blind girl began to play the four canaries were silent a moment, drinking in the melody. Then "K" began to trill—high, sweet notes. "Uncle John" joined him, and shortly the others added their voices. They sang as though they would split their throats; in perfect harmony, in perfect sympathy of interpretation.

When the rendition was finished the birds fell silent again, and refused to blend their harmony with numbers which followed. "It's the saxophone," thought Mr. Daggett. But later in the program there was a second saxophone number by another player. He gave a magnificent interpretation—but never a note did the music draw from the canaries.

ANSWER TO PIANO

And then—and this is the amazing part of it—Margaret sat down at the piano and began to play. Immediately the birds joined her and all four of them sang throughout the number.

Mr. Daggett is convinced that by some strange telepathy the tiny singers understand that their tribute to the little blind girl was voluntary and from the heart. Be that as it may, is was an incident which made a deep impression on those who saw and heard it.

"The little chaps have an uncanny instinct when to sing," says Mr. Daggett. "They never offend good taste by coming in at the wrong time, or with false harmony or the wrong tempo. They could not render more perfect accompaniment if they had been trained for each number.

"In only one particular do I differ with them as to the right time to sing, and that is when, occasionally, they interrupt my reading of the "bedtime story" with so vociferous an accompaniment to the spoken words that I have several times been obliged to let them 'have the floor,' until they had done with their comments on the story or my rendation of it, whichever it may have been."

NOTES CARRY WELL

Mr. Daggett points out that the high-pitched notes of the canary seems to carry better "on the air" than music of greater volume but lower tone. The "high frequency" vibrations proceeding from their delicate vocal cords have marvelous carrying quality. Otherwise, these tiny singers could scarcely be heard across a continent, even with the aid of a powerful radio broadcast apparatus.

Up on the edge of the Artic circle, where every night the northern lights lights reach rosy, glowing fingers toward the zenith, there stands a little, lonely cabin. On every side, far as the eye can reach, stretch the snow wastes. Not another human habitation, league on league of empty prairie. Pioneers, those who sit within that home; immune to hardship, but no more immune to loneliness than any other man or woman or little child.

Loneliness—the appalling silence of the far places—there was no help for these things, until the radio came. Now there is a tall, slender aerial outside that house; a tenous thing whose supporting wires whistle shrilly when the mercury drops to thirty below and the blizzard comes raging out of the north.

Those slender singing wires spell surcease from isolation.

Across the snow wastes come the news of a busy world, the blessed consciousness of human contact. Music, too, and the song of birds. Little, feathered songsters in a land of roses and sunshine; trilling happy bird-notes for an ice-locked north.

LINER IS ON LAST TRIP TO HAWAII

President Harrison Leaves on Farewell Voyage in Island Service

Promptly at noon yesterday the Los Angeles Steamship Company liner, President Harrison, cast off from her moorings at Los Angeles Harbor and sailed on her last voyage to Honolulu.

The vessel carried sixty-eight passengers and 300 tons of freight, the largest single cargo ever taken from the port here to Honolulu.

Included in the passenger list are: William B. Boatwright, ice cream king of Indianapolis; Robert F. Tally, local motion-picture magnate, who intends to remain in the islands for about three weeks to "shoot" some scenic films, and a number of other prominent men and women from virtually every large city in the country.

Upon her return to Los Angeles, the President Harrison will be turned over to Swayne and Hoyt, who will place the vessel in passenger service to South America from Los Angeles.

The President Harrison will be replaced in the Hawaiian service by the liner Calawaii, which is being reconditioned at the port. The Calawaii was formerly the Army transport Sherman. She will make her first voyage to the islands in the Los Angeles Steamship Company service on February 10.

RADIO PROGRAM VARIED

Nine Solos, Whistling Numbers and Harmonica Selections Help Make Pleasing Entertainment

Nine soprano solos, four whistling solos, harmonica numbers, banjo-mandolin selections and dramatic readings made up the concert program from KHJ yesterday. The most prominent part of the broadcast during the two periods last night was taken by Edith Sage MacDonald who, accompanied by Irma Hertford, favored the kiddies in their period with four soprano solos, the lyrics of three being from the pen of Robert Louis Stevenson and the music by Ella Duffield.

These were strictly children's songs and included "My Shadow," "The Swing," "The Brown Thrush" and "The Fairy Pipers," by Brewer.

In the later period Miss MacDonald interpreted five selections—"Welcome, Sweet Wind," from the song cycle — "Morning of the Year," by Charles Wakefield Cadman; "Lindy Lou," by Strickland; "Come, Beloved," by Handel; "A Birthday," by Cowen, and "My Lady Jane," by Lambert. The delicate lyricism of Miss MacDonald's voice, plus dramatic appeal, which she cleverly uses as occasion requires, makes for colorful expression and great appeal.

In the children's period, beside the four songs by Miss MacDonald, were two readings by Doris Margaret Loomer, child reader and artist-pupil of Marshall Stedman, who gave two of Stedman's literary gems—"The Pride of Battery B" and "The Queen's Gift."

An instrument new to KHJ since it became a class B station was heard last night when Harvey E. Westgate, harmonica soloist, gave listeners a selection of old-time jig music. That radioland liked Mr. Westgate's contribution became apparent from the flood of phone calls that followed his first number.

Jule Flox, dramatic reader, who is a graduate of the Chicago Musical College, and who has appeared before a number of prominent New York producers, gave two readings last night — "Deceitful Man," by Walter Ben Hare, and "Myself and Me," by George M. Cohan. She proved to listeners-in that she has a highly developed elocutionary art.

Leonard Babbitt, banjo-mandolin soloist, accompanied by A. J. Lehman on the banjo-guitar, added zest to last night's broadcast with "Suzanna," "Open Your Arms" and "I Wish I Knew." Mr. Babbitt has favored KHJ listeners on several occasions, but this was the first time he has appeared on a night concert period.

Clark P. Swain, also playing the banjo - mandolin, contributed a group of selections which rounded out the musical part of the day's broadcast. He exemplified his ability to pick real harmony from the strings of his instrument.

In the afternoon concert Dorothy Edouart, whistler, accompanied by Lorraine Griffin, presented four superb selections, among them being "Bird Raptures," by Schneider; "The Bubble," by Rudolph Friml; "Souvenir," by Drdla, and "Peggy Dear," by Lyman, Arnheim and Freed. Miss Edouart gave the "canary corus," an inspiration, for they joined in, furnishing their own interpretation of "Bird Raptures," as she whistled it.

TABLES TURNED

Employees Steal March on Music Company Head in Banquet

It has been the custom of the Platt Music Company of 620-622 South Broadway, to entertain its large force of employees at dinner several times a year. But last Tuesday evening the tables were turned when more than 100 employees from the main establishment and five branch stores entertained Mr. and Mrs. Platt at an elaborate dinner, followed by a musical program and dance, in the banquet hall of the Elite Catering Company on South Flower street.

Mr. Platt left Los Angeles last week on a buying trip to the leading piano factories in the East, and the employees arranged this dinner and dance as a bon voyage surprise.

LEADER MISSED

Death of "Mother in Israel" is Felt In Church Circles

The death of Mrs. Mary Beaumont Welch, at the age of 81 years, on the 2nd inst., removed from Friendship Village, Los Angeles, one who had resided there for thirty years and devoted her life to religious work.

Mrs. Welch was greatly interested in the Young Woman's Christian Association, and was a member of its board several years. She had large Sunday-school classes of men in the University Methodist Church and in St. John's Episcopal Church. In her younger days, Mrs. Welch, who was the wife of Dr. A. S. Welch, president of the Iowa State College of Liberal Arts, organized the first department of home economics in that institution. The college gave her a testimonial of service in recognition of her leadership in its early development at its jubilee last year.

PUBLICITY MAN FOR DRY AGENTS HERE

Sherman Cuneo, head of the publicity department of the national prohibition headquarters, reached the city last night to prepare the way for the coming of his chief Roy A. Haynes, National Prohibition Commissioner to this city, January 23.

In addition to addressing city and county officials, and local prohibition agents, it is proposed to have a noon-day luncheon and a night meeting, when Commissioner Haynes will tell how the work of enforcing the national prohibition law is getting on.

Mr. Cuneo is high among the Ohio Republican politicians, a former newspaper man, and a biographer of the Chief Executive. His father, S. Cuneo, was one of the best-known of the Republican editors of Ohio, conducting a paper at Upper Sandusky for many years.

Group of Local Officers of Organized Reserve

FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

is filled up with the the way by Congress. It in mind that while the Regular Army and the National Guard are forces which can be used in emergencies in time of peace, the Organized Reserve constitutes purely a war force and can be employed onl yin the event of a national emergency, declared by Congress.

Attached to the reserve are officers and noncommissioned officers of the Regular Army, who are assigned to it for the performance of those duties, which are of a continuing nature and which, therefore, cannot be performed by the reserve personnel, due to the demands made upon them by their business. At times, when the Regular personnel is not sufficient, reserve officers are placed on active duty, after they have signified their willingness to accept such duty. Reserve officers can also be assigned, with their consent, during peace, to the Regular Army and the National Guard, when need arises for extra officers; they can likewise be sent to the Army service schools at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and at Camp Benning, Ga.

The officer ranks are open to all enlisted men of the Regular Army, National Guard and Enlisted Reserve Corps, and also to former service men in the World War, although not now in the service. All such men are welcomed at headquarters in the Detwiler Building on Sixth street, near Hill, and are given every assistance, both in the preparation of applications and later in preparing for the examinations which follow.

INTEREST SHOWN

An incident occurred while I was at reserve headquarters one morning, which illustrates the interest which is taken in applicants for commissions. A fine-looking young man applied to Col. Richmond for information about a commission as second lieutenant in the air service of the reserve. He happened to be a former cadet in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps unit under my command at Pasadena High School, and one of the crack shots on our winning rifle team, so I was very glad to recommend him in high terms. Col. Richmond told him that the government was very anxious to have men of his type, and was willing to meet them more than half way; he said that in giving examinations for commissions the board of examiners was influenced largely by the character of the applicant, his attitude toward military prparedness, his earnestness for a commission and his intention to follow the commission with serious work in the future. This incident made me realize how many splendid young men are overlooking the chance to prepare themselves for the part they would inevitably have to take in case of war.

In this connection it is interesting to know that there is a flying field at Santa Monica for the training of reserve officers, which will be under the direction of Lieut. Moseley of the Regular Army, attached to the reserve headquarters in Los Angeles.

An interesting feature of the organized reserve is the relation borne to it by the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, or the "R.O.T.C.," as it is commonly called. This body acts as a feeder for the reserve, although being a member of it does not entail any obligation for future service. The first step is as a member of the junior R.O.T.C. units in the high school; the next as a member of the senior unit in college, and the third step, after fulfilling certain conditions and attending the required number of camps, as a reserve officer of the Army of the United States.

I have been greatly interested as I have traveled about, to find how the organized reserve has taken root among the people. One day, while waiting for a car, I was asked by a passing automobilist to ride with him. I found that my friend was a veterinarian and a reserve officer of the United States Army. Shortly after that I met a doctor, who was a reserve officer; a few weeks later a man asked me on the street for information, and he, too, was a reserve officer, this time in the quartermaster department. I began to realize that the organized reserve was a big thing, with a stronger hold than I had imagined. We study and read, but often we do not get the real facts till we have a personal contact, such as this. I thought how fine and patriotic it is to go about one's work, and yet to be ready and willing at a moment's notice to fight for one's country, leaving all and possibly sacrificing all for the general welfare.

SUMMER CAMPS

Every summer in July and August, in all the corps areas, are held camps for reserve officer of two weeks' duration. It is planned, also, to conduct camps in September for men who can not leave earlier. In these camps, practical instruction and trianing are given. Due to lack of appropriations, the camps have not been as large as desired, but it is hoped that the future will see an improvement in this direction, and that Congress will awaken to the needs of the reserve and provide amply for the continuance of the work in all its branches.

There is another, and a very important way, in which reserve officers can keep abreast of progress in military affairs. This is the application in the Army of the method which in civil life is so much used by ambitious men in their desire to forge ahead in their chosen work or profession. The War Department conducts a correspondence course which is open to all reserve officers who have the time and the inclination for it.

This is a most interesting subject for anyone to look into, as courses are provided not only for the reserve and National Guard officer, but under certain conditions for civilians who have no connection with the Army. There are courses for every branch of the service. Since approximately 80 per cent of the Army of the United States consists of men engaged in civilian pursuits, it can easily be seen how important is this phase of the work. The courses are designed not only to prepare officers for the duties of their own grade, but for promotion to a higher grade. Further information on this subject will be gladly given at reserve headquarters.

Col. David P. Barrows, One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Infantry, California National Guard, who is the president of the University of California, writes as follows concerning the correspondence course:

"The military training which such instruction as this offers is indispensable to an officer who desires to remain upon the reserve list and to be ready to do his part in case of an emergency. Apart from its military value, however, such lessons as these are the very best kind of intellectual discipline, quite equal in their results on the training of the mind to any correspondence lessons that I have ever seen. No officer can plead lack of time for doing such work as this, because we all have, if we are wise, a hobby, a diversion from our main business; and this great game of military tactics is a better and more enjoyable game than novel reading or bridge playing. No detective story, in my opinion, can equal the excitement of working out a good military problem."

Among the prominent officers of the reserve of the Ninth Corps area are Lieut.-Col. J. W. Sutphen and Maj. J. B. Chaffey. Col. Sutphen is executive officer of the One Hundred and Eighty-second Infantry Brigade of the Ninety-first Division. He has great ability in organization and executive work and has been very active during the last year in connection with organizing the reserve forces of this corps area. He has also acted on boards for the examination of reserve officers. He has a distinguished record in France in the front lines, where as battalion commander he acted with great energy and heroism.

Maj. Chaffey is in the Quartermaster Corps. At the outbreak of war he was detailed as constructing quartermaster at Camp Fremont, at Palo Alto, Cal. He practically built the camp, handling all the extensive work there to the satisfaction of the War Department. His business training probably saved the government millions of dollars. He is now president of the Association of the Quartermaster Corps of Southern California and vice-president of the Los Angeles sector of the Association of the Army of the United States. Both he and Col. Sutphen give largely of their time and interest in the work of the Organized Reserve.

ARMY SOCIETY

During the past year, in all large cities, branches of the Association of the Army of the United States have been established. In Los Angeles it numbers over 325 and is increasing daily. Those eligible for membership are reserve officers, National Guard officers and active and retired officers of the Regular Army. The association typifies the great plan of the War Department for the Army of the United States, which consists of the three branches of the service mentioned above, together with the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Each branch is important in itself and each supplements the work of the others; they are tied together by mutual interest and by a common bond of patriotism and loyalty.

Once-a-month meetings of the association are held in Los Angeles. The last meeting was held at the new home of the Elite on Flower street, in the spacious banquet hall. One attending this gathering was impressed upon entering by the fine appearance of the assembled officers.

After a short interval the guests were invited into the banquet hall, where a number of long tables were arranged, each table bearing cards designating the different groups. After the dinner was well under way Col. Arthur Williams of the Regular Army, president of the Los Angeles sector of the association quickly finished up the necessary business and prepared the way for the program of the evening, which was under the direction of Col. Frank J. Morrow, U.S.A.

The program was opened by Count Luserna of the Italian army, military attache at Washington, who told of the Fascisti in a comprehensive and interesting address. This was followed by Dr. McCrea of the Near East relief, who in turn was followed by Capt. Cluverius of the Navy, chief of staff, base force. The latter gave an interesting account of mine work by the Navy in the North Sea during the great World War and concluded with the statement that the Navy did not ask for additional strength, but only for the means to make what it had 100 per cent efficient, so that it might be ready when the call came. This was a forceful and inspiring address and was received with great applause by the assembled officers. The evening was brought to a close in an enjoyable manner by James W. Foley, who in his inimitable way kept everyone laughing for half an hour. He concluded with a strong plea for the proper education of the youth of the nation. The evening was altogether one to be long remembered. Every officer who missed it lost a golden opportunity.

At each of its meetings, hereafter, the association plans to have selected speakers, both military and civilian, from among the best and most forceful the Pacific Coast affords. There are 2000 or more officers of the Army of the United States in or near Los Angeles who should take advantage of this opportunity for enjoyable association and advancement along professional lines. The initiation fee is nominal and the price of the dinners moderate, so that all may enjoy these occasions at small cost.

RECORD OF PRESIDENT

Col. Dwight M. Green, Infantry Officers' Reserve Corps, is the new president of the Association of the Army of the United States in Los Angeles. He served in France as a battalion commander and later as lieutenant-colonel of the One Hundred and Fifth Infantry. As a general staff officer he served for several months as G-3 of the Thirty-eighth Division. Notwithstanding that by profession he is a physician, he preferred during the war, as did Gen. Wood, to serve in the line of the Army as an infantry officer. He is one of the most prominent and active reserve officers of Los Angeles, and takes a great interest in all matters pertaining to the organization and instruction of the reserve.

I have written this article with a twofold purpose; first, with the desire of acquainting the citizen with this remarkable plan, which affects him so vitally, and second, with the idea of informing the young man of the opportunity which the War Department is anxious to give him through the R.O.T.C. and the Organized Reserve, to fit himself to play a man's part in the future, should we again be confronted with a great national emergency.

I shall be very content if, by this short article, I have been able to awaken even a few to the great part the reserve forces of the nation are destined to play in the defense and security of the country.

OIL MEN OF CALIFORNIA ORGANIZE

Charter Arrives for New Petroleum Club Just Formed Here

With its charter secured from the Secretary of State less than a week ago, the newly formed California Petroleum Club has now a membership of more than 100, and an enrollment in excess of 1000 is anticipated by February 1, according to Col. W. E. Hawley, who was chosen as the organization's first president and who is in charge of the temporary headquarters in Parlor H, at the Alexandria. Kelby and Lawson have been appointed general counsel for the association and will handle all its legal affairs pertaining to organization details.

Other officers are J. H. Grohs, first vice-president; William G. Lacy, second vice-president; Henry J. Grohs, acting secretary, and Hooper C. Dunbar, treasurer. The charter received from the Secretary of State designates as directors for the first year, W. D. Howard, president of the Continental National Bank; Fred T. Beaty, Mayor of Montebello; William G. Lacy of the Lacy Manufacturing Company, Henry J. Grohs of the Twin Bell Oil Company of Whittier; Hooper C. Dunbar of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, and W. E. Howley of the Santa Fe Springs Chamber of Commerce.

All persons directly or indirectly connected with the petroleum industry will be welcomed into membership in the organization, which, in addition to its social and business side, will act as a general clearinghouse for the oil world so far as California is concerned.

HOME GARDEN NUMBER

Provide Yourself With a Full Set of Tools

Good tools double the joys, and profits, of gardening. A sturdy, sharp spading fork is indispensable. Good ones cost from $1.10 to $2; long handled shovels $1.90 to $2.50; spades, $1 to $2.50; hoes, 75c to $1.35; rakes, 60c to $1.50. If you can afford it, by all means invest in a Planet Jr. or a Standard cultivator. This tool is a complete gardener. It does the work of five men with less than half the effort that one man usually expends. Priced from $5 to $17.25. Completely described in our free folders.

These Sturdy Plants Bloom in Spring

If you're anxious to see flowers in your garden, set out these choice Germain-grown plants:

Verbenas, Calendulas, Snapdragons, Pansies, English Daisies, Cinerarias, Carnations, Gaillardias, Marguerites and Primulas.

Time to Set Out Vegetable Plants

Even if frost does come these hardy Germain-grown plants will thrive: Cabbage, Cauliflower, Strawberry, Horseradish, Rhubarb and Artichokes.

Now that Science has proven Vitamines A, B and C are vital to human health, and that these elements are more prevalent in fresh vegetables than in any other food matter, the home garden has become a necessity. Thousands are turning their backyards into vitamine factories—and are incidentally adding neat sums to their bank accounts. A garden pays—in more ways than two. If you haven't already done so, prepare your soil to receive Germain's choice varieties of Radishes, Lettuce, Peas, Onions, Carrots, Beets, Parsnips and Parsley — all of which can be sown in the open ground.

Cauliflower, Peppers, Cabbage, etc., should be sown in boxes and later transplanted to the garden.

Any three 10c packets Germain's famous California seeds 25c postpaid.

How to Fertilize

Use Germain's special brand of sheep manure on heavy soils, such as adobe — 100 lbs., $1.90; Nuvida is best for all soils, particularly loam—100 lbs. $4. For house plants, ferns, etc. use Stimuplant Tablets. Trial size, 15c.

Garden Collection 20 Choice Bulbs, 75c

Flowering bulbs are always a joy whether planted in beds, rows or dotted among plants and shrubbery. They give a touch of the unusual. We have prepared a garden collection of 20 choice bulbs which is specially priced at 75c.

Treat Hens for Worms

Tone up hens and free their intestinal tracts of worms before the hatching season. Germain's Premium Intestinal Cleanser frees hens of worms without reducing vitality. Its use also insures sturdier, healthier chicks as all the vitality goes into the egg instead of sharing it with intestinal worms. 35c lb.; 5 lbs., $1.50.

20% More Eggs!

Sounds interesting, doesn't it? Lee's Egg Maker will increase your egg production at least 20%. Small package, 50c.

Any Pets to Sell?

We buy sturdy, healthy pets of all kinds—with or without pedigrees. We also offer for sale a choice selection of pups, kittens, monkeys, parrots, guinea pigs, white mice, etc. Come in and see how a really up-to-date pet shop should be run. Visitors are always welcome here.

Orange Norwich Canaries Finest We've Had

To see these wonderful birds is to covet one for a pet, or a pair for breeding stock. Their plumage is the color of a California orange and their song as sweet and true as a silver bell. Males are very special at $25; females, $10 and $12.

Get After Devil Grass

The Rich Lawn Cultivator is the only tool that will control this evil without harming your lawn. It is used and recommended by the public parks of both Los Angeles and Pasadena. Price, complete with handle, $5. Without handle $4.50.

Cat Combs Arrived!

Owners of Persian and others long haired cats will be glad to know we again have Spratt's famous single piece, round teeth combs. This is the only comb that will not split the hair. Price $1.50.

DRESS UP FAUCETS WITH BULBS

Plant Dwarf Yellow Cannas and German Iris around faucets. You'll be charmed with the effect as the color combination is delightful and the growth most artistic. Germain's choice dwarf cannas are 15c each, $1.50 doz. Iris Germanica in light blue, purple or white, 50c doz.

Make Fences Lovely With Germain's Sweet Peas

If you haven't a fence, a trellis will do just as well. By planting the seeds now and keeping flowers well picked you will enjoy an extra long blooming season. Germain's Giant Spencers are the newest and choicest summer blooming sweet peas. Colors are lavender, pink, cerise-salmon, white, maroon and rose. The entire collection—six 15c packets, six separate colors—75c postpaid.

Hatch Your Own

If you provide Love Birds and Finches with nests they will hatch their own babies. This, of course, applies to aviaries and large cages, as these birds won't set up housekeeping in small quarters. Special inclosed nests, the only kind they'll use, are 75c each.

Spraying Important

It's easy to control pests if you don't let them get a start. Right now your rose bushes and all trees and shrubs that shed their leaves should be thoroughly sprayed with Lime-Sulphur solution. Small and medium size packages 25c and 40c. Evergreens—citrus trees, hedge plants, etc.—should be sprayed with Rosin Spray. 35c package. New growths on evergreens are very tender and should be sprayed with Lemon Oil. 50c and 30c sizes.

CHINESE TONGUE TAUGHT

Los Angeles Students Have Opportunity to Study Old Language in Local University

That the study of the Chinese language will take its place among Americans along with the study of Spanish and French is the prediction made by Dr. John Hedley, professor of the Chinese language and history of China, at the University of Southern California, who cites the interest being taken by two classes at the university including both Americans and American-born Chinese students.

So popular is the study of the Chinese language becoming that it is expected that a downtown evening class will be established as a part of the extension work of the College of Commerce for Americans who are preparing to enter the import and export trade.

"America has a big opportunity for trade in China, for the Chinese would rather trade with the Americans than with any other people—if Americans will give them what they want," declared Dr. Hedley, who spent sixteen years as a teacher and missionary in North China and who was regional director for 16,000 Chinese laborers imported into France during the war.

STANDING IS HIGH

"Today America stands third in its trade relations with China, with England first and Japan second," continued Dr. Hedley. "In order to gain the trade supremacy the American merchant must give long credit and must manufacture a grade of goods and at a price demanded by the Chinese. He must send out his bulletins and catalogs in the Chinese language and not in the English language—just as he would not expect a Chinese merchant to send him a catalog in the Chinese language. And it is to fit American young men for this field that we are establishing classes in the study of the Chinese language.

"This branch of learning is being introduced into Columbia University and Dr. Lucius Porter of Peking University has been 'loaned' to Columbia for tyo years to establish a department of the Chinese language and history of that country, similar to the work we have already established in the local university.

"Merchants in the eastern part of the country are already preparing for the increased import and export trade with China and here on the West Coast we have a new field for commerce opening up.

INDEMNITY REMEMBERED

"One reason that the Chinese are more friendly to Americans is a result of the Boxer indemnity of $11,000,000 which was returned by this country to China for the education of Chinese students.

"Another thing that will increase the trade between the two countries will be when Chinese merchants are treated with fairness and courtesy when they come to this country—when the laws differantiate between the merchant and the laborer so that the merchant may receive as much courtesy as the American merchant going to China to establish trade relations.

"Many Chinese students who come to this country to study trade conditions and who wish to enter various manufacturing concerns to secure first-hand knowledge, are not allowed to do so on account of the laws regarding Chinese labor. As a result many of these go to other countries, notably France, and naturally they are partial to that country in their later business relations.

"As far as the exporting trade is concerned I expect to see the Chinese language almost as popular in the future as is the present study of the Spanish language."

Dr. Hedley is being assisted by C. C. Lee, a graduate of the National University of Peking who is working for his master's degree at the University of Southern California.

The Most Beautiful Story Ever Written

(This is the Sunday-school lesson next Sunday, January 21.)

The Parable of the Prodical Son—Text of Today's Bible Talk by Mr. Bryan

(Luke xv; 11-24)

And He said, A certain man had two sons:

And the younger of them said to his father. Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living.

And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living.

And when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want.

And he went and joined himself to a citizen of that country; and he sent him into his fields to feed swine.

And he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat; and no man gave unto him.

And when he came to himself, he said. How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger?

I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee.

And am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants.

And he arose, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran and fel lon his neck, and kissed him.

And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son.

But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet:

And bring hither the fated calf, and kill it; and let us eat and be merry:

For this my son was dead, and is alive again; he was lost, and is found. And they began to be merry.

Our Talk today deals with the Prodigal Son, the most beautiful story ever written.

It is full of tenderness, it teaches a wonderful lesson of God's love, and it fits into nearly every human life.

Few, fortunately, carry their rebellion to the extreme that this son did, but at a certain period during the transition from youth to maturity, when independence is taking the place of dependence, the spirit of revolt is apt to manifest itself against even the most considerate of parents.

The child cannot always act under direction; in the course of nature it must at some time assume responsibility for its course and decide for itself what it will do. This resolve to decide is the turning point of which self-assertion is the outward evidence.

It is at this time that the child is apt to have an exaggerated idea of its intelligence; it thinks it knows more than it ever does know. The pendulum usually swings too far and may not quickly return.

This is the age when the child really needs counsel and advice more than it does either just before or just afterward; hence, the importance of spiritual supervision at this critical time, usually covered by the student life if the education is completed.

THE SPIRIT OF ADVENTURE

The father in the story had two sons. The older one had crossed this stormy strip of life's sea in safety, but the younger one was possessed of the spirit of adventure.

The father's authority was irksome to him; the parental yoke was galling. The text does not tell us at what hour in the day the son asked for his portion, but it is safe to guess that it was early in the forenoon of the day when he reached his majority.

The father, no longer able to force his guardianship upon the wayward lad, divided his substance and gave to the young man that which was his according to the law of that day.

His plans were doubtless made in advance, for "not many days after the younger son gathered all together and took his journey into a far country." That "he wasted his substance with riotous living" suggests that he had decided on having "a good time," as such are in the habit of calling it, before he left home. Probably he sought a "far country" that he might be more free to follow his bent.

MONEY COMPANIONS

The text does not tell us about his companions; it is not necessary that information should be given on this subject.

In every country there are those who know by instinct when a spendthrift comes into possession of an inheritance; they are constant companions while the money lasts, and their instinct detects as surely the day when the money is gone.

When this young man had spent all there arose a mighty famine in that country and he began to want. If he had made a wise use of his money, he might have passed through even a mighty famine unharmed, but those who waste their substance with riotous living are the ones who suffer first when hard times come.

The prodigal son was not in position to seek the best places; his dissipations had not only wasted his money but diminished his capacity for work. He had to take anything that was offered and the feeding of swine—the most menial labor of that day—fell to his lot. His dream of independence came to an end—"he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat." His swagger was gone; his pride was humbled; the priceless hour of repentance was at hand.

A VALUABLE MOMENT

All moments are of equal length, as time is ticked by the clock, but moments may differ infinitely in value. The moment in which "he came to himself" was more valuable to him than all the days that he spent in riotous living. And how blessed it is that it takes no longer to turn to the right than to the left.

There was a moment—a fatal moment—in his youth when he decided to enter upon a career of physical enjoyment, just as there is a moment in the life of a thief when he decides to steal, and a moment in the life of a murderer when he decides to kill, but the moment in which one decides to do right is no longer than the moment in which one decides to do wrong.

Years may be spent in coming up to the moment of decision. The thief may be very deliberate in the contemplation of wrongdoing; he may count the money over and over again and consider the possibilities of capture and punishment. The murderer may cherish revenge for years and devise ways of escape, but the decision requires only an instant.

EIGHT PREGNANT WORDS

And so with the prodigal son. His thoughts turned back to his father's house—"how many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish here with hunger." The comforts of home impressed him more as they passed before him in retrospect than they did when they were his in actual possession.

We do not know how long the memory of better days had chided him before his pride broke down. Many a young man has come to himself as he has recalled parental advice—the counsel of a father, the prayers of a mother, or the songs of the Sunday school.

There are enough cases to convince us that no good influences thrown about a child are ever hopelessly lost. Words, seemingly unheard when spoken, may echo in after years until the echo drowns out all other sounds.

"I will arise and go to my father." Eight words only—and yet they meant more to this young man than all the thick-tongued hilarity of his boon companions. They meant life because they came from the heart out of which are the issue of life.

A WORTHY FATHER

And mark his humility. He was not returning to defend before his father the course he had pursued. He could now see the folly of that course as well as his father could see it in advance.

"I have sinned against heaven, and before thee;" it was a plea for mercy and for forgiveness. He did not ask for a son's place. He felt that he had forfeited the right to ask for that; it would be enough to have a place among the hired servants.

And now, the father had a part to play and he played it worthily. We need some such picture to portray a father's love.

The mother's love is the theme of many a story and the mother deserves all the praise that words can bestow. She invests her life in her child as a father cannot. Her life trembles in the balance when the child is born, and for years it is the object of her constant and tender care. The child is the mother's treasure and where the treasure is there will the heart be also.

But the father is not indifferent to the child's welfare and the lesson for today presents the father at his best.

He did not rebuke the son with "I told you so," or, "You should have known better." He ran to meet his wandering boy. He was quick to note the boy's changed attitude; the very manner of the son proclaimed it. He hardly gave the prodigal time to make his confession and beg forgiveness. "Bring forth the best robe"—bring it quickly. And then the fatted calf was killed and the neighbors were invited in to make merry.

A STRIKING CONTRAST

What a contrast between this story and the story of the rich young man.

The latter was a ruler, a man of influence and of wealth, and he had led a balmeless life, but he lacked one thing. He did not put the following of the Saviour above all other things.

His money came first. "He went away sorrowful; for he had great possessions." He comes into the lime light for a moment, then, failing in the extreme test, he returns to obscurity. The last we see of him is his back—he turned his back upon his one great opportunity.

But here is the story of a spendthrift; he wasted his substance in riotous living and squandered what his father had earned. But he repents; he is born again. He returns to his father's house and is welcome. His sins are forgiven and we leave him amid the congratulations of friends, his father exclaiming in joy. "This my son was dead, and is alive again."

A TOUCH OF SADNESS

Only the elder brother refuses to share in the rejoicing. Why was this touch of sadness introduced at the very end of the story? In order to make it natural.

How can a brother know a father's love. His heart had never been wrung by a child's waywardness. He saw a wild boy bring sorrow upon a parent, and he had to blush for a brother's sins, and possibly the father had accepted the elder son's service and devotion as a matter of course, without thinking to reward him with an occasional kid.

The father, having passed beyond the age of merriment, might have been at fault in not considering the social side of the elder son's life, but nothing that the father could have done could have opened to the elder son's understanding the father's delight when the prodigal returned.

And why is the story told? To emphasise the Heavenly Father's love of every child and to give assurance of the Father's delight when a child returns to the fold.

The story of the Prodigal Son is the third of three illustrations by Jesus recorded by Luke in one chapter—the fifteenth—all given to show God's attitude toward repentance and his willingness to pardon.

THE LOST SHEEP

The first is the parable of the lost sheep—one out of one hundred. As the owner calls together his friends and neighbors, saying unto them, "Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost," so, "likewise joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance."

In the second illustration a woman, having ten pieces of silver, lost one. When, after diligent search, she found it she called in her friends and neighbors, saying, "Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost," and the moral, "Likewise, I say unto you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

Then follows the story of the Prodigal Son, which furnishes the climax. First, a sheep, then a coin and, last, a human soul. The moral of the Prodigal Son is so plain that it was not necessary to conclude the story as Christ concluded the story of the sheep and of the coin.

The impression made by this lesson will linger with us. No one will gather from it the thought that repentance can justify the sin that precedes it. The rewards of a virtuous life are continuous. The elder son might well have weighed them against the merriment of a homecoming banquet. The Prodigal would have gladly exchanged the joy of the feast for forgetfulness of his evil days and of the husks.

The real joy that all can derive from the story of the prodigal son is that God's love is so infinite that even man's sin cannot exhaust it. Christ's pardon is offered to all.

Christianity has been called the gospel of the second chance. It is more than that. It is the gospel of innumerable chances if the heart is truly repentant.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—[Advertisement.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

This is a pleasant, safe and reliable medicine for coughs and colds. It has been in use for many years and is held in high esteem in those households where its good qualities are best known. It is a favorite with mothers of young children, as it contains no opium or other harmful drug. Try it when you have need of such a remedy—[Advertisement.

ASTERPIECES PAINTED BY CHILD IN NURSERY

ork of Girl, Little More Than Baby, Given Place in Noted English Galleries

BY S. FRED HOGUE

Pamela Blanco was a child beloved of the fairies. A fairy mother hovered over her cradle at birth and gave to her fingers the magic of painting the fairies themselves and the things the fairies love—flowers, birds, bunnies and baby children just learning to walk.

... those who have permitted ... scientists and atrophied ... to convince them ... the dreamland of the fairies ... and never did exist read ... narrative of this fair- ... daughter of an Italian fa- ... and an English mother, and ... convinced.

... she had reached the age ... years she produced master- ... of art that have been con- ... worthy a place in the Tate ... the National galleries of London.

ART IN NURSERY

... yet in the nursery she ... pen-and-ink sketches that ... almost fabulous prices now. ... she lacked dolls she drew ... on bits of paper, dressing ... in quaint designs and deco- ... the tiny garments with flowers and fruits.

And these little sketches have ... the grace, simplicity and beauty ... the Italian primitives.

Though she never has taken an ... lesson, the most eminent art ... of the day pronounce her ... technique faultless. Her chubby ... fingers draw lines that Ingress ... might have envied. By intuition ... divined what to others are the ... secrets of light and shade.

Pamela came into the world a ... full-fledged artist. She draws and ... as faultlessly and happily ... as the birds warble from flowering ... in the spring time.

TECHNIQUE NATURAL

Before this phenomenon what be- ... of the Carlyle enigma that ... is an infinite capacity for ... pains?" For Pamela does ... take infinite pains with her ... compositions. She draws with ... free strokes, never wasting a ... line. There is nothing labored or ... in her technique.

What her fancy conceives her ... expresses. Drawing is not a ... task, but a pastime.

... the fairies if you will; but ... first what other power ... give to this untutored child ... purity of expression, such ... and beauty of contour and ...

Before such art science is dumb. I had read her praises, sung by ... artists and poets of Italy ... England, but they left me ... For I imagined it was an- ... other case of an infant prodigy. It ... not until I saw a collection of ... paintings and drawings at the ... & Chaffin galleries last ... that I awoke to a realization ... the girl deserved the name ... master."

NEW DEFINITION

I have abandoned the Carlyle ... and concluded that ... is simply the capacity for self-expression. This child was born with a vivid imagination and a love for the beautiful. The marvelous, unexplainable part is that what her brain conceives her untrained hand can express.

Her work never is the copy of a copy. It is the expression of the emotional primitive. She is thrilled and awed by the beauties and, at times, the tragedies of nature; and paint, ink or crayon visualizes what the mind sees.

She received no superimposed patterns. Her composition is intuitive. Her little studies are as delicate and pure as the baby fingers with which they were produced. They are studies in decorative effects of which the great living masters might be proud.

HER ART UNEXPLAINABLE

One cannot explain her art. It defies analysis. At the first glance one knows her sketches are the product of Latin blood. Theosophists will point to her work as a proof of their theory of reincarnation. She was born in England and had done some of her best work before she ever saw Italy. Yet her art is that of the Italian primitives. It is difficult to believe that some of her female figures were not sketched by the great Botticelli.

She was born a master of the Italian oval. And it was due to the good sense of her English mother that she developed her talent without the interference of outside influence.

When she made her first sketches on bits of paper in the nursery, the mother, herself an author and member of the London literary circle, sensed their value. She did not flatter or spoil the child; did not attempt to direct her in any way. She was only careful that there were always paper, a paint box and pens and crayons lying about.

Pamela wanted a doll party, and the dolls came as by enchantment from her magic brush.

There were rabbits in the garden. Pamela watched them at their play and drew them to show Daddy what she had seen.

Flowers bloomed in the window pots, and Pamela reproduced them from her box of paints.

A bird sang at the window in the sunlight and Pamela sketched it there. Frost came, and one morning the sweet singer lay dead on the window sill. It was the first grief to come into the child's life, and what her heart felt her hand expressed. On that morning tragedy in her was born.

The rabbits in the garden were her playmates. She dressed the bunnies in fancy costumes and then drew them; her sides so shaking with laughter that her hand trembled.

Her mama dressed the baby before the fire. It kicked out its chubby legs and wiggled its pink toes. The mother smiled and Pamela painted. Connoisseurs say the composition is the Madonna of the Pre-Raphaelites.

CARICATURES TEACHER

Her master at school was rude; and Pamela caricatured him on a blank page of her school book. The mother carefully removed the leaf and preserved it, and the master never knew.

All these sketches were collected and mounted, and now they have sold for enough to enable Pamela to visit with her mother and father the wonderful United States.

Her father, wise in book lore, for he is a bibliographer, told her fairy stories when bedtime came. At night she dreamed of the fairies, and she painted them the next day to show him what she had found in her wonderland. Those fairy figures and fairy trees are among her most charming sketches.

But she little dreamed that her own life was the most charming fairy story of them all.

TAKEN TO ITALY

During the years she painted the war raged. Her father returned to Turin to fight under the Italian colors, taking Pamela and the mother along. But the great tragedy did not approach her Italian garden.

One senses this trip only in the brighter colors that appear in the pictures, and the Italian faces.

Her father sent the Italian poet D'Annunzio, then in the air service, some of her sketches. Two days later an airplane floated down like a great bird and landed in the plain. The pilot brought her a letter from D'Annunzio and a box of paints.

Pamela painted the bird and the aviator, and the canvas sold in London for 100 pounds.

SKETCHES MOUSE

Once a mouse peeped out from the baseboard. She sat very still and sketched him as he brushed his silken coat and twisted his tiny mustaches, like a true Lothario.

Such is the art of Pamela Bianco; sublime in its simplicity. Sketches grow under her brush and pen like buds from the stem of a flower.

Now the naive period of childhood has passed and that of adolescence has arrived. I have seen a few samples of her work since arriving in this country. She now is 15 years of age and has become self-conscious.

I had hoped that her art would be like Peter Pan, that would never grow up. But she has been to the studios of the modernists; and their trail, like that of a serpent, is over her compositions now.

The Pamela of the rabbits, the bunnies, the fairies and the flowers is gone. She is a born colorist; but when her compositions become more elaborate, more studied, their piquant charm vanishes.

WHAT OF FUTURE?

Will she produce more masterpieces? Can she escape the influence of the traditional in art? As her mind, her intellect, develops, will she lose the subconscious intuition that made her a child wonder? Has a female Raphael been born?

To attempt to answer these questions would be to indulge in idle speculation. I doubt if she produces another masterpiece until the period of adolescence has passed.

I wish she might never have seen an art gallery, might never have known the recognized standards of art. I wish that like Peter Pan, she might never have grown up.

But, whatever the future may hold in store, there is still an opportunity for the lovers of the beautiful and the primitive in art to see the most remarkable collection of what I might term modern primitives that the century has produced. There are more than 100 paintings, sketches and lithographs in the collection to be on display in the Cannell and Chaffin galleries at 720 West Seventh street at the exhibition which will be opened on Tuesday, and it is an opportunity that will not come again. All the others who painted like Pamela Bianca are dead.

School Bureau Appreciated by Alumni Guests

Appreciative letters and expressions of gratitude to the Chamber of Commerce have come from alumni who have been able to locate friends through the new information service offered by the chamber, listing the names of alumni associations in the city and the headquarters of fraternities and sororities.

Although a large number responded to the appeal of the chamber to send in their addresses and telephone numbers to the information bureau, 130 South Broadway, a number of important colleges and fraternal organizations have not volunteered as yet the information desired by daily inquirers at the chamber.

Officers of the Big Ten Alumni Association of Southern California have forwarded the address of their headquarters, including Universities of Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, Northwestern, Purdue, Iowa, Chicago and Indiana. Fraternities availing themselves of the opportunity to make connections with prospective affiliates are Sigma Nu, Theta Delta Chi, Alpha Omicron Pik, Alpha Phi, Delta Tau Delta and Delta Gamma.

DESTROYER WOOD SUPREME

Fast Fleet Vessel Occupies Top Niche in Efficiency in Many Departments

"Give 'em all they want!" That's the motto of the U.S.S. Wood—the United States Navy's crack destroyer—the ship that carries the world's champion naval gunner, the fastest, deadliest four-inch gun crew, an engine-room force of marvelous efficiency," and is also the fastest fighting craft in the United States battle fleet.

"Spike" Hennessy, a lanky Irish lad and a first-class seaman on the Wood, is the world's best gunner. "Spike" is a pointer in the crew of the Wood's No. 1 four-inch gun, and a few months ago he swept the field by making three hits in nineteen seconds on a target 2000 yards distant. The Wood was at the time tearing along at thirty knots.

The crew of the Wood's forward four-inch gun at the same time set a new mark for the destroyers of the battle fleet in the same practice by making seven hits out of eight shots fired in forty-eight seconds. The gun as a result carries the white "E" of excellence on her steel shield.

WON SPEED TRIALS

A few months ago the San Diego destroyers ran off their annual speed trials. Everyone expected the Wood to top the list. She did—despite the fact that two of her boilers went dead under the terrific strain, forcing her to finish the run with but half her usual steam capacity.

The Wood is a unit of Destroyer Division No. 34, the busiest six ships in the fleet. Whenever there is work to be done Division 34 is sent to the spot.

Last week Commander W. S. Anderson's craft were up from San Diego to lay a smoke screen for the battle fleet's practice "C." They did the job perfectly, and ten minutes after the dreadnaughts fired their last salvo the six destroyers were hull down over the horizon, bearing south at twenty-five knots in order to join the destroyer force off the Coronado drill grounds by darkness for night battle maneuvers.

HAS A PARTNER

In most of her hurry-up tasks the Wood has a partner, the U.S.S. Yarborough. Both ships have the weird faculty of being on the spot when something happens. The two were working off the Pacific Coast calibrating the compasses of the radio compass stations when the Astoria fire broke out. In two hours they were at the scene ready for patrol duty.

Lieut.-Commander Webb C. Hayes, commanding the U.S.S. Wood, is a good sailor and the grandson of Rutherford B. Hayes, who a good many years ago was President of the United States. Like his grandfather, Commander Hayes comes from the Buckeye State.

Ensign George H. Gregory, the Wood's engineer officer, is the man who originated his ship's motto. He also organized the Wood's undefeated baseball squad, which last year won twenty-five straight games.

Last spring the Navy Department set a rigid economy schedule for destroyer engineering efficiency. Engineer officers of the destroyer force said a lot of hard things about it and declared they never could attain the 100 per cent mark.

"How do you do it, Gregory?" Admiral Guy H. Burrage asked the engineer.

"Oh, that's easy, sir," smiled Mr. Gregory. "We always give 'em all they want."

Desert Murder Being Sifted in Los Angeles

The investigation of the murder of Walter Dowdy, motoring from his home in Norfolk, Va., to Los Angeles, shifted to this city yesterday when William Dowdy, the dead man's brother, joined forces with police in a search for the killer.

Detective Sergeants Lloyd and Roberds were detailed yesterday to aid Dowdy, following receipt of a letter from Inspector of Police E. G. Crowe of Phoenix, where the crime is presumed to have been committed.

Phoenix was the last city from which relatives in Virginia heard from Walter Dowdy. It has been established that Dowdy was murdered by a man he hired to accompany him upon the trip. The man's name is unknown. Dowdy had drawn a large sum of money in order to purchase a new car. The money was missing when the body was found, leading to the conclusion that robbery was the motive. The murder occurred about December 21, last.

BECOME STATE BANKS

Montebello and Burbank Institutions to Change Status

The reorganization of the First National Bank of Montebello and its conversion to a State institution to be known as the Security State Bank of Montebello has been sanctioned by Jonathan Dodge, State Bank Superintendent, according to information given out yesterday.

Authority has been given to change the status of the First National Bank of Burbank to that of a State institution. The latter will be known as the Security State Bank of Burbank.

Both institutions, it is announced, will become branches of the Security Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles.

The society has grown remarkably in the past year, 208 new members having been enrolled, bringing the membership to a total of more than 900. It was predicted at the meeting that the society will have a membership of 1500 at the end of 1925. More than 500 books were given to the library maintained by the society during the past year, the reports of the officers showed.

Arthur J. Waters was elected trustee to succeed himself and Maj. Robert Adams Gibbs and Mr. Dixon selected to represent the local society at the national triennial convention to be held in the spring.

Wage Board to Discuss Pay in Canning Plants

The State Industrial Welfare Commission announced yesterday the holding of a wage board hearing for the fish canning industry, tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. at 931 Pacific Finance Building.

The board is composed of three employers and three women elected by the women workers in the fish canning industry. The employers are A. K. Johnson of the Normandy Sea Food Company, San Diego; Bismark Houssels of the International Packing Company, Los Angeles Harbor, and Mr. Hume of the F. E. Booth Packing Company, Monterey. Representatives of women workers will be Mrs. Perry Jollota, East Los Angeles Harbor; Mrs. E. Mesick, Los Angeles Harbor, and Mrs. Ella Sympson, Monterey.

The wage board will discuss the minimum wage and apprenticeship regulations, and make recommendations to the commission anent amending the existant order in the fish canning industry. After the convening of the board, the Industrial Welfare Commission will issue an order governing the minimum wage, the hours of work and the rates of pay for experienced and beginner workers in this industry.

REVUE TO RUN TRAIN DE LUXE

Last Word in Rail Comfort to Carry Harding

Cars Refitted to Advertise Monroe Centennial

All-Night Program to Mark Exposition Opening

A special train is being planned by the management of the American Historical Revue and Motion-Picture Exposition to bring to Los Angeles for the opening of the event next summer the President of the United States, members of his official family, the diplomatic corps from Latin America, a Congressional delegation, the United States Marine Band, and the director-general of the Pan-American Union. These men and their wives will be the guests of Los Angeles and of the revue and exposition from the time they leave Washington until they arrive home again. The revue will be opened June 1, and will last thirty days.

Plans for this special train, which will run from Washington to Los Angeles and return via many of the principal cities of the United States, are now being worked out by Frank B. Davison, director-general of the revue and exposition. Mr. Davison, with Mayor Cryer, visited Washington in December and extended the President and many high members of officialdom there personal invitations to be present at the revue and exposition. These invitations were accepted almost without exception.

President Harding exhibited the greatest enthusiasm over the project. He declared he surely would be present at the formal opening, unless unforeseen developments in the affairs of his office made it imperative for him to remain in Washington. It has been known for some time that the President is desirous of making a trip to the Pacific Coast and Alaska and it is practically assured that his plans will be adjusted to permit his presence in Los Angeles for the opening of the revue and exposition.

A special train, bearing so many international celebrities, will be the greatest publicity and advertising move Southern California has ever made, in the opinion of Mr. Davison. It is planned to have all the cars of this train repainted to bear the Monroe Doctrine centennial design. Club cars and diners will be added to the Pullman sleepers to give the passengers every convenience of a modern hotel. Provision also will be made for the busy officials to bring along a sufficient corps of stenographers and secretaries to attend to urgent business of their several positions while en route.

The Washington delegation probably will arrive here just prior to the Revue and Exposition opening. Attendance necessarily will be restricted. Only holders of patron certificates will be admitted. These certificates are now being subscribed. They cost $10 each. With them each patron gets $12.50 worth of tickets and 1000 votes for the contest to elect the several queens of the Revue and Exposition. The money thus obtained is being used in financing the preliminary plans of the management.

The tentative program for the opening day, June 1, is as follows:

From 8 until 9 p.m., electrical parade with stars and queens in illuminated floats.

From 9 to 10 p.m., official inspection of the Revue and Exposition by the President, other visiting celebrities, and stars and queens.

From 10 to 12 p.m., stars' and queens' ball.

At midnight the President will proclaim the official opening and the queen of the premiere will press a button to ignite the first bomb of a gorgeous pyrotechnic display.

At 1 a.m., there will be an exposition breakfast, the first event of its kind ever held.

The festivities will last until daybreak, when taps will be blown for the premiere and reveille for the public opening of the Revue and Exposition. The month to follow will comprise a fiesta of literature, music, history and art. The history of the New World will be shown in pageantry, from the discovery of this continent by Columbus until President Monroe's historic proclamation in 1823, that has guaranteed the territorial integrity of the three Americas from European aggression for the past century. It is planned also to film this story, filling in the series of pageants with greater detail to give it continuity.

The huge Los Angeles Coliseum, now nearing completion in Exposition Park, a stadium with a capacity of approximately 80,000 spectators, will be utilized in presenting this undertaking to the public. In addition to this, a group of exposition buildings of unusual beauty and originality of design is to be built near the Coliseum for the various exhibits. All the nations of Central and South America are expected to be represented here.

An attractive booklet telling in detail the plans of the Revue and Exposition management will be off the press shortly and may be obtained free by writing to Motion-Picture Exposition, 1005 Hollingsworth Building, Sixth and Hill streets, Los Angeles.

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair by Washing It

When you wash your child's hair be careful what you use. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub the Mulsified in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—[Advertisement.

Cotton Dealers Set Goal at Thirty Cents

Mining Expansion Noted in Oatman District

New Industry Formed; Bank for Santa Monica

Predictions that cotton is headed for 30 cents are being heard in the market as the result of the successful passage over the 27-cent mark in the past week. The move that pushed cotton futures above 27 cents is attributed largely to the peaceful invasion of the German territory by the French, and the probability that the export market will not be curtailed through the opening of hostilities. With this danger removed, speculators are confident that the demand for the staple will continue to improve, and are making 30 cents their goal. Spot cotton closed at 27.80 cents, an advance of 1 cent over the previous week.

The futures made greater gains, the active trading options of March and May gaining 104 points. March ended the week at 27.73 and May at 27.89. July closed at 27.64, up 107 points; January at 27.52, up 11 and October, 25.92, up 117. The California basis is around 28 cents.

Uniformly favorable reports from all lines of business since the first of the year have been conducive to strength in cotton. In addition, the government ginnings figures released last week served to intensify the existence of a short crop, and injected bullish enthusiasm into the market. The government report showed ginnings of 9,598,000 bales, a slight increase over the figures of December 13 of 9,493,000 bales.

The Imperial Valley market remained quiet over the week. Over three-fourths of the crop has been marketed, and the remainder will be sold gradually in efforts to get the top prices.

MINING EXPANSION

Beginning of the second stage of development in the Oatman mining district is seen by experienced mining men in the announcement that the United Eastern Mining Company has acquired an interest in the Black Range property, and will assist in the development of the mine. It is said that the early days of mining camps are usually charactericted by exploitation through individual companies, but when the future of the district is somewhat substantiated, the era of expansion sets in accompanied by a period of purchases and amalgamations of valuable properties.

The Black Range property is being developed at the present time from the main Nellie shaft close to the boundary line of the two mines. Diamond drilling on the Black Range claims has proved the existence of a vein twelve feet wide, and producing an average assay of $25 a ton. The development work will be prosecuted through 300 feet of drifting from either the 350 or 500 level of the Nellie shaft. The work will be financed in part by United Eastern capital.

The United Eastern Company has been one of the main factors in the development of the Oatman district. The original United Eastern property has produced a large tonnage of ore, and later, through the acquisition of the Big Jim claims, the output has been augmented. The United Eastern company is also working the El Tigre mine in Mexico, which is reported to show gratifying results.

Officers of the United Eastern Company are Philip Wiseman, president; George W. Long, C. H. Palmer, Jr., vice-presidents; J. W. Bradley, secretary; R. I. Rogers, secretary.

NEW COMPANY

Organization of the Edison Concrete Construction Company, with a capital of $500,000 has been announced by the officers of the company, for the purpose of constructing cast concrete houses. The company has secured the exclusive rights to the use of the patented molds controlled by the Industrial Poured Concrete House Corporation

DAILY TRADE TALK

Summary of Economic Field in Relation to Foreign Affairs, Transportation, Commodities

"The open market money rate in London, together with certain other basic data, is as vitally important to men growing wheat, raising hogs, spinning cotton, making candy, selling groceries, and building houses as it is to the largest banking house in the world," says the January Financial and Business Summary of the Citizens' National Bank.

The publication goes on to show that the bigger the operator in any line, the more he realizes that fact, that the business man generally is not thinking right if he believes that his worth-while business reading must savor strongly of his own workshop, or is not giving his business a square deal if he believes that it requires so much of his time to run it that he cannot read the proper ways to run it safely.

The bank's publication after thus grounding itself in a belief in the use of fundamental statistics points out that 1923 holds many possibilities and opportunities for the active thinker; possibilities for business profits and opportunities to make better men and, therefore, better customers of those that are about us.

"While the foreign situation," the letter states, "may be considered bad when judged in the light of the general current utterings and reported steps which France is taking to force her demands upon Germany, our opinion of the course of business during the next ten months would have been neither altered nor intensified if France had taken the more constructive angle that she had agreed to.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

"Foreign affairs have had an influence on business, it is true, but they have only checked the speed of its forward travel in the United States, and have not been a fundamental which was working to change its major direction. European conditions have been far worse and much more involved than they are today, therefore, we have long felt that whichever way France did finally act in regard to Germany, the effect upon the general business situation of the United States would have been organic instead of structural.

"The effect upon our business organism through the occupation of the Ruhr district by force of arms will merely mean that that organism will become distended in an effort to feed the additional requirements of a 'sectional warfare,' if the situation goes that far, in addition to attending to the demands of the natural cycle period tendencies. On the other hand, if France had permitted a peaceful settlement, the effect upon our business system would have been constructive and structural, and all phases of it would have settled down to functioning in what might be called a 'normal,' though one that was far more constructive and on a level of volume and righteous profit. Even as things are registering today, the volume and profit of general business are on a new and sound level."

TRANSPORTATION

The summary contains an unusual analysis angle covering the transportation situation, as it influences the general business activity of the United States. The statistics on the subject point out that the industrial capacity of this country has increased in excess of 40 per cent in the last ten years, while the replacement and new equipment purchases of the railroads, when analyzed even in the light of increasde capacity and more drastic loading rules, only give it the adequacy of our railroad equipment of 1916.

The cause of this situation, the letter says, is largely a political influence, that extends even beyond those of the government, and the conclusion is drawn that if the railroads could have a properly based and legitimate profit on the new capital which their real economic relation to the people should actually permit them to attract, then our transportation problem would be quickly and permanently worked out.

The seriousness of the railroad problem in its relation to business is couched in definite terms, for the summary says, "Until the time that something of this sort is correctly brought about the buyer of goods will continue to have the price of his commodities affected all along the line by the transportation factor. The effect of the bad conditions in the present-time transportation situation relates to the whole progress of our country. It will check its growth not only as it relates to the development of our natural resources, but as it influences the money return on capital, labor and agriculture as well."

It may be said in this connection that railroading, like the other fundamental activities of this country, has gone upon a new and higher plane of commercial consciousness. The old diseases which it was necessary to legislate against have been healed, and a new transportation body matured which deserves our confidence and should be given a chance.

The general business situation is considered excellent, and the probability is suggested that its volume either in the light of production or price level will not fall any nearer to the level of 1913 than it already has.

"This is the first time in over twenty years," says the bank's economist, "that the second period of a trade cycle will break in the early part of the year. This condition is significant. It is an advantage which men of action can take advantage of."

COMMODITIES

The commodity situation indicates that prices in most important commodities, except rubber, will be maintained.

The bank's letter has a less optimistic outlook on the building situation than on the other branches of commerce and trade. It states that while most growing centers have a residential building carry-over from last year that is potential, and will probably hold the volume of permits up pretty well through the first half of 1923, yet on the whole building will not be the barometer it has been, and the deficiency in the dollar measures will be made up by other activities, which have been for some time depressed.

A bullish outlook is seen in the investment situation, and the conclusion is drawn that from its present appearance the price reaction is over, and that the bond market is in for a further though somewhat slower climb to higher levels.

In the summary's chart covering "Earnings and the Cost of Living" the fact is disclosed that average wages are considerably above the average cost of living, and that while both are on an upswing, the wage data are leading the cost-of-living figures by a considerable and possibly a dangerous margin.

GROWTH OF BANKS IN PASADENA

Remarkable Progress is Shown by the Units of Pacific-Southwest

At the annual meeting of the Pasadena directors of the Pacific-Southwest Bank a report was submitted by the executive committee which showed a steady and substantial progress in every department. The net gain in deposits for the year was $1,500,000, making a net gain of $2,500,000 since the merger with the Los Angeles banks of the system. Total deposits are now $12,563,828.38.

Frank C. Bolt, chairman of the board, called the attention of the directorate to the fact that during the year just closed the depositors in the Pacific-Southwest Bank had been credited with interest to the amount of $258,239.73. In addition to that amount of customers' interest, the Pasadena stockholders had received in cash dividends $232,428, making a total of $490,667.73 distributed in Pasadena.

Henry M. Robinson, president of the Pacific-Southwest banks gave an interesting report of the present business conditions, particularly outlining the policies and progress of the Pacific-Southwest during the last year. At the close of business December 29, the aggregate capital surplus and undivided profits were $18,766,361.16. A year ago they were $13,454,000. The aggregate deposits were $192,878,220.11; a year ago they were $125,669,000. Aggregate resources were $218,784,708; a year ago they were $145,270,240.

The directors re-elected the entire list of officers. Dr. John Willis Baer, the supervising director of the Pasadena branches, is a vice-president and a director of the Pacific-Southwest Bank of Los Angeles and also a director of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, and is chosen by the Los Angeles banks. The local officers elected by the Pasadena board yesterday are as follows:

British Review of the Week in Trade Circles

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The French invasion of Westphalia, though largely discounted, has reduced business optimism and increased the sense of insecurity. French money and credit have been sustained by official purchases, but the British investor has lost faith in French bonds. All European securities within the danger zone of Balkan or Franco-German trouble are in state of actual or potential collapse, but British and neutral securities, including Chinese, are firm.

Rubber shares are advancing with the rise of raw material. The London Stock Exchange is also taking new interest in various American industrials and trade revival in North and South America has had a beneficial reaction here.

In financial circles it is felt that war debt settlement on terms satisfactory to American sentiment and tolerable to British taxpayers would improve the outlook. Strength of sterling indicates hopefulness. Money is very cheap again, and the unusually low discount rate augurs prolonged ease unless renewed troubles on the continent should provoke a fresh banking crisis.

December statistics of overseas trade are disappointing after the November improvement, but business reports from Lancashire, the midlands are decidedly better. Big American contracts for coal have enlivened the Cardiff shipping industry.

Tin plate plants are very busy. A mining magnate informs your correspondent he cannot manufactuee steel profitably, but is making money on his coal and pig iron.

More Russian hemp is reaching the English markets. The soviet government, after holding Siretz quality at £60 a ton, has offered it down to £40, but English spinners generally still prefer Italian hemp. The market, however, is firmer, large quantities of Manila Fiber having about absorbed.

The general improvement in the British iron and steel trade is marked by an upward turn of prices, and more furnaces are being put in blast.

More work is being found for shipbuilders and engineers. Since last year 500,000 tons of laid-up shipping have resumed activity, and tramp steamers especially are finding more business.

A Strong Bond With a Liberal Yield

FOLLOWING are five outstanding features of the first mortgage 6½% gold bonds of the Fifth and Broadway Building Company of Los Angeles:

- (a) The extremely favorable terms of the leasehold which was executed ten years ago on the basis of realty values then existing.
- (b) The prime location which is bound to become better and better each year.
- (c) The moral and financial responsibility of the borrowers, with particular reference to the Owl Drug Company and its thirty-year record of success and its assets of nearly $10,000,000.
- (d) The current net income of more than 2½ times the maximum interest requirements, which should be largely increased from year to year as present leases expire.
- (e) The strong security (for this serially decreasing obligation) as shown by the appraisal values.

A limited amount of these bonds are available at the initial offering price. Write for price and descriptive circular, or telephone Broadway 75.

An Achievement In Protecting the American's Money

Probably no influence has brought more closely to the American the fact that he can save his money and invest it safely in bonds than the Liberty Loan campaigns.

Millions of dollars were placed in Government Bonds of small and large denominations, and many of the purchasers realized for the first time the advantages of bond investment. Undoubtedly many Liberty Bond buyers have their principal intact today only because they had this investment brought so forcibly to their attention.

An investor, with a [illegible] amount of Liberty Bonds on his list knows that he has the [illegible] in safety.

Protection for the American's funds is just as necessary today as it was during the Liberty Loan drives of the War period. Sound bonds, recommended by a reputable bond house, after careful investigation, offer safety for your principal and a dependable income.

Oil Salesmen Wanted
New Oil Co. in Santa Fe [illegible]

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Speculators for the advance were in control of today's breif session of the stock market, chief interest again being centered in special shares with new leaders brought forward to take the place of old favorites, which have temporarily reached their zenith.

The European situation continued to be virtually disregarded as a marked factor, although postponement of the German reparations payment due January 15 to the end of the month and the prospect of an international conference of economic problems had a cheerful effect on sentiment. Buying power was concentrated chiefly on shares of corporations which have reported good earnings and in which there are strong possibilities of early dividend action.

Announcement of an increase of 10 cents a barrel in the price of midcontinental crude oil, bringing the quotation to $2.10 a barrel, came too late to have much effect on the market although most of the popular shares closed at higher levels. Cosden established another new top at 56 5-8, closing at 56 1-2 for a slight net gain. Pan-American A and B and Houston each advanced a point or more but California Petroleum yielded a point on profit-taking by recent buyers. Skelly Oil was quite active, selling at 12, a new high, for a net gain of nearly a point.

Standard industrial shares, such as United States Steel, American and Baldwin Locomotives, Studebaker, Anaconda and American Smelting, showed only fractional changes. Another increase in the price of lead found reflection in a point gain in National Lead.

Postum Cereal was again one of the most active specialties, touching 129 1-2, but slipping back at the close to 128, where it was up 6 1-2 points on the day. Macy & Co. was heavily traded in just before the close, making a net gain of 5 1-2 points.

Other strong spots were American Linseed common and preferred, International Paper, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Coca Cola Cluett Peabody, Goodrich preferred, Sloss Sheffield Steel and Texas and Gulf Sulphur, all up 2 to 4 points. Marine common and preferred were under pressure, falling 1 5-8 and 2 5-8 points respectively to their lowest records in more than a year.

Anthracite carrying railroad shares were bid up, Delaware and Hudson rising 3 points and Lackawanna 1 1-2, but the other rails were irregular. No special reason was apparent for the further weakness of New Haven, which dropped below 18 and then rallied to 18 1-4, where it was off 3-4 on the day.

Foreign exchange rates went lower on a comparatively small volume of business. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.67 1-4 and French francs again got below 7 cents, most of the business being done around 6.95. Polish and Hungarian exchange dropped to new low levels.

The weekly clearinghouse showed decreases of $31,772,000 in loans, discounts and investments; $62,227,000 in reserve of members of the Federal Reserve Bank; 37,746,000 in net demand deposits and $10,567,000 in time deposits. Aggregate reserve totaled only $497,742,000, changing in excess reserve of $24,943,130 last week to a deficit in reserve this week of $37,012,940.

Day's total slaes 572,000 shares. Twenty industrials averaged 99.09. Net gain .46. High, 1922, 103.43. Low 78.79. Twenty railroads averaged 65.29. Net gain .20. High, 1922, 93.99. Low, 73.43.

CRUELTY IS CHARGED

Wife Threatened "Something in His Soup," Husband's Assertion

"I will get rid of you even if I have to put something in your soup," Mrs. Sarah Paulus told her husband, according to a divorce complaint filed by William A. Paulus yesterday.

His wife did not stop with mere threats, the complaint asserts, and once she threw a fork at him, inflicting a deep gash in his arm. Other acts of purported cruelty also are cited.

PARTICIPATE IN THE PROFITS OF OIL REFINING

Seven Years of Remarkable Success

Are back of this Common Stock offering of the Rio Grande Oil (Refining) Company, El Paso, Texas.

Each $1000.00 of the original investment (January, 1916,) has earned and the investor has received to date, $11,000 in stock dividends, and $4800.00 cash.

Present invested capital over $500,000. Book value after paying the above dividends is considerably above par.

Sales, 1921, $2,387,475; 1922, approximately $2,500,000.

This Company confines its operations to refining and marketing. The management will continue under the men who have achieved so great success.

For the purpose of building its third refinery, to be located in Los Angeles, a block of its Common Stock will be sold at par $100 per share.

The Directors have established a policy of Cash Dividends at the rate of 12% Annually (3% Quarterly,) and stock dividends as surplus accumulates.

Land Owner's Oil Royalties

Santa Fe Springs and Signal Hill

Participate with the Land Owner in the gross production of oil and gas and other hydro-carbon substances. They are protected with the Land Owner's rights which are exempt from all expense. The Land Owner, in assigning a portion of his interests, appoints a Trustee which is either a bank or trust company. The pipe line company that purchases the oil pays for same direct to the Trustee and the Trustee mails your check giving you certified copy of pipe line run, etc. There is no chance of juggling your portion of the income derived from the sale of oil and gas. Our broad experience in California oil fields enables us to give you an unbiased opinion in either Signal Hill or Santa Fe Springs. By consulting with us on the purchase of royalties, oil leases or units, you will obtain accurate and reliable information that will prove an asset and safeguard to your investment.

We offer subject to prior sale:

1% to 3% gross production Land Owner's Royalty, Santa Fe Springs—in the heart of production—receives 1 barrel of oil out of each 100 barrels produced without expense—well drilling to Meyer sand, now at 4000 ft.

1% to 4% in 10-acre lease, upon which derrick is now complete—in the trend of big production.

1% Gross production in well now cementing—North of Telegraph Road, Santa Fe Springs.

1% to 4% Land Owner's Royalty—2 wells—first well drilling at 1800 ft. Drill site 132x200 ft., Signal Hill—near 4000 barrel production.

1% Gross production Mitchell-Corbett drilling—drill site 180x121—Signal Hill.

1% to 4% in two 5-acre leases. Derrick built—will spud in within few days. Priced for quick sale.

For lease—5 acres south end of the field. Most attractive terms. 20 Acres in fee south end of the field—$2000 per acre.

It is better to be sure than sorry. Our 7% preferred stock is a sure thing, but every preferred share has the support of a common share in this company.

A few of the reasons why the investor should not overlook this great opportunity offered to them by this company.

1.—This company has no watered stock, no promoters' profits and no ground floor.
2.—This company does not speculate or invest in any securities that may be subject to a speculative market.
3.—This company deals only in mortgages and trust deeds that are secured by real property, and must in all cases have at least a margin of fifty per cent.
4.—This company is managed in the most economical way by men of the highest integrity, who have made a success in life for themselves, as well as for their associates.

This stock is sold in units at $125.00 per unit—one preferred and one common.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Interest in the Oatman mining stocks occupied the attention of traders on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday, with the oil issues ranking second in importance. Telluride, Oatman Gold, Black Range and Nellie were the stocks favored in the mining group, with a large part of the activity appearing to be of professional origin. Telluride gained ½ cent on a closing quotation of 30½, Oatman Gold climbed 1½ cents to 18 and Black Range was up ½ cent at 22½. Nellie completed the session at 12½ cents and Big Jim sold at 4 cents. Oatman Combination was taken at 7.

Union Oil Associates registered the best advance in the quiet oil group, increasing ⅝ of a point to 49⅝. General Petroleum at 30¼ was up ⅜, and Republic Petroleum jumped ½ cent to 29. United States Royalties was unchanged at 64 cents.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber preferred yielded for the first time since the recent advance, closing off 1½ points to 83½. Southern California Edison common was quoted at 104.

Stock transactions for the week amounted to 970,104 shares with a valuation of $711,175.02. Oil shares represented the greatest factor in the total value, 225,953 shares selling for $420,327.64. Only two bonds were sold, the returns amounting to $1944.65.

WEEKLY STOCK REVIEW

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Strength of the financial foreign exchange and commodity market this week in the face of the French invasion of the Ruhr and the withdrawal of American troops from the Rhine was construed as an indication that the financial community did not regard the reparation situation as serious as had been feared and that the domestic outlook was sufficiently encouraging to counteract any unfavorable eventualities abroad.

The upward movement in the stock market received only a temporary setback by development abroad being renewed with fresh confidence in the middle of the week. Principal interest, however, was centered in specialties in which there is an early possibility of favorable dividend action. Listed bonds suffered from the competition afforded by the new issues. Cotton issues moved to new high records since the spring of 1921 and wheat rallied from its recent slump, but became unsteady again in the final week-end dealings.

The price tendency is still upward. Higher prices were announced during the week for crude rubber, lead and midcontinent crude oil. A stiffening tendency also has been noted in the prices of steel products, operations in the industry continuing about 80 per cent of capacity. Railroad car loadings are still running at record high levels for this season of the year, but railroad shares have been inclined to weakness because of the vast sums railroads have had to expend for new equipment and the possibility of unfavorable legislation involving forced reduction of freight rates.

Money for loaning purposes has been in free supply, the call rate getting as low as 3½ per cent with predictions in some quarters that it will go lower within the next few weeks. New bond offerings this week were the highest in the history of the local market, barring periods of the United States financing.

COPPER COMPANIES PLAN CONSOLIDATION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Plans for the consolidation of Anaconda and Chile Copper companies are nearing completion, according to reports here. The main reason advanced for the proposed consolidation is that since the acquisition of the American Brass Company, the largest individual consumer of copper in the world, by the Anaconda, it has been embarrassing for the Anaconda to produce enough copper for its subsidiary.

The Chile company, one of the lowest cost-copper producers in the world, has been able to sell its product at 14 cents, and make a profit where others could not, thus holding the price down, and creating a condition where the consolidation of the Chile and Anaconda companies is looked upon as a logical solution.

Lettuce Shipments From Imperial Valley Break Existing Records

Exceeding estimates that were made at the opening of the season, record shipments of lettuce now are being sent to eastern markets from Imperial Valley cities, J. T. Saunders, general freight agent of the Southern Pacific Company, said yesterday, following his return from a trip through the valley.

"Special vegetable trains are being operated by the Southern Pacific in order to efficiently distribute the Imperial winter crops among the markets of eastern cities," Mr. Saunders said.

"Reports from New York, Chicago and other cities in the East show that Imperial Valley's winter iceberg lettuce is becoming famous throughout the country. A constantly increasing demand is anticipated."

Revised estimates place the total Imperial lettuce acreage at approximately 15,300 acres, from which shipments to various markets are expected to total about 7650 cars. Earlier estimates had placed the shipments for the season at about 6624 cars.

The daily output, which has been increasing steadily since the first carload was shipped to Chicago from Brawley on December 2, last week reached the total of sixty-eight cars.

Based on the revised estimates of crops, lettuce shipments this winter will exceed those of last year by about 58 per cent. The establishment of freight rates as low as consistent with the service given, was declared to be responsible to a large extent for the big increase in this transcontinental business.

Last year the Southern Pacific handled 4828 cars of lettuce from the Imperial Valley and the year before 3406 cars.

Shipments of peas also are expected to establish a new record this winter, as from 2000 to 2500 acres have been planted and it is expected that about 175 cars will be shipped. Last year only forty-eight cars of peas were marketed.

Heavy shipments of spinach are being made from both the Imperial and Coachella valleys.

"The Southern Pacific Company is co-operating to the fullest extent with the growers in order to efficiently market the winter crops of vegetables from the Imperial Valley and from other sections," Mr. Saunders stated.

"It now seems apparent that the crop of lettuce will exceed estimates made a few months ago. For this reason the supply of cars for this crop movement is being increased and other arrangements are being made to assure prompt transportation at reasonable cost to the growers.

"The greatest care is taken in loading the cars. Each crate of lettuce is packed in crushed ice and wrapped in waxed paper, so that it reaches the consumer in eastern cities in even better condition than when it leaves the California fields."

BOND QUOTATIONS

U. S. BONDS IMPROVE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Trading in today's brief session of the bond market was irregular but marked improvement was noted in most of the United States government securities, speculative railroad mortgages and local tractions. Profit-taking caused a break of 2 1-4 points in Chile Copper 7s, which had been strong most of the week in expectation of an early announcement of the plans for the Anaconda-Chile merger.

Dominican Republic 5s were the outstanding foreign bonds, gaining 5 points. Republic of Cuba 5s of 1949 advanced 1 1-4 points in reflection of the high bid offered for the $50,000,000 issue. State of Soa Paulo 8s and Holland-American 6s each gained a point but Bordeaux 6s and Mexican 4s were reactionary.

Nickel Plate debenture 4s led the advance in railroad mortgages with a gain of 2 points, other strong spots in that list being St. Paul general 4s, Soo 4s, New Haven 6s, Lake Erie and Western firsts, and Peoria and Eastern firsts. Seaboard Air Line stamped 4s yielded a point and New York Railways 4s dropped 1½.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit securities continued their move to higher ground in further reflection of the benefits to be derived under the proposed reorganization plan, the 7s and stamped 7s each gaining 1 1-4 points.

Producers and Refiners 8s with warrants gained 2 points and liens of other oil companies were inclined to advance to announcement of an increase of 10 cents a barrel in midcontinent crude-oil prices. Gains of a point or so were recorded by Marland Oil 7½s, Remington Arms 6s, Winchester Arms 7½s and Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s.

Total sales (par value) were $5,162,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Following are the closing bond quotations on the New York Stock Exchange. Furnished by Logan & Bryan.

BANK OPENING.

The Citizens' State Bank of Santa Monica will open next Saturday, according to an announcement made by the officers yesterday. The bank is exclusively controlled by residents of Santa Monica, and will have a capitalization of $200,000, of which $100,000 is paid in. H. B. McClellan, chairman of the board of supervisors of Los Angeles county, is president; P. J. Dudley, former vice-president of the Bank of Santa Monica, is first vice-president; Dr. G. M. Mortinson, second vice-president; and P. M. Perry, cashier.

TICKER TICKS

Syndicate headed by J. P. Morman & company submits highest bid of 96.77 for thirty-year $50,000,000 5½ per cent Cuban bonds and the award is expected shortly.

Dun's review says: "Business has more than held its favorable position this week and in many cases there has been an extension of previous gains."

Bradstreet's reports 550 failures in the United States last week, against 445 in the previous week and 717 a year ago.

British capitalists representing 70 per cent of the world's rubber production are coming to America to discuss the market situation here.

Credit Men Now Require Wide Range of Facts

In recent years credit men have become more inquisitive in obtaining all pertinent facts before passing final judgment as to the desirability of a risk. In the past a mere statement of assets and liabilities, with one or two trade references combined with a few meager facts of a general nature, were considered sufficient. The wise credit manager now seeks data not only as to whether or not ample fire insurance is carried, but also if the merchant is protected by workmen's compensation and public liability insurance.

Definite details are also sought as to the amount of life insurance which is carried and whether or not it is payable to the estate. Not only are there facts obtained, but when the proper insurance is not carried credit granters are insisting upon policies being taken before they will agree to extend credit.

Particular attention is being paid by credit men to partnership life insurance, the requirement being especially applicable in instances where a firm is just starting business, for it is exceedingly difficult in instances of this kind when a partner dies to adjust the affairs of the firm. If a partnership insurance is carried the surviving partner is enabled to purchase the interest of the deceased and continue the enterprise without interruption.

Credit men now realize that it is not only important to know the amount of rental the applicant for credit is paying, but to obtain advice as to the term of the lease. The circumstances surrounding each individual case must be given due consideration, for at times a monthly lease is advantageous, whereas a long-term lease is detrimental and vice versa. For instance, if a new venture is established in the central business district on a monthly lease at a fair rental and notice is then served on the merchant that he must pay an increase of 100 per cent or vacate, the handicap has proved so serious that the ventures on some occasions have ended in failure. On the other hand, a long-term lease at a rental which the business has proved unable to stand has also resulted in financial reverses. In some of the States the laws are very favorable to the landlord in liquidating an involved estate to the detriment of general creditors.

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Not unnaturally, the week of unexpectedly strong markets ended the day with more or less tendency to moderate action. Quite aside from the Wall street tradition of "clearing up speculative commitments" at the week-end, the position today was of markets which had anticipated and discontinued favorable results in a more or less obscure European situation and whose instinct would probably be at least to call a halt over Sunday. It is not to be denied that opinion regarding the outcome of that situation, political or financial, has shifted considerably since the early days of the week, when the rising market was watched incredulously. A good many more people could be found today than were in evidence Monday, who declared this move into the Ruhr was a practical step which might end by solving instead of complicating the problems of reparations and mortoriums.

Probably for similar reasons French government bonds went a small fraction lower. On the other hand wheat, whose declines week before last were popularly ascribed to the "unsettling policy of France," ended the week distinctly strong. Spot cotton in particular went to 27.80 per pound as against 27.45 the day before and the high price of 26.80 for 1922. Today's spot price is the highest since September, 1920.

There is no mystery about the cotton position and, whether the prices are considered too high or not, the recent theory that the price ought to fall because of the French advance on Essen was absurd. How absurd the theory was in the case of wheat may be judged from the fact that when wheat was falling, Chicago speculators said it was demoralized by Europe's political crisis and that when it recovered somewhat violently, they said it was rising on the prospect of war.

An advance of 10 cents a barrel in the price of all grades of midcontinent crude oil and the establishment of a new grade of 41 gravity or better which will sell at $2.10 a barrel was announced by the Prirle Oil and Gas Company, the largest factor in the Middle West, according to advices received in Wall street today. The advance was immediately met by the Sinclair Oil Purchasing Company and the Texas Company, also large buyers of crude oil in the sections mentioned. Predictions have been made in the financial district for ten or more days that an advance in midcontinent crude could be expected in the near future. The predictions were based upon the fact that high grade crude oils, of gasoline content, Pennsylvania and Wyoming, had been advanced around the first of the year.

Specialists in American telephone and telegraph stock evinced much interest today in the official estimate of earnings in the company for 1922, made by H. B. Thayer, president. This was the first official comment on the year's operations as a whole, although traders have been computing the company's probable showing from month to month as the earnings statements were issued. While complete earnings figures have not yet been fully tabulated it was stated that they would show a "substantial margin above dividend requirements." The report is expected to be issued in the near future.

STOCKYARD VENTURE PROVES SUCCESSFUL

Completion of the first two months of business through the Los Angeles Union Stockyards has proved the success of the venture, according to a report of the volume handled in the sixty days' period issued by the officials. The presence of an active market has brought eleven Los Angeles packers and numerous smaller killers within a radius of fifty miles to participate in the trading at the yards, and the demand has been so heavy for stockers and feeders that the supply has been inadequate, states the report.

Los Angeles packers during December purchased a total of 8435 cattle, 2001 calves, 7502 hogs and 5164 sheep and lambs. Smaller killers around Los Angeles purchased through the union yards 504 cattle, 621 calves, eighty-one hogs and twenty-five lambs. Feeder buyers bought a total of 1608 cattle, 481 calves and 1907 stock pigs. The latter business is proving one of the most important developments at the yards.

The report, in part, follows:

"The Los Angeles Union Stockyards does not buy or sell live stock but merely offers a clearinghouse where the buyer and seller may meet. Income is derived solely from charges for the use of its facilities, including weighing, watering and proving pen room for stock; also for the sale of feed. These charges are reasonable and are on file with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at Washington.

"Receipts for the months of November and December totaled 22,986 cattle, 5410 calves, 13,392 hogs and 10,754 sheep and lambs. Of these, the Union Pacific brought in 15,755 cattle in 581 carloads, 198 calves in three cars, 2530 hogs in twenty-six cars, 6272 sheep and lambs in thirty-eight cars. The Southern Pacific brought in 6525 cattle in 127 cars, 5066 calves in sixty-five cars, 1453 hogs in twelve cars, 3665 sheep and lambs in thirty cars. The Santa Fe contributed 564 cattle in nineteen cars, 142 calves in two cars, 9381 hogs in eighty-nine cars, 817 sheep and lambs in six cars. The remainder was hauled in by motor trucks.

Shipments for the same period follow: Union Pacific, 10,292 cattle in 366 cars, 2458 calves in thirty-six cars, 5290 hogs in fifty-three cars, 7501 sheep and lambs in fifty-five cars. Santa Fe: 9798 cattle in 352 cars, 2479 calves in thirty-four cars, 6393 hogs in seventy-one cars, 3227 sheep and lambs in twenty-seven cars. The balance were shipped out via motor truck."

ORIENT TO BE FILMED BY MacRAE

Veteran Director and Staff Sail to Produce Unusual Scenes in Far East

Henry MacRae, veteran director and independent producer, sailed for China and the Orient yesterday from San Francisco, where he will film a series of motion pictures revealing intimate customs and traditions of peoples in the Far East.

MacRae's immediate destination is Hongkong, from which city he will start out working along the Chinese coast and later penetrating the interior of that country. His cameras will record virgin scenes for occidental audiences. From China the MacRae party will proceed to Siam, where, by virtue of the fact that the director is a friend of the Siamese ruler, he will have photographic access to sacred confines which have been kept from foreign eyes for centuries. It is said that MacRae's series will be revolutionary in their treatment and will have no precedent in cinema annals. After concluding his journeys in Asia, MacRae will sail for the Philippines, where similar subjects will be filmed.

The staff of MacRae's organization, which is known as the Oriental Cinema Association, includes Robert Perry Kerr, co-director; Dal Clawson, cinematographer, and Edward Bermudy, assistant director.

MacRae's recent contributions to the dramatic field include "God's Crucible" and "Cameron of the Royal Mounted." Previously he was director-general and general manager at Universal City.

Here Is Chance to be Filmed, Women Skaters

Feminine ice skaters of Los Angeles, are to have an opportunity to exhibit their prowess before the motion picture camera. Allen Holubar, who is producing "The White Frontier," starring Dorothy Phillips, at the United Studios, Hollywood, has issued a call for a number of professional feminine skaters to appear in his production.

A mammoth ice rink has been constructed for the picture. Professional women ice skaters, who desire to appear in the production should apply to Harold Buequet, assistant director, at the studios, Monday morning. Those who qualify will be well paid. All are requested to bring their skates and furs.

ACCUSED DESERTER IS REAL CAVE MAN

MAN SAID TO BE MEMBER OF NEW MEXICO CREW LANDED IN BEACH JAIL

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 13.—W. G. Wright, said to be a deserter from the Navy, was found living in a cave near the beach here today by Patrolman Scott and placed under arrest.

Wright told police that he had been making his home in the cave for ten days, and thought it made the best kind of a residence. In the cave were found three blankets which police assert were stolen from automobiles.

Wright is said to have confessed that he is a deserter. He was attached to the battleship New Mexico and had overstayed his leave by fifteen days, according to the officers.

"Dry" Agents Take Two Men Near Freedom

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 13.—A telephone call today halted George Tompkins and P. E. Odom, as they were about to cross the threshold of the city jail to freedom. The message was from Federal dry agents. They informed Capt. of Detectives Worley that they were enroute to Long Beach with warrants for the prisoners, charging violation of the Volstead Act.

Capt. Worley had been on the verge of releasing the men because of failure on the part of prohibition agents to file complaints.

Tompkins and Odom were arrested several weeks ago. They were held for investigation without formal charges being lodged. Recently Capt. Worley informed Federal authorities that unless action were taken immediately he would refuse to hold the prisoners. The telephone call, together with the serving of warrants, effected the transfer of Tompkins and Odom to the county jail.

Convention of Adventists to Close Tonight

"Depraved Faith in the Last Days," was the subject discussed by Elder William G. Knowlton, before a large audience at the seventh annual convention of the Second Adventists last night at the Advent Christian Church.

In the afternoon Elder William E. Snyder delivered an address on "What Takes Place During the Thousand Years Referred to in the Bible?" followed by discussions by various pastors on the dissemination of the truth.

The convention which started last Friday will end with the services this evening. At this morning's gathering, Rev. G. A. Osman, pastor of the local church, will be in charge. He will outline the future plans of the Advent Church in the Southern California district.

Elder J. J. Schaumburg, editor of the Messiah's Advocate, will deliver the evening sermon speaking on the "Unfilled Prophecy Relating to the Second Coming of Christ."

Wife Arrested as Suspect in Robbery Cases

Mildred Felts, wife of Arthur Felts, now under arrest on a charge of grand larceny, was taken into custody yesterday by Detectives Wilde and Dryden and held for suspicion of grand larceny, thus adding another name to the lengthy index of suspected "bandit queens."

Felts was arrested by Detective Sergeants Roselli and McCaulley Thursday at the intersection of Sunset Boulevard and North Figueroa street. Since that time a watch has been kept for Mrs. Felts. Information was given the police yesterday whereby she was found at 463 South Bixel street.

The police accuse Felts of being an adept burglar, and maintain that they came upon his store of booty in the basement of an apartment-house. Approximately $5000 in automobile tires and accessories and wearing apparel was recovered, say the detectives. Mrs. Felts had an active interest in her husband's affairs, it is asserted by the arresting officers.

AUTO LICENSES SELL

OMAHA, Jan. 13.—Word from Fairbury says the county treasurer and his office force are issuing 1923 license plates to autoists at the rate of 100 a day. There are nearly 3600 cars in the county, bringing in a revenue of approximately $42,000. Of this number one-third of the plates have been delivered.

Optometrists Plan Drive to Preserve Vision

Plans for co-ordinating work of the State League for the Conservation of Vision are expected to be perfected at a meeting of officers of the State Association of Optometrists to be held here Thursday evening, when President George I. Deane of Merced, will address a meeting of the Los Angeles County Association at Paulais Cafe, 731 South Broadway. A State campaign for stressing the need of saving eyesight is expected to be outlined.

Among other important matters to be considered by the State officers will be that of extending the work of optometrist-examiners in schools throughout the State. Two such examiners are already at work in Los Angeles county, in accordance with provisions of a law enacted by the last legislature, and it is hoped to perfect plans whereby the work will be taken up on a larger scale.

The State officers also are expected to outline a program for the State convention which will be held May 28, 29 and 30, at Camp Curry, Yosemite National Park.

Starting the 15th inst., State officers will visit local Associations in nearby towns to take up matters affecting the welfare of the profession.

Judges Would Extend Lower Courts' Power

Several Superior Court judges conferred in the chambers of Presiding Judge Crail yesterday as to the advisability of having the jurisdiction of justice courts raised to include cases involving values up to $1000. In order to do this it will be necessary to have the constitution amended. A conference also will be held with the Bar Association. The present limit is $300.

If the constitution is amended, the number of appeals to the Superior Court will be lessened and appeals will be taken on questions of law only. The Superior courts hear a great number of appeal cases from justice courts, and if a constitutional amendment cuts down the number to a minimum, Superior courts will be able to dispose of civil matters promptly coming into civil courts.

The judges present, Crail, Willis, Avery, Hewitt and Walton J. Wood, discussed the question fully, believing it to be a logical remedy for reducing the congestion of civil courts.

MONROVIA BANK IS MAKING PROGRESS

NEW PRESIDENT CHOSEN AT RECENT ELECTION; DEPOSITS GROW

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Jan. 13.—The National Bank of Monrovia has a new president, A. I. Mellenthin, for the past two years vice-president of the institution, at the annual meeting was named head of the bank, with Arthur F. Graf and M. S. Pottenger vice-presidents. Mr. Graf, a newcomer, recently was made president of the Granite Savings Bank, associated with the National.

"Action with Safety"

First public announcement of the sale of Beneficial Interests in SHAMROCK SYNDICATE (present LOW price $100 each) was made last Sunday.

Since then investors have flocked to our offices daily. Scores of others have visited our Santa Fe Springs 5-acre lease, on which Fred F. Fitch, Master Driller, is getting ready to start the first of SHAMROCK'S two wells down to that 8000-barrel MEYER GUSHER SAND.

One of the best posted oil investors in California bought during the past week 91 SHAMROCK Beneficial Interests. Another purchased forty-seven. A host of others showed their faith in SHAMROCK with investments of from $400 to $2500 each.

The Public Evidently Likes "Action With Safety"

The Shamrock Lease is a WONDER, bounded on two sides by the much-sought State Hospital lands. It is conceded to be on the DOME of the MEYER SAND—one of the highest points in the entire Santa Fe Springs field.

SHAMROCK'S Driller, Fred Fitch, is a "bringer-in" of PRODUCING wells.

SHAMROCK'S low capitalization assures BIG DIVIDENDS.

SHAMROCK'S plan of BANK CONTROL of ALL FUNDS assures SAFETY and ECONOMY OF OPERATION.

WANT MORE FACTS? Ask us for them, either at the Los Angeles offices or at the field office at Santa Fe Springs. IT'S RIGHT ACROSS THE HIGHWAY FROM THE STATE HOSPITAL. Or, send the coupon below, with no obligation on your part.

TRADE REVIVAL EUROPE'S NEED

How One Austrian is Helping to Solve Problem

Agriculture Made to Yield Great Increase

More Farmers is Crying Need of Country

BY RICHARD SPILLANE
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Austria is giving an example to Europe and the world of an honest, earnest effort to bring about its own deliverance. One illustration furnished by a young manufacturer named Altman is suggestive of the new spirit in that country. He has a woolen mill in Vienna that ordinarilly employs about 400 persons. From yarn mills in Switzerland and France, in which he has financial interest, he gets his material. Evidently he has enterprise. Wishing to obtain markets in Great Britain he studied the tastes of the English, the Scotch and the Welsh and made goods that appeal particularly to them. Even the boxes in which his products are packed are designed to have particular attraction to those to whom they go.

He sent a representative, a man who speaks English fairly well, to the principal centers of distribution in Great Britain, and by intelligent merchandising, he has developed a considerable business in the British Isles.

Some months ago he suggested to this same trade scout, whose name is Hermann Stiploschek, that he go to America.

"I do not expect that you will get any orders," he said. "If you do not succeed this time you can go again later on. So do not be downcast at seeming failure."

The salesman arrived in New York with many photographs of the Altman plant and a full line of samples of its products. For weeks he went among eastern dealers explaining hismission and seeking to have them examine his goods. He had some disappointments but not many. When he left the other day he had booked orders with the Wanamaker, Gimbel and various large stores.

The man from Vienna goes from Philadelphia to Baltimore, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Boston and returns back to New York. The orders he obtained in his first few weeks in America amounted to $18,000. It is not what he gets now but what will result from the opening up of trade that will count most.

Only by trade revival can Europe recover. It must have work and have markets for what it produces if it is to "come back." By opening up markets for his goods Altman is making employment for more and more hands. In his small way he is doing his part in solving the problem of Europe and the world.

Heretofore Austria has not had much of a reputation for enterprise but there are other examples than that of Altman.

Dr. Leopold Hennet, former Minister of Agriculture, has put before the country a plan for the agricultural rehabilitation of Austria.

Through improved selection of seed and a sufficient amount of commercial fertilizer he promises a yield of considerably more than 50 per cent of the wheat requirements, while more than enough potatoes may be produced. Of cattle, he says, the number today exceeds that of prewar times, but the quality is inferior and the proportion of milch cows and fat stock is too low. He proposes the selling of excess steers and the purchase of high-grade cattle to improve the breed. In swine culture, he says, the trouble can be met by a sufficiency of the right food.

Before the war Austria's consumption of meat was abnormally high, being about seventy kilos per capita. Now, owing to the low standard of living, it is about forty kilos. He predicts that exclusive of the Burgenland, 80 per cent of the country's requirements can be produced and the yield of the Burgenland will show an increase.

Today milk is so scarce that condensed milk has to be imported. Dr. Hennet believes that with the improvement in fertilization and the grade of cows Austria will be able to supply all her needs. Were prewar production of eggs attained 66 per cent of requirements would be met.

He says nothing is more urgently necessary than right methods of instruction and direction of the farmers. He tells how Switzerland has managed under greater natural difficulties than those of Austria to increase the agricultural yield greatly, but this has been done only by state aid, regulation of water channels and the most intelligent direction. Austria has a sufficiency of agricultural schools—more than a sufficiency, he insists—but not enough farmers, and farmers' sons, taking advantage of them as the proportion of agriculturists, who have taken courses is only one-half of 1 per cent.

What may be achieved by improved methods, research work and higher intelligence may be seen by the greatly increased yields at the farm of the state seed station. Skilled labor and brains will make Austrian farms pay and pay well, incidentally, make them attractive both as an investment and as an occupation. He does not believe in bigger farms, but in largely intensified production.

All the foregoing is far different from the utterly hopeless reports that were numerous as to the future of Austria.

Its chief importance is in the fact that there has been a pronounced change of view. The people see a way to work themselves to a better level agriculturally, industrially and financially. They are thinking and working to that end. And Austria was the state where it was generally agreed there was no prospect of recovery.

ORANGES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—[Office of the Fruit World.]—California citrus fruit growers have no established precedent to guide them in safeguarding against frost danger. Preparedness at all times is the only safe rule. The damage to last year's crop occurred on January 19 and 20 in all Southern California districts excepting Ventura county, where the killing frost occurred just one week later. The entire month of January can be classed as a critical weather period. Since December 19 the greater part of the interior citrus districts of Southern California has experienced eighteen days during which the maximum temperature did not drop below 70 degrees. For five days the thermometer hovered about the 90-degree mark. To the relief of growers, the past three days has brought about a gradual tapering off of the abnormally warm weather. Weather forecasts hold no promise for rain in the next few days.

Shipments are steadily increasing, notwithstanding the fact that packing houses in some districts are closing down until March. February, with its accompanying eastern blizzards, is a treacherous month in which to have a large quantity of fruit on track. Some growers fear a heavy dropping of fruit as a result of the hot weather. To date no excessive dropping is reported.

Navel oranges have been slow in coloring. Cooler nights are required to bring out the color. Too many green oranges have been shipped to market this season. There is a general tendency to hurry the fruit out. This is a mistake in the face of existing conditions.

Florida oranges are giving splendid satisfaction. Sizes are particularly desirable. Over half of the Florida crop remains to be shipped.

The market in California oranges is steadily gaining strength. Central California districts have less than fifty cars of navels remaining for shipment. Southern California navels are now appearing in the auctions for the first time this season. The demand is keeping pace with the supply. An open winter in the East has favored the handling of oranges to date. Shippers have had only a few cars showing the effects of freezing en route. February weather must still be reckoned with and no heavy accumulation of cars on track should be permitted. If shipments are well regulated for the next six weeks Florida will have had a chance to clean up to a large extent. Weather conditions will be more settled in the eastern markets and California navel oranges will be of the best eating quality.

F.o.b. quotations on fancy navels cover the following range: Size 80s, $1.75 per box; 100s, $2.25; 126s, $2.75; 150s, $3.00, and smaller sizes, $3.25. Choice fruit, 50c per box less.

Cash quotations are on a basis of $2.50 per box for Orange county navels for cars running not over 12½ per cent 126s and larger, and $2.75 for other districts, cars running not over 20 per cent 126s and larger. There is a better inquiry reported on cash business the past week.

Growers are generally holding for 3c per pound for navels in most Southern California districts excepting Orange county, where several buys have been reported the past week on a 2c per pound basis.

LEMONS

Present moderate prices on California lemons in eastern markets is instilling confidence in buyers. The result is a strong situation for this season of the year with an especially active demand. The way the trade is taking California lemons gives every indication that shippers will enter the spring season in good shape.

F.o.b. quotations are on a basis of $4.50 per box on extra choice 300s size and $5.50 on 300s. Choice lemons are quoted 50c per box lower.

There are on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days approximately 70,000 boxes of foreign lemons as compared with 16,000 boxes for the corresponding date last season. For the 1921 season, same date, 8000 boxes were available.

ACTIVE MARKET IN COTTON CONTINUES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Late demand sent cotton futures prices to new high levels today in an abbreviated, but active, session. The rally after yesterday's late reaction was despite increased long selling for over the week-end. Net gains were 11 to 20 points in the first hour. A good deal of the support came from the professionals, but there was some outside demand. Such interests as Liverpool, Wall Street, New Orleans and the trade bought. The South, locals and western interests were among the chief sellers. Last-hour trading developed into a strong market.

The close was around its best prices, up 34 to 43 points net.

Spot cotton was steady, 27.80, 35 points advance for middling upland.

Southern markets: Galveston, 27.75, 30 points advance; New Orleans, 27.25, 13 points decline; Savannah, 27.84, 34 points advance; Augusta, 27.81, 31 points advance; Memphis, 27.50, 25 points advance; Houston, 27.70, 35 points advance; Little Rock, 27.25, 13 points advance.

"Nothing"

That's all the news I have today, folks, but outside of that everything is running along great.

. You know for the past few days I have been coring on No. 1 and No. 4, and am spending nearly all my time in the field, as I am watching these two very close, and as we work 24 hours a day on these wells it keeps a fellow pretty busy, and I don't find much time to write you messages, but just don't lose any sleep about these two babies, regardless of what all the wise birds may tell you. Just as soon as I drill in two gushers on these two locations I'm going to present all the knockers with "Barbed Wire Tooth brushes" and a mouth wash of T. N. T." They seem to delight in circulating the meanest kind of stories about my different wells, but they never break their necks to tell you that I am now paying dividends at the rate of over two hundred per cent a year, and between you and I, my present dividends are a joke compared to what I expect to pay during the next twelve months on each and every one of my wells.

Erratic Course Is Pursued in Grain Market

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Bearish sentiment predominated in the grain markets early, with a break of 1⅛c in May wheat from the finish of the previous day down to 1.17⅝, but as has been the case of late excellent buying developments at 1.18 and under and the surplus was taken off the market. Sharp bulge in all grains followed and the finish was unchanged to ⅛c higher in wheat, with corn up ⅛@1c, oats ⅛@¼c and rye ¼c.

Grain markets fluctuated in a most erratic market for the past week. Sentiment was bearish the greater part of the time, but on the breaks there was persistent buying and the finish was well toward the top on corn and at intermediate figures on wheat and oats. Net gains for the week were 1⅛@2½c on wheat, 2⅜c on corn, ¼@1⅛c on oats and 1⅛c on rye. Lard gained 7½@12½c and ribs 10@22½c.

There was nothing in the general run of news to account for the buying of wheat, but on the break the market acted oversold and there was general short covering by local traders. Commission houses sold early and some of them turned to the buying side on the decline. There was some buying of futures for seaboard account, presumably a reflection of export business, some sales being made abroad.

Foreign political developments were not of a class to bring in any material increase in outside buying, and a good part of the trade throughout the day was of a local character. Dry weather continues in the Southwest, with some freezing and thawing in Central Illinois, which led to apprehension of damage.

Many of the local traders were on the bull side of corn and while prices were off ⅛c early with wheat, there was persistent buying and with limited pressure prices advanced readily to within a fraction of the best figures of the week, closing well toward the top. Sentiment in corn generally is much less bearish than on wheat. There was some export business with Europe from the seaboard and receipts here were readily absorbed. Country offerings remain light, with outside markets persistently outbidding Chicago downstate.

Oats declined early in sympathy with corn, but rallied with that grain later and closed firm. Receipts light and shipping demand fair.

Rye failed to show independent strength and while lower early rallied later on local buying.

WEEKLY LIVE-STOCK MARKET SUMMARY

[Furnished by Federal-State Live-Stock Market News Service, 1028 Pacific Finance Building.]

Cattle—Advance on beef steers noted early in the week was offset by a slight decline and slow trading at midweek. Receipts in all divisions were rather light, consisting mostly of fed cattle from Utah, Nevada and Idaho. One load of 2-year-old steers from Inyo county, fed on sorghum, cottonseed meal and hay, averaging 1050 pounds, sold at 7.75, the only California consignment. The top price of 8.25 was paid for two loads of good fed northern steers Wednesday, which averaged 1150 pounds. Four loads of good quality Nevada fed steers, averaging 1159 pounds, cashed Tuesday at 8.15, while one load went at 8.00. One hundred head of barley and hay-fed Nevadas sold at 7.90. One load of good quality corn and hay-fed Utah steers, averaging 1107 pounds, went at 7.75 on Wednesday. Medium quality Idaho steers, averaging 1000 pounds, cashed at 7.25 Thursday. Light receipts did not fill demand for feeder steers; twenty-six head of 863-pound Idaho feeders sold at 6.60.

Cow stuff has held firm; two loads of good quality Idahos averaging 1023 pounds cashed at 6.00. One load from the same State, averaging 1044 pounds, went at 5.75. Medium grades had a spread from 4.25@5.50. One lot of common grade, averaging 840 pounds, sold at 4.25 and another at 4.00. One lot of sixteen canner cows, averaging 840 pounds, went at 1.60. Eleven canners, averaging 852 pounds, sold at 2.40. Heavy sausage bulls cashed from 3.50@4.00.

Calves—Receipts in this division have been light. One load of Arizonas of good quality, averaging 230 pounds, cashed Friday readily at 8.50, while one load from the same shipment, averaging 324 pounds, sold at 8.00. The market is quotably strong.

Hogs—Receipts in the hog house have been more liberal, with a bulk of Oklahoma and Texas stuff. Eighty-five good Texas hogs, averaging 182 pounds, sold Friday at 10.10, with nine sows out at 9.10. One load of Oklahomas, averaging 171 pounds, cashed at 9.90 Thursday, while a load of Utahs, averaging 176 pounds, went at 9.60. One lot of 113-pound pigs sold at 9.25. Four hundred good stocker pigs, averaging 84 pounds, sold at 9.00. Eight loads from a local feeder, averaging 185 and 200 pounds, sold off cars to local packers at 10.15 and 10.20, respectively.

Sheep and Lambs—Supplies light with good demand. Two loads of medium quality lambs, on the yearling order, from Inyo county, California, which averaged 89 pounds, sold readily at 13.50, with twenty out at 12.50. Good to choice handy weights are quotable from 14.35@14.75.

[illegible] is something peculiarly in[illegible] about bachelors at this [illegible] with the Bachelors' Ball [illegible] Valentine's Day in the near [illegible].

[illegible] of course, a bachelor, espe[illegible] that brand of the species [illegible] as "prominent clubman and [illegible]," the kind that social [illegible] compile in hopeful lists [illegible] without whom no function [illegible] enjoy an iota of eclat, is al[illegible] replete with that suggestion [illegible] possible conquest, haloed with [illegible] lure of the uncaught—a con[illegible] so devoutly to be [illegible].

The bachelor who has escaped [illegible] the wiles and enticements that beset him for many seasons, who still, after many invasions, retains the citadel of his [illegible] comparatively intact, offers [illegible] a sporting challenge to the [illegible] sex. That's why there [illegible] so much glamor about the [illegible] Club—a coterie of men [illegible] like Alan, positively defy the [illegible].

In Los Angeles, a city that [illegible] a superabundance of femi[illegible] loveliness, is amazingly [illegible] rich in these carefree [illegible]—men who weather [illegible] after season, nay some of [illegible] even whole generations, of [illegible] yearning.

There is for instance one Nor[illegible] Howard, the daring male who [illegible] the Bachelor's Club in the [illegible] and reckless past. It was his [illegible], casually thrown out at [illegible] given at the home of the [illegible] J. Connelle which gave [illegible] to the dashing, daring or[illegible] which created it almost [illegible]. Many of those early [illegible] have fallen by the way[illegible] but Norwood Howard sur[illegible] to glory in his arch-daring. [illegible] Howard is related to most [illegible] who is anybody in Los [illegible] Mellusses, and [illegible] branches of those [illegible].

[illegible] Newlin, present presi[illegible] of the organization, is an[illegible] lawyer. Mr. Newlin [illegible] how many of them are [illegible] and a highly presentable [illegible] the moment, rather quick [illegible] member of all the best [illegible] a perfect godsend to [illegible] attention to debutantes and widows of fifty—thoroughly adaptable.

Alan Morphy of the Santa Monica Morphys, something important with the Southern California Edison Company, is altogether too nice looking to be allowed to linger longer bachelorie. Precious few mammas who would not willingly call Alan "my dear son-in-law"—and send the mother-in-law joke to perdition.

W. R. Millar, fondly known as "Dusty," who looks quite irresistible, in golf togs and knows how to make his soft collars stand up so beautifully, remains flamboyantly unattached. He's a lawyer, too—one of those affluent corporation kind.

Gabriel Duque is a member of that large and charming family of Duques, who shine in distinguished mien and nice manners—another lawyer.

Ah, yes, and Walter Van Pelt—still another lawyer, who golfs and dances and hands tea and is responsible for occasioning many a wistful might-have-been sigh.

But our bachelors are not all daring members of that club. Some of them, conscious perhaps of their possible weakening, stand aloof. Thus Maynard McFie, handsome, prosperous, pleasantly self-confident though he appears, has trembled on the brink of conquest time and again—but still survives in single blessedness.

Alexander Macdonald is an official bachelor, however good-looking, lovely smile, handsome golfer—and a lawyer, too.

But perhaps the most eligible, the most coveted, the most disastrously modest and elusive bachelor of them all is George H. Ennis, whose good-natured chin, amiable temper, kindly eyes, well-groomed person and generally nice deportment cut him out for an ideal husband. What, oh, what is the secret of George's elusiveness? And George is a landowner, too—broad acres and all that sort of thing, but alas, no chatelaine to reign over them in his name.

W. W. Campbell, champion golfer, red hair, beaming smile, has feared to flaunt his freedom as a Bachelor Club member, but all the same he holds the fort surpassing well. And to think that Bill has recently acquired oil—lots of oil—all that means vast wealth—and never a wife to spend it for him!

While we are on the subject of bachelors, it is interesting to note the rumor that Bradner W. Lee, Jr., has gone to England, where 'tis said an English maiden jeopardizes his freedom very seriously.

And Col. Jefferson Davis of San Diego may be remembered in this connection. He arrived in Europe last September to represent the War Department in the [illegible]

The "California" Invites Value Comparisons

At this time of the year when many evenings are spent about the fireside, the creation of Better Homes, which is the mission of the California Furniture Company, gathers its greatest momentum.

Especially does this beautifying of the home center in the Living Room, the gathering-place for family and friends.

The "California" shows very interesting selections in unusual furnishings for the Living Room. This distinction and unusualness applies to the inexpensive as well as to the finest pieces.

Indeed, the wide variety of furniture pieces for the Living Room at the "California" is especially pronounced in the moderately priced stocks.

The "California" offers values that cannot be surpassed anywhere, under any conditions, whether the contemplated purchase involves the most luxurious or the inexpensive.

A visit to the "California" with the idea of comparing critically and carefully the values to be found here is most earnestly invited.

Safeguarding The Diamond Buyer

FOR your protection Feagans and Co. surround the selection of every diamond in their extensive stocks with keen, critical care and expert knowledge. Every gem of one quarter carat size and larger is technically examined under a powerful magnifying glasss, and only those stones which can be classed as "perfect" are accepted.

This assures you that any diamond you purchase here will be of pure color, free from flaws or imperfections and correctly cut to give maximum brilliancy.

Add to this protection the advantage of selecting from one of the most important diamond stocks in the country, and the superior values which Feagans & Co. offer, and you will appreciate why this house is "Famous for Diamonds."

tional air conference at Prague, and is attached to the American Embassy at Berlin. No rumors of a matrimonal noose for him yet —but he had his narrow escapes while in our midst.

But even while the continued singularity of these gentlemen reflects somewhat against the complete charms of our fair daughters, we must remember that without bachelors, dashing, prosperous, carefree, elusive bachelors, society would be a drab and pepless affair.

By Mrs. Frankel

Mrs. Cecil Frankel of 6219 Hollywood Boulevard entertained 300 guests last Sunday in honor of the charming Indian Princess Tsianina, and Charles Wakefield Cadman, the composer of Indian music.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. W. H. Rothwell, Mrs. R. I. Rogers, Mrs. Catherine Shank, Mrs. William Mabee and Mrs. Abbie Morton Jameson.

Hollywood Engagement

Mrs. Theodore Killmer, formerly of Minneapolis, and now of the Hollywood Hotel, announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Virginia Killmer, to Mr. Oliver Leslie Simmons of New York and Los Angeles.

The wedding date has not been announced, but it will be an event of the late spring, when Mr. Simmons returns from New York.

Two Wedding Announcements

Mr. James A. Anderson of North Rampart street announces the wedding of his son, Rembert C. Anderson to Mrs. Marguerite Hardin at Ventura on the 6th inst.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Johnson of 4278 Western avenue announced the marriage of their daughter, Leona, to Mr. James Meikeljohn on the 8th inst.

New York Visitor

Mrs. Averill Harris of New York City will arrive on Tuesday to be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Alfred E. Burns of 545 South Oxford avenue.

Mrs. Harris, who is well known in this city, will be guest of honor at numerous social affairs being arranged for her by her friends.

Talented Amateurs

Quite a bevy of prominent people will enhance the social charm of the play to be given by a number of talented amateurs in Pasadena on the 16th and 20th insts., which is being presented under the auspices of the local post of the American Legion. Miss Katheryn White of Denver, who is wintering in Pasadena, and Miss Kathernie Albert are the authors of the play which is called "Dumbbells," and Miss White will be the leading lady. Patrons of the event are: Mmes. William G. McAdoo, Hancock Banning, Charles D. Lockwood, John Willis Baer, Lewis H. Turner, Maynard Force Thayer, Myron Hunt, John McWilliams, Jr., A. F. Landreth, Elliott Gibbs, Francis Shaw Baer, Richard Davis, Jr., Miss Mary Wallace Weir and Miss Majorie Sinclair.

Crabill-Alter Engagement

Miss Hazel Crabill and Richard Alter are to be married this year. The news became known at the dinner of the Uplifters' Club, which celebrated the romance by having the orchestra play the wedding march when the young people arrived.

Miss Crabill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sim W. Crabill of 611 South Hobart Boulevard, and is a graduate of the University of Southern California, a member of the Alpha Omicron and Beta Phi sororities and of the Women's University Club.

Mr. Alter is a graduate of the U.S.C. law school, member of the Uplifters, Jonathan, Los Angeles Athletic and the Los Angeles Country clubs.

The wedding date has not yet been selected.

A New Debutante

Miss Georgina Fales, the youthful daughter of Mrs. Charles Lovell Wright of Pasadena, will make her formal bow to society on the 26th inst., when her mother will entertain with a reception in her honor. The affair will take place at the Wright home on Grand avenue in Pasadena.

A Smart Wedding.

A smart wedding at the Ambassador recently was that of Miss Harriet S. Sideman, daughter of Mrs. S. Sideman of 5275 De Longpre, to Mr. Eduoard A. Wallack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Stahl of 2859 Sunset Place. The wedding took place on the 9th inst. with Dr. Ernest R. Trattner officiating.

After the wedding luncheon was served to the many friends of the bride and bridegroom attending. The tables were beautifully decorated with maidenhair ferns and a bridal-ship centerpiece.

At Beverly Hills Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell Young of Chicago, Ill., who have been spending some time at the Beverly Hills Hotel since Mr. Young completed his series of lectures on the Coast, have been joined by their son, Hilgard B. Young, from Chicago.

Among the recent arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. John Howell of San Francisco, Miss Amelie Gano of Houston, Tex., Mrs. J. J. Stearns of Los Angeles, Mrs. H. M. McIlwraith and Miss Violet McIlwraith of San Francisco.

Mr. J. S. Daniels of Rhinelander, Wis., returned this week and will spend his third winter here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hunkin of Cleveland again will be numbered among the winter guests. Mr. Hunkin has a beautiful ranch and homesite in Beverly Hills, where they soon will make their permanent home.

On Saturday the 20th inst. will be the next dinner-dance at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Dinner and dancing will be from 7 p.m. in the huge main dining room which itself lends so well to decorations and dancing. Of the larger parties arranged for the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Irwin of Santa Monica have engaged the private dining room and will have fifty-four guests.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Webster of Hamilton Court, Philadelphia, have returned for their ninth winter.

Mrs. J. J. Fisher, who makes her home at the Beverly Hills Hotel, has been joined by her son, Mr. J. Arter Fisher of Pittsburg. Mrs. Fisher's daughter, Mrs. John L. Porter, and Mr. Porter are expected soon from Pittsburg.

Arriving from New Orleans Miss Grace Kahao for the remainder of the winter will be with her aunt, Mrs. Charles Baad, and Mr. Baad at their bungalow.

For the winter Mrs. D. F. Zimmerman and son David of Ann Arbor, Mich., are at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Mr. Zimmerman will join them later. Their daughter, Miss Frances Zimmerman, has entered the Marlborough Girls' School for her second year.

Out-of-Town Society

PASADENA

Mah Jongg, the fad of the season at Pasadena hotels, was the center of attraction at the Hotel Vista Del Arroyo party on Friday night. Tables for the occasion were reserved by many prominent members of the winter colony. Following dinner and a program of Chinese vaudeville, the guests gathered around their respective tables for the game. Among those who made reservations were Mr. and Mrs. E. SOUTH PASADENA

Members of the Latin Club of the South Pasadena High School held their annual banquet last evening in the school gymnasium. The decorations were carried out in true Roman lines, the speeches and songs were all in Latin, the food selected and prepared along as close Roman lines as was possible. This banquet is one of the real events of the school year, and the work done by Miss Elizabeth Hoag, head of the Latin department, and Miss Clarinda Kirk, who was "First Consular," or toastmistress, made this affair one which the seventy-five guests were delighted to be able to attend during their time in the school.

The Miss Marian and Margaret Brackenridge of 525 Orange Grove avenue were honor guests at a dinner-dance given at the Midwick Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. Russell McDonnell Taylor of Los Angeles. The Misses Brackenridge were of the three debutantes of the season.

Fraternity brothers of Mr. N. E. Silverthorne of 830 Montrose avenue were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Silverthorne on Sunday evening. Mr. Silverthorne is an alumnus of California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, and gathered many of his former college mates together on this happy occasion. Many of those present have just recently returned to Pasadena and vicinity after residing in the East.

Miss Antoinette Buch of 1800 Ramona avenue entertained the members of the M. E. Church Queen Esther circle Friday. After the regular business meeting, charming piano solos were given by Miss Lucille McDavitt.

Mrs. Roy F. Ensign of 1628 Wayne avenue was the hostess at a charming affair on Saturday afternoon at which about fifteen guests were present. During the afternoon the hostess announced the engagement of her sister. Miss Lorene Bemis, and Francis W. Maxstade, both of Pasadena.

Mrs. Frederick S. Burgess of 1502 Oak street was hostess on Tuesday at an informal afternoon tea. The hostess' mother, Mrs. M. A. Smith, was the honored guest, for on that day she celebrated her ninetieth birthday. The majority of the guests were old friends of Mrs. Smith in Michigan.

Miss Lucille McDavitt entertained more than fifty friends and relatives at the home of Mrs. H. E. Andrews of 1728 Oxley street, with a charming piano recital. Miss McDavitt was assisted by Mrs. Charles E. Coots, soprano, and Miss Antoinette Bush, violinist. Miss McDavitt and Miss Bush are among the talented members of the South Pasadena High School and have represented the school on numerous occasions at public entertainments.

The Oneonta Park charter of the D.A.R. held its regular meeting on Monday, with Mrs. Wilbur Atkinson and Mrs. Stanley Bent at the home of Mrs. Bent in Highland Park. Prominent Pasadena clubwomen gave short addresses, and many members of the local organization entertained with talented selections.

WHITTIER

Mrs. Kittie Graham Swain entertained at her hospitable home, 419 North Milton avenue, Monday, as a social courtesy to her house guest, Mrs. Laura B. C. Orr of Monrovia. The Swain family has been prominently identified with the upbuilding of Whittier, being particularly active in church, educational and club enterprises. Mrs. Swain, who was formerly president of the Whittier Woman's Club, is the mother of Judge Frank Swain, City Recorder. Those attending Mrs. Swain's luncheon were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graham, Mrs. Laura B. C. Orr, Mrs. Will Braucht, Mrs. O. P. Mannon, Mrs. Kissick and Mrs. Harry Willard.

As a pleasant surprise for Miss Charlotte Keck, a number of her high school associates assembled at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Paddock, 215 North Pickering avenue, Thursday evening, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of Miss Keck. Music and games formed a pleasing diversion, and later a collation was served, the piece par excellence being the big birthday cake. The guests were the Misses Josephine Maple, Ruth Paddock, Mildred Smith, Mildred Tyler, Elizabeth Cole, Francis Rogers, Esther Tomlinson, Pearl and Mildred Leverton, Inez Bennett and Mary Malone Pickering.

Mrs. R. W. Parkin entertained the members of her progressive club at a bridge luncheon at her home, 526 Russell street, Thursday. Narcissuses and sweet peas were used decoratively. Following the luncheon, which was attractively appointed, cards were presented for the entertainment of the guests, prizes being won by Mrs. Lew Holbert, the guest; Mrs. Elizabeth Nathan first and Mrs. Max Goheen consolation. Guests of the club were Mrs. Rolla Downs of Huntington Beach, Mrs. J. A. Coleman and Mrs. Lew Holbert of Whittier. Club members attending were Mmes. Ernest Priestly of Redondo Beach, Phil Lester of Long Beach, W. P. Henry and Albert Teitze of Huntington Beach, Felix Gillispie, Elizabeth Nathan, Max Goheen, N. E. Hummel, Van McAleese, L. S. Baash, Howard Zike, Earl Cutshall and N. I. Nagle.

On the Finger of a Goddess--Newly Betrothed

"The god of the mines called his courtiers to bring him all known gems. He took one of each—he crushed them—he compounded them—and said: 'Let this be something that will combine the beauty of all; yet it must be pure, and it must be invincible.'

"He spoke, and lo, the Diamond was born!"

Imagery—yet strikingly true in its thought! The red of the ruby, the blue of the sapphire, the green of the emerald—caught in a thousand sunbeams! That is the diamond.

Had this been a god of the modern world, he would have set his peerless gem in a peerless mounting—a graceful, finely wrought circlet of platinum. And he would have placed it upon the finger of some young goddess, newly betrothed, in supreme recognition of it as love's perfect symbol.

CAMARILLO

A very enjoyable and profitable meeting of the Camp Fire advisory board was held Sunday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. C. C. Perkins of this section. Mrs. Perkins, as presiding officer, called on several past and present guardians, who told of Camp Fire work and indorsed the splendid idea of having a training course which would prepare guardians and assistants to work with Camp Fire groups. After some discussion it was decided that at lease several Camp Fire groups should be formed, one strong group in either Somis, Camarillo, Moorpark, Santa Surana or Simi, and four in Oxnard.

A very interesting talk was given by Mrs. C. Mahan of Simi, who gave her experiences not only as a Camp Fire guardian but as a member of the Camp Fire itself. Mrs. Alvin Rice spoke in favor of a training course, stating that although she did not desire to become a guardian she would like to take the course because it was a fine thing.

Mrs. P. H. Capp of Camarillo entertained the members of the card club of which she is a member at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Claude Castle, in Oxnard. Mrs. Castle recently was married to Claude Castle, who a short time ago came to Oxnard from Iowa to make his home. The afternoon was spent in playing bridge. The high score went to Mrs. Gaylord Diffenderffer, while Miss Gladys Daily of Camarillo won the consolation prize. Mrs. W. L. Dunn had a high score among the members only. Concluding the afternoon's enjoyment a delicate two-course luncheon was served by the hostess.

Mrs. Thomas C. Daily of Camarillo has received the news of the arrival of a baby daughter to her sister, Mrs. Steve Gavin of Los Angeles. Mrs. Gavin is well known here.

A daughter was born to Rev. and Mrs. Virgil Snow, formerly of Camarillo, but who are now with the American Sunday-school Union, with headquarters at Payette, Idaho.

ANAHEIM

Mrs. Jerry Cole, assisted by Mrs. P. P. Paterson of Hansen Station, entertained the members of the Community Club at her home Tuesday afternoon when the annual election of officers was held. Mrs. William Abplanalp was elected president; Mrs. Charles Walker, vice-president; Mrs. John Kester, reporter. Reports from chairmen of committees revealed many admirable accomplishments of the organization during the last year. An invitation for the club members to be the guests of Mrs. L. L. Lough of Long Beach was read and the members are looking forward with considerable pleasure to the time when the invitation may be accepted. January 23 was set as the date when the club members would entertain their husbands at the Cypress school. A social hour was enjoyed at the close of the business session. Those present were: Mrs. Effie Hammond, Mrs. John Kester, Mrs. Gladys Nordstrom, Mrs. George Peters, Mrs. C. C. Chandler and sister, Mrs. William Abplanalp, Mrs. O. P. Bunyard, Mrs. M. E. Shirley, Mrs. C. C. Cutter, Mrs. J. H. Johns, Mrs. F. H. Fels, Mrs. Steven Luther, Mrs. W. J. Renee, Mrs. Charles Walker, Mrs. Harry LeRue, Mrs. Jerry Cole and Mrs. P. P. Paterson.

Mrs. Floyd Curtis, Mrs. Lyman Davis and Miss Anita Herzler were the charming hostesses Tuesday night at a surprise miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Ruth Coons in honor of her approaching marriage to Robert Gregg of this city. Miss Coons and Mr. Gregg were guests at the home of Charles Montgomery, Santa Ana, during the early part of the evening. When they returned home they were greeted by a score of friends who led the bride-to-be to a large basket of presents in the center of the room. After opening the gifts, a guessing game in which Miss Jessie Coons won the prize, was enjoyed. At a late hour, refreshments were served to the following guests: Misses Ruth Coons, Alice Pannier, Marjorie Day, Emma Owens, Nellie Cobb, Paula Palm, Jessie Coons, Gertrude Kiser, Emma Schettler, Cornelia Schettler, Alice Grimshaw, Betty Renshaw, Ruth Crawford, Gertrude and Louise Montgomery, Mrs. A. A. Mills, Mrs. R. L. Coons, Mrs. Charles Montgomery, Mrs. M. L. Hertzler, Mrs. George Fletcher, Mrs. A. R. Earl, Mrs. Robert Hainlin, Mrs. Henson Faris, Mrs. A. E. Clark, Mrs. Earl Spencer and Mrs. Vincent Carleton.

The hospitality of the home of Miss Hazel Rainey was opened Tuesday night to the members of the Bankerette Club, who spent the evening in story telling, games and sewing. The hostess served a dainty luncheon to the following club members: Ethel Harling, Thelma Strathman, Lucille Bastain, Helen Weber, Philura Sparkes, Wilhelmine Zitzmann, Murl Gossett, Mareta Westphal, Evelyn Degryse, Eunice Rainey, Mrs. Lloyd Noland, Mrs. C. B. Goodson, Mrs. Nell Rainey and her guest, Miss Dorothy Shaw of Fullerton.

Mrs. Glenn Guffmeyer and sons, Edward and Ralph, of Walled Lake, Mich., were the guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Hughes. Mrs. Guffmeyer, who is a cousin of Mrs. Hughes, is spending the winter in Los Angeles. Mr. Guffmeyer will soon join his family here and they will return to their home by way of San Francisco and the northern routes.

RIVERA

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Allen on the Valley Boulevard was the scene of a merry gathering Thursday evening when, assisted by the Mmes. Homer Trueblood and Harry Daniels, an attractive dinner was served in celebration of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. H. B. Crawford of Painter Extension Road, Whittier. Pink and green were effectively combined in the floral decorations, and a large birthday cake with candles was a part of the appointments. Those at table were, aside from the host and hostess and the two assisting hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gallion of Burbank, Mr. Arthur Allen, Mr. Homer Trueblood and son, Junior, H. B. Crawford and Harry Daniels, the latter from Huntington Park.

The annual election of officers for the Willing Workers, the ladies' aid society of the local church, was held at the meeting Thursday afternoon and the following named officers chosen: Mrs. Margaret Sawyer, president; Mrs. W. Walker, vice-president; Mrs. W. D. Taylor, secretary; Mrs. H. B. Coward, treasurer; Mrs. Byrd Passons, chairman of bazaar committee; Mrs. H. B. Crawford, sponsor for the dinner fund; Mrs. B. F. Taylor, chairman of the committee for relief work. The next meeting of the society will be at the church bungalow, January 18, and will be an all-day affair, dinner being served at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Young and Mr. Carl Taylor composed a merry motoring party for a two days trip to Banning, Elsinore, Hemet and other cities of the locality. They left Saturday morning and returned Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Walker of the Valley Boulevard returned recently from a six weeks' visit to St. Paul, Minn. Mrs. J. F. Dilley, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Walker, for some time, returned to St. Paul with the Walkers.

Mrs. Osburn Burke has returned from a pleasant visit to San Francisco, where she spent some weeks visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. James Barlow of Long Beach Boulevard spoke before the East Whittier Woman's Club Wednesday afternoon at the meeting held in Whittier. She chose for her subject her personal experiences during her recent trip abroad.

HERMOSA BEACH

Very enjoyable was the dinner party given Sunday evening by Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Fisher at their pretty home. Green and red was the color scheme used in decorations and red carnations were used profusely about the rooms. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burgoin of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Finch, Miss Gertrude Phillips of Redondo Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Heath of Hermosa Beach, Messrs. Sergeant and Barkley of El Segundo.

The Women's Club of Hermosa held its regular meeting in the Bank Hall on Monday afternoon. The meeting was well attended and Mrs. Francis Rice, president, reports that at each meeting of the club since its inception a year and a half ago, one or more new members have been taken in. The program Monday was an unusually interesting one and included a talk by one of the promoters of the Palos Verdes project on "The Ideals of City Building;" and violin numbers by Miss Lolita Mohn and Hubert Finley, accompanied by Mrs. H. M. Hodge at the piano.

Mrs. J. W. Barker of this city charmingly entertained with a surprise party last Friday evening in honor of the twentieth birthday anniversary of her sister, Miss Esther Moon. The decorations were very pretty, being in pink and white, and the same color scheme was used in the dainty refreshments and the handsome birthday cake which were served later in the evening. Various games and a short musical program were the diversions of the evening. Those to participate in the enjoyable affair were the relatives of Miss Moon and Mrs. Baker and the following school mates of the honoree: Misses Marvel Mounts, Helen Moore, Ruth Kiley, Velma Morrell, Marie Moyer, Julia Haskell, Loretta Scheerer, Margaret Blackmer, Alyse McBride, Mercedes Beeson, Vivian Green, Edna Green.

REDONDO BEACH

A regular meeting of the Sigma Kappa Club was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dora Davis, on South Catalina avenue. A dainty two-course luncheon was served by the hostess who had prettily decorated her home for the occasion. Mrs. Ralph Hansen of Paso Robles was the only out-of-town attendant.

A delightful "500" party was given Friday evening by Mrs. T. E. Venable and Mrs. John Dean. Mrs. Dean had cleverly decorated her home in pink chrysanthemums, and four tables were arranged for the guests. First prizes were won by Mrs. Roy Heath and C. A. Butts. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Venable, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Butts, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Heath, Mrs. L. S. Miller, and Mrs. Clara Kepple. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Young of Long Beach.

Miss Adelia Carlton was the honoree at a miscellaneous shower given Tuesday evening by Miss Rena Day at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Day. Miss Carlton, who will soon return to Arizona to be married was the recipient of many dainty and useful gifts to be used in her new home. After a few musical selections were rendered by the guests the hostess served a dainty collation. The guests included members of the families of Miss Day and Miss Carlton and the following girl friends: Mabel Steel, Ruth Kiley, Amy Goodwin, Francis Day, Lala Phares and Mrs. Ruby Sargent.

C. C. Cribbs and William Hall served a delicious Spanish dinner to the members of the "4:13 Club" at their regular meeting on Tuesday evening. The dinner was followed by an address by Claude Pierson of San Pedro.

The Eteri Club held its first meeting of the new year on Monday evening. The hostesses were Mrs. J. E. Walker and Mrs. Owen Umstead, assisted by Miss Irene Hunter of Los Angeles, and Miss LaVaughn Protch, who served a sumptuous six-o'clock dinner to the sixty young ladies present. Seven girls accompanied by Miss LaVaughn Protch at the piano, rendered special musical selections after the dinner.

SANTA PAULA

To honor the return of Job Verne Kimber of the Oak Ridge Company, who has just arrived home from Seattle, bringing with him his bride, formerly Miss Gladys Ayers, several charming social affairs have been arranged. Mr. and Mrs. Kimber are at home on Pleasant street, and on Wednesday evening they were bidden to a dancing party by the younger set at the Masonic Hall. On Saturday evening they were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Parmelee for an evening of cards and music, with other special friends of the hosts.

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hubler on the eve of their departure for Los Angeles to make their home, the ladies of the Rebekah Lodge gave a farewell reception on Wednesday evening.

Two hundred women of the Parent-Teacher Association met in Santa Paula from all portions of Ventura county on Monday evening at the luncheon given in the high school gymnasium for Mrs. Harry Ewing of Oakland, State president of the organization. Mrs. Balden of Bardsdale presided.

Rev. Stanley Manning of Boston is in Santa Paula this week, guest of the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Lincoln Masseck of the Universalist Church, and speaker at the parish supper and business meeting of that denomination on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Lulu Gardner left on Wednesday morning for an eastern trip with Kansas City and Chicago as her objective points.

The J. C. Bennerfield ranch home in the Santa Clara district welcomed a week-end gathering, which included a group of former residents of Illinois. Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Duensing of Phoenix, Ariz., were the honored guests at a 6:00 o'clock dinner.

SAN LUIS OBISPO

At a pretty wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Naylor at 1911 Ruth street on Tuesday evening, their niece, Miss Grace Naylor, became the bride of Al Gillaspie of San Pedro, the Rev. E. W. Haney of the Presbyterian church officiating. The Naylor home was tastefully decorated in roses and greenery for the occasion, and the wedding party took their places beneath a floral arch to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Ruth Aston, a friend of the bride. s Colon Bacili in 8 Minutes

Shows Quick Action of Simple Intestinal Antiseptic

[illegible] ful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long-standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong—Says Dr. Lewis

A Simple Inexpensive Treatment You Can Use in Your Own Home.

Victims of eye strain and other eye troubles, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis their case may not be hopeless, and that there is real hope and relief at hand. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their vision restored through this remarkable treatment.

One delighted user says: "I was almost blind—could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully—now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me."

Another who used this simple remedy says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overwork which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years, both for distance and work, and without them could not read my own name or the typewriting on the machine. I can do both now, and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be spared the expense of getting vision is dim or blurred or your eyes are inflamed go to your druggist today and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Dissolve one tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and use as directed. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly after the first application and the inflammation and redness quickly disappear.

If your eyes bother you even a little it's your duty to take steps to save them now before it's too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had only cared for their eyes in time.

*Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Yes, Bon-Opto is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision, or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto is not a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee to refund the money if it does not strengthen eyesight and Mrs. J. L. Rhodes on Sierra Way. After the serving of the well-appointed meal, dancing and music formed the diversion of the evening.

OROSI

Mrs. S. C. Coombs of El Monte Way has announced the engagement of her grand-daughter, Miss Hilma Mae McGee to John A. Peterson of Oakland. The bride-elect is the youngest daughter of H. R. McGee and has resided here since childhood. She is a graduate of the Orosi High School and also of the Fresno Normal. For the past five years she has been a successful teacher, having served in the Orosi Grammar School for two terms and for the last two years in Oakland.

Mr. Peterson is a prominent young man of Oakland, and is engaged in the hardware business.

The marriage of Miss Ola Mae Miller and Frank D. Herrington, both of Los Angeles, was solemnized at the Orosi Presbyterian Manse Saturday afternoon by Rev. J. G. Garth.

The groom is the brother of Mrs. J. G. Garth, and after a visit here in the Garth home, Mr. and Mrs. Harrington left for Los Angeles where they will make their home.

Spain was the study topic for the meeting of the Improvement Club Wednesday afternoon. The following papers were read "Goth and Vandals," by Mrs. J. S. Brown; "Conquests of Spain," by Miss Ella McCampbell; "Condition of Europe at the Time of Conquests," by Mrs. J. M. Uniacke.

A Spanish dinner was prepared and served by Mrs. A. R. Yeager and Mrs. G. G. Breckenridge.

Ethel and Charles Chamberlin were guests of honor at a farewell reception given by members of the Baptist Church on the eve of their departure for Los Angeles to enter an institution for religious training. A special program was given and refreshments were served. The honor-guests were presented with tokens of esteem.

VISALIA

Mrs. Nathan Levy entertained members of the Friday Club on Thursday at the Tulare County Golf and Country Club near Strathmore. A series of bridge luncheons is being given at the club this winter and this was the second in the number. After luncheon the ladies enjoyed an afternoon of bridge. Prize for highest score was given to Mrs. H. H. Richards. The only substitute was Mrs. George West of Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Ed McDonald Graham of Berkeley was the guest of honor at an informal bridge party given by Mrs. R. F. Cross in her home on North Floral street. Mrs. Graham is house guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. W. Oakes. Card games provided the diversion and attractive refreshments were served. Mrs. Graham was presented with high prize and Mrs. Julia Knox received the consolation.

Miss Carleen White, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. White, was the guest of honor at a party given by Miss Susan Hunter. Miss Carleen has been attending the College of the Holy Name at Oakland. The young people attended the Theater Visalia, then repaired to the home of Miss Susan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Wood, on Goshen avenue. Games were enjoyed by the young people, after which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Phillips were host and hostess at an attractive Spanish dinner party at Estrada's parlor Tuesday evening, complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crocker of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Dixon of Belvedere. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Susman Mitchell of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Thomas, Jr., entertained members of the Merry-Go-Round Club at a delightful dinner party Tuesday night in their country home on Houston avenue. After the serving of the delicious repast they repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Collins for an evening of bridge.

LINDSAY

J. Hyde Forbes, engineer for the Lindsay-Strathmore Irrigation District, and Miss Halcyon Genevra Rhinehart of San Francisco were united in marriage Saturday morning, December 28, in San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. Forbes are passing their honeymoon in San Francisco and vicinity, but will return to Visalia to make their home. Mrs. Forbes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rhinehart of San Francisco. Mr. Forbes has been a resident of Lindsay, Visalia and vicinity for several years, being chief of hydrographic field operations for the Lindsay-Strathmore Irrigation District. He is a graduate of Stanford University and served in the Engineering Corps during the late war.

John D. Young of Lindsay and Miss Nancy Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Wells of Tulare, were united in marriage Sunday at a quiet wedding performed by Justice of the Peace Ward G. Rush. The bride is well known in Tulare, having attended the Tulare public schools. The groom is a young rancher of the Lindsay district. He is a member of the Tulare American Legion, having formerly resided in that city.

A happy reunion of old school friends was held at the home of Miss Blanche Badger Thursday evening when the Hexagon Club was guest of Miss Badger. The evening was spent in recalling incidents of their years in Lindsay High School. Those present were Miss Leile Sanderson, Miss Leola McConnell, Miss Vernice Jordan, Miss Beryle Gange and Miss Ione Faus.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Eddy was the scene of an unusually enjoyable dinner party Monday night. The guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Thompson of Palo Alto, who are spending their honeymoon here. Mr. Thompson is Mrs. Eddy's father. Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rinker and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wolf were invited to meet Mr. and Mrs. Thompson.

TULARE

Richard Hampson, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. G. Hampson, well-known residents of this district, and Miss Josephine Barter of Fresno were married at the home of the bride's parents in Fresno on Christmas Eve, according to announcements.

News of the wedding comes as a distinct surprise to the many friends of the groom in this city. Mr. Hampson, since his graduation from Tulare High School, has been employed as manager of the Kerchoff-Cutner Lumber Company yards near Pasadena. The bride was formerly known as a resident of the "Rose City," where the romance began. Mr. and Mrs. Hampson plan to make their home in Azusa, and the many friends of the groom in Tulare will wish them a future of contentment and happiness in their wedded life.

At a quiet Sunday wedding, attended by only intimate relatives of the couple, George F. Bowen of this city, and Mrs. Elva Smith were united in marriage by Rev. H. E. Stubbs of the Christian Church, the ceremony being performed at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Nels Christensen.

The bride is leaving her recently acquired position as matron of the San Joaquin Hospital, and the couple will make their home on South H street. Mr. Brown is well and favorably known in Tulare, having lived here for twelve year. He is part owner of the H & H Laundry and is a prominent member of both the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. Mrs Bowen is also a Rebekah.

One of the most delightful informal parties of the week was the gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hight on Monday evening. After the serving of a bountiful turkey dinner, dancing and music and games made the diversion of the evening. At midnight a buffet supper was served. The guest list included about thirty friends, a number of whom were from out of the State.

PORTERVILLE

Margaret Fink and Sol J. Rodgers, both of this city, were quietly married in Visalia on Wednesday, leaving immediately following for a motor trip to San Diego.

Mrs. Rodgers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Fink, 250 South H street, well-known residents of this city. After graduating from Porterville High School Miss Fink took a nursing course in Fresno and for the past two and a half years conducted the Porterville Hospital, disposing of this business last fall.

Mr. Rodgers is one of Porterville's prominent citizens, being an orange grower and having engaged in business on Main street.

After a short honeymoon in the south, they will return to make their home on the groom's orange grove on Sunnyside avenue.

Miss Mae Futrell, home for the vacations, who is training as a nurse at the Mt. Zion Hospital in San Francisco, was the incentive of a delightful afternoon tea given by her aunt, Mrs. E. E. Ridgway, at her home Tuesday afternoon. Friends of Miss Futrell, who were present were the Misses Irma Wann, Margaret Fink, Amy Nordenshuld, Mmes. Ruth Chamberlain, Hazel Anderson, Lucille Futrell, Fletcher Ferguson, S. W. Pease, L. E. Williams and Cora Walker. Mrs. Ridgway was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Mrs. Dora Sharp, mother of the guest of honor.

Miss Lyllias Hardell entertained with a delightful informal dancing party at her home on East Oak street Friday evening. Marigolds, China lilies, chrysanthemums and ferns formed the attractive decorations of the Hardell home. Miss Hardell was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Miss Corrine Hardell. A dainty buffet supper was served.

FRESNO

Mrs. Harvey W. Swift motored to San Diego for the wedding Wednesday evening of Hildreth Peckham and Miss Marian Mitchell, both of the southern city. Mrs. A. L. Hoover of Los Angeles attended the bride as matron of honor. Also among the wedding guests was Mrs. Hoover's mother, Mrs. C. B. Shaver of Fresno, who has been the house guest of her daughter for some days.

Mrs. Speed B. Leas and Mrs. H. S. Whitlock were hostesses at the latter's home Tuesday afternoon. They complimented Mrs. A. S. Houston, who is here from her home in Missouri for a two-month visit with her daughter, Mrs. Whitlock. The guests who enjoyed the hospitality of the two hostesses included: Mmes. Carl A. Lisenby, F. L. Swartz, Charles Barnard, W. O. Watters, G. L. Aynesworth, N. O. Emmons, Roy Garman, Robert Peterson, Arthur Kircher, Robert Huffman, R. N. Bostwrick, Arthur Barnard, George M. EAST WITTIER

One of the interesting small dinner parties of the week was that which Mrs. Carson Albright gave at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mendenhall on Gunn Road Monday evening. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde F. Benton of Whittier and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roland Little of the Murphy-Coyote lease. Mrs. Albright and Mrs. Little were schoolgirl friends while attending Whittier High School only a few years ago.

Mrs. Albright, as Miss Lois Mendenhall, was one of Whittier's most popular young girls, whose friends were sincerely sorry to lose her gracious presence when she married last year and went to Bremberton, Wash., to live. Mr. and Mrs. Albright came to Whittier for the Christmas festivities, and owing to stress of business Mr. Albright returned north last week. Mrs. Albright is remaining to visit her parents and friends in the vicinity before returning to Bremberton.

Mrs. James Barlow presented an excellent program before the East Whittier Woman's Improvement Club Wednesday afternoon when she recalled her personal and other intimate experiences during her recent visit to Europe. Mrs. Garritson Coster sang an attractive series of songs. Mrs. J. Clem Arnold, former president of the club, was in charge of the program and received generous praise for her excellent entertainment. The East Whittier clubhouse is being remodeled and during the process the Whittier Woman's Club very generously offered their clubhouse for the meetings, the first of which was held Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cole and son Donald, Mrs. Arthur McGee and three children, and Mrs. William Lake of Fullerton have returned from a pleasant trip to Arizona, where they spent two weeks visiting relatives.

Miss Wilma Ware of Fullerton was recently the guest of her cousin, Miss Lelia Kenworthy, and while in the district also visited in the home of Miss Elinor Otis.

COVINA

Mrs. Seth I. Colver was the hostess at a very pleasant informal luncheon Thursday afternoon. Her guests were Mmes. A. W. Feist, E. H. Walters, J. H. Wilke, C. P. S peer, W. P. Magan, W. P. Custer and Shaen Magan.

Mrs. J. N. Wilson passed several days this week in San Diego visiting her father and other relatives.

Miss Carolyn Jennings, who has been with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. George D. Jennings, for the holidays, left this week to continue her studies at Mills College.

The January meeting of the Amphion Club, which has among its membership music-loving people of this city, Azusa and Glendora, was held last evening at Palmetto Grove, the home of Mrs. F. M. Chapman. A very excellent program was given by Mrs. Gertrude Ross, pianist, assisted by Lawrence Strauss, violinist of Los Angeles. The hostesses with Mrs. Chapman were Mrs. E. P. Warner, Mrs. E. G. Prather, Mrs. H. N. Webber, Mrs. B. F. Thorpe, Mrs. W. M. Warren.

Attorney and Mrs. J. E. Ricketts have as their guests for several days this week, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Patterson of Van Nuys.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Harris of Baldwin Park passed several days this week at Fresno and at Exeter, where they were guests of Mrs. Harris's brother, Grant Jeans and his wife.

Mrs. C. A. Leighton left this week for Salinas, where she will be at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Scofield, for an extended visit.

Miss Maude Stock Banks passed the week in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Webster moved this week from Irwindale to Fullerton.

Miles Sanborn arrived this week from San Francisco and is a guest at home of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Sanborn.

Mrs. C. E. Paige was one of the hostesses at a luncheon given Wednesday at the home of Mrs Park to the Matrons of 1919, O.E.S.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Carter are entertaining Mrs. A. G. Ferguson, who has come from Saskatchewan, Can., to pass the winter months in Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. La Follette entertained at dinner Thursday evening Attorney Huffey of the Union Pacific Railroad and Mrs. Huffey, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schuyler of Whittier and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Owens of Haywards.

Dr. Frank Barham and wife of Los Angeles have passed the past week at their ranch home on Valencia Heights.

Prof. and Mrs. Boyden Hall were visited this week for several days by their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Worthy of Huntington Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. William Goodrich of Irwindale have as house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Goodrich and A. Gustafson, who arrived this week from Drumheller, Can.

GARDEN GROVE

Four-score and two, are the years recorded for J. A. Bodenhamer, and on the date of his natal day, his daughter, Mrs. Ed Dozier, entertained with a family dinner party. This was on Monday. Red and green were the colors that brightened the home. Mr. and Mrs. Dozier's guests that came to honor the loved father were: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bodenhamer, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Carter and daughters of Yorba Linda, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bodenhamer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hariston, Miss Minnie and Alta Bodenhamer, and John Bodenhamer.

M. B. and J. G. Allen, William Lehnhardt, and C. E. Pollins were a quartet of hunters that tried their luck at hunting in the wilds of the Mojave Desert. They returned Friday, after a fine trip, and some luck as nimrods.

The ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Henry, was the scene of a very pleasant gathering, when these hospitable folks entertained at dinner Thursday night. A sumptuous chicken dinner was served, after which music and cards were enjoyed during the balance of the evening. Those present were the Misses Dorothy Stillins, Olive and Mable Northcross, Mr. and Mrs. Henry, Rollo Hand of Readly, Leavett Ford of Santa Ana and Earl Hague of Santa Fe Springs.

A picnic lunch at Icehouse Canyon, and a hike to the summit of Mt. Baldy was enjoyed by a group of young people from Monday. These were the Misses Lova Holt, Vesta Newsom, Amelia Scidmore, Edna Hewett, Irene Natland, Florence Pearson, Harriett Brown and Elizabeth Brown, Harold and Milton Chaffee, Johnny Bragg, Jack Duggan, Leigh Tournot, Wallace Bragg, John Allen Fritz, Edward Hewett and John Smith.

OLINDA

H. E. Coffey, entertained his daughters for the last time in the old home on the Graham and Loftus lease, Tuesday. Mr. Coffey has sold the place and with his son, Keith will reside in Fullerton. After the visit, Mrs. Walter Bowen, the eldest daughter returned to Huntington Beach, and the other Mrs. Brayton Philbrook, of 2947½ Francis avenue, Los Angeles, spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Davis at their home in La Habra and was the guest Wednesday night of Miss Bernedette Eimers, in Fullerton. Mr. Philbrook is looking after oil interests in the Lost Hill district.

The newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Derr, were the recipients of a delightful shower, when several of the neighbors and friends surprised them Wednesday evening. Many pretty and useful gifts were presented them. Those present were Mrs. Andy White, Mrs. Frank McElhany, Mrs. Lafe Lemnly, Mrs. Frank Dilker, Mrs. Isaac Mayfield, Mrs. William Pope, Mrs. Gillford Hannimore, and Miss Lois McElhany, Miss Sellers and Mrs. Knox Sellers.

Mrs. C. Studebaker and daughters, Beulah and Vera, returned Saturday from a stay in San Diego over the holidays. While there they enjoyed a visit with relatives. Mrs. Fred Bowe has been making a new year visit at the home of her father, M. Edmonds at Van Nuys. Miss Evelyn Wallenius was the guest of friends in Los Angeles during her holiday season vacation.

Small groups enjoying pleasant affairs were that of Rev. and Mrs. R. Dauel who entertained at dinner Sunday evening, their guests being the Rev. and Mrs. A. T. Good and son and M. Hoffman, and that of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Doss, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Clark, Dorothy and Alice Clark, who motored to Pasadena Monday.

PLACENTIA

Honoring an old classmate of her husband's, Mrs. C. E. Fuller was hostess to a charming dinner party on Monday evening for Miss Evylene Nunn. Miss Nunn has recently returned from Japan where she has spent the last two years as instructor in music. Miss Nunn is also an artist of local fame, and has many new and handsome pictures of foreign places for her studio in Santa Ana. Sweet peas and ferns were used as very effective decorations in the pretty home. Covers were laid for six. Included was the guest of honor Miss Nunn, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rankin, Miss Arline Birchard, of Santa Ana, the hosts and hostess.

Sweet Sixteen

THE DAY HAS PASSED when women consent to be foolishly dressed with out-of-date "sale" garments, the only attraction of which consists in the apparent savings—the difference between an original high price and the so-called "Reduction."

In Keeping Faith with the Women of Los Angeles, "Sweet Sixteen" keeps a step ahead of Fashion, now presenting the First of the New and Beautiful

SPRING DRESSES

IN TAFFETAS AND CANTON CREPES AT

$16

Our Los Angeles house of high class ideals have amply anticipated this showing weeks in advance of other exhibits.

Latest taffeta dress, basque effect, three-quarter length sleeves edged with contrasting fold of crepe, collar, sleeves, bottom of waist and skirt trimmed with black silk velvet ribbon.

$16

Dainty creation in crepe, new sleeves, cape collar, shirred peplum gathered at sides. Five rows of shirring on front and back of skirt, at waist, all latest shades.

$16

When all women have adopted "Sweet Sixteen" as their style guide all will be better and more economically dressed.

$16

Chic flat crepe dress, short sleeves with straps draped to waist; Short accordion plaited collar, front and back. Silver corded belt across front. All the newest spring shades.

$16

Here are some of the styles prophesied for popularity this spring—youthful in character, dainty in detail, finished examples of perfection in workmanship.

Our Gratitude

We sincerely thank the women of Los Angeles for their generous participation in the important growth of this institution during 1922—the most remarkable record of a year's business success in our history—an achievement not often accomplished by others.

To you we not only owe the progress of the year just past but that priceless confidence you have in us for the year ahead of us.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys should have attention first because their work is most important.

If you feel that your kidneys are the cause of your sickness or run down condition commence taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, because as soon as your kidneys begin to improve they will help all the other organs to health.

A Trial Will Convince Anyone

Thousands and thousands of people everywhere have testified that the mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized and that it stands the highest for its remarkable results in distressing cases.

Symptoms of Kidney Trouble

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you suffer from annoying bladder troubles, frequently passing water night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment, headache, backache, lame back, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, uric acid rheumatism, lumbago, loss of flesh or sallow complexion, kidney trouble in its worst form may be stealing upon you.

Swamp-Root is Pleasant to Take

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.

SPECIAL NOTE—You may obtain a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. This gives you the opportunity to prove the remarkable merit of this medicine. They will also send you a book of valuable information, containing many of the thousands of grateful letters received from men and women who say they found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed in kidney, liver and bladder troubles. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that readers are advised to send for a sample size bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—[Advertisement.

This Will Ward Off And Break Up Colds

Just a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin removes the congestion

THE two ailments that people generally regard as of the least importance are in reality the cause of most serious illnesses and of the greatest proportion of deaths. They are constipation and common colds. Many doctors now believe that colds, tonsilitis, a touch of malaria will cause constipation, instead of constipation being their cause. The fact remains that you seldom have a cold without constipation, due to general congestion. The only way to avoid colds is to keep up your vitality. You usually catch cold in the winter if you are run down. Therefore in cold weather exercise more; eat more fatty foods; drink four to six glasses of water a day; keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

You are also less liable to colds if your system is free from the intestinal poisons of constipation, so empty the bowels regularly with a plain vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

At the first sign of a cold, at the first few warning sneezes, take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin and the congestion will be gone in a few hours. Don't wait until the cold has a grip on you. Mr. Henry Dean, Jr., of Rochester, N. Y., cured a stubborn cold in just that way, and Mrs. Alice Corbbrey of Haskell, Okla., uses it effectively for all the small ills of her family, such as constipation, biliousness, headaches, dizziness, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is safe to give to infants, and all children like it. Before you again resort to cold remedies containing narcotics try a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist will supply you, and the cost is less than a cent a dose.

Thin? Run-down?

Sure way to get right weight

Increase Your Red-Blood-Cells. That's the Sure Way! S. S. S. Builds Blood-Cells; This Means Strength!

Do you know why insurance companies refuse to insure a great many men because they are under weight? Simply because to be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus energy, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S. since 1826 has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Hollow cheeks fill out. You stop being a calamity-looker. You inspire confidence. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them. Ladies and gentlemen, a peaky, bony face doesn't make you look very important or pretty, does it? Take S. S. S. It contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

RIALTO

This week a host of friends were surprised and delighted to learn that on October 18 Miss Dorothy Granzow, daughter of Mrs. Dorothea Granzow motored to Orange, where they were quietly mirred by the Rev. Mr. Hill of the Frist Christian Church. The bride's mother witnessed the ceremony and with Mr. and Mrs. Smith kept the secret well until Thursday evening. First hint of the wedding came to local friends through a visitor who saw the license in an Orange county paper. The bride is a student in San Bernardino High School, from which she graduates this spring. The groom, a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Smith, has for several years filled a position at the Needham Brothers' Grocery. The newlyweds will for a time at least make their home with Mrs. Granzow at her new home on North Riverside avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dodge of Ravanna, O., arrived on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Burrington. The visitors will spend the winter in Southern California.

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Kingman, pioneer resident of Rialto, observed the thirty-first anniversary of the marriage by delightfully entertaining at their handsome home on North Date street. Purple violets lent their fragrance and beauty to grace the occasion and while quite informal, the event was one of the happiest of the week. A charmingly appointed wedding supper was served. Those bidden numbered Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kingman of San Bernardino, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Shearer of Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Kingman, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. The next meeting of the Rialto Woman's Club, Travel Day, gives wide scope, for the program will be in the hands of Mrs. Eber M. Lash and Mrs. E. W. Preston. Mrs. Martha Ware, Mrs. E. Richard and Mrs. Henry Englauf will preside over the tea table.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bowers with Mr. Bowe's parents at Torrance.

On Tuesday Dr. and Mrs. Harcourt W. Peck had the pleasure of a big meeting of the miniters of the Pasadena district and their wives, convening at the First Methodist Church of Ontario. District Superintendent Dr. W. L. W. Davis of Pasadena delivered the address at the morning session.

On Thursday evening the Modern Woodman of America enjoyed a delightful evening of informal sociability at their headquarters in A.I.U. Hall. The refreshments served were delicious. On Tuesday night a delegation from the local society attended an important meeting of the San Bernardino camp by special invitation.

RIVERSIDE

A history of the City Home League, with an enumeration of its plans and purposes, made an interesting program for the Wednesday Club, which enjoyed a delightful meeting at the home of Mrs. Emerson Holt, 1038 East Tenth street, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Holt was assisted by Mmes A. L. Murray, R. H. Ewert, C. E. Goldsmith, F. W. Redfield, C. A. Sands. The speakers were Mrs. E. W. Way and Mrs. W. H. Hamilton, both active members of the City Home League. Mrs. Elizabeth Barnum sang several numbers accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Nellie Densmore. Coffee, tea, sandwiches and cake were served.

The wedding of Miss Ruth Lawson and Mr. Eugene Towers was held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Lawson, of 1153 Mulberry street. Rev. F. A. Leak, pastor of the Grace Methodist Church, officiated, and the bridal couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John F. Parker. The bride wore a corsage of Cecile Brunner roses and lilies of the valley. Her dress was of navy-blue canton crepe. The wedding party stood under a bower of palm leaves, with a wedding bell hanging from the center. House decorations were of roses and smilax, with a color scheme of pink and white. After a wedding breakfast sevred by Mrs. William Geib and Mrs. Willard Bross the bridal couple left for a honeymoon trip in Los Angeles and beach points. Those present at the ceremony were the immediate family and a few intimate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Towers will make their home in Riverside.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Arnold were hosts to the members of the Orange Belt Veterinary Association at their home Tuesday evening. Representatives from Redlands, San Bernardino, Colton, Fontana, Covina, Corona and Hemet were guests. The veterinaries were accompanied by their wives, who enjoyed a social evening, while the men were talking over professional matters. Later refreshments were served by Mrs. Arnold, assisted by her sister, Miss Anne Schneider.

Here's a Real Beauty Maker

Pimples, Blotches, Blackheads, Boils, Muddiness and Redness Disappear When You Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

If your ambition is to have the loveliest of complexions here is a real beauty secret:—use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. It is no secret, however, to thousands of pretty girls all over the U. S. who have relied upon these wonder wafers to keep their complexions perfectly beautiful instead of wasting time with cosmetics. These wafers go directly after those embarassing pimples, blackheads and other such blemishes. It is not a round-about way. You get results every minute. You are sure of it in a few hours. They clear the blood, they drive from the system the impurities that cause pimples. The calcium goes to the skin, acts as a tonic, stimulates the tiny nerves, pores, and blood vessels to renewed activity, and lo! before you realize it the skin is peachy, firm, clear and the picture of a sweet, rosy complexion. Get a 60 cent box today of Stuart's Calcium Wafers in any drug store and you will have a real beauty maker to clear your skin of pimples, redness, roughness and such destroyers of beauty.—[Advertisement.

WOMAN SO BLUE SHE CRIED

Because of Ill Health—Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Burlington, Ia.—"I used to dread the time for my monthly period as it came every two weeks and lasted for two weeks, and during that time I would have the blues and cry. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am so happy I can hardly express myself. I have gained several pounds and look fine. I have recommended your medicine to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial. I hope your medicine will give others the relief it did me."—Mrs. RALPH GAIL, 2021 Des Moines St., Burlington, Ia.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for ailments common to women. It has been used for such troubles for nearly fifty years, and thousands of women have found relief as did Mrs. Gail, by taking this splendid medicine.

If you are suffering from irregularity, painful times, nervousness, headache, backache or melancholia, you should at once begin to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is excellent to strengthen the system and help to perform its functions with ease and regularity.

Society Leader Writes on Etiquette

Mrs. Lydig Hoyt

ETIQUETTE FOR ALL OCCASIONS

Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, Luminary of New York's Four Hundre, Discusses Social Usages for "Times" Readers

BY MRS. LYDIG HOYT

[Copyright, 1923, by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

[For nearly ten years, in fact ever since she made her debut, Mrs. Lydig Hoyt has been considered one of the most beautiful and talented women in American society. In New York, as Miss Julia Robins, she reigned supreme as debutante and later, when she married Lydig Hoyt, as matron. She has been called "the shining light" of the younger set. John Sargent, famous painter, called her "the most beautiful woman in America." Mrs. Hoyt is as well known in Washington and the capitals of Europe as she is in her own native New York. She has been presented at the courts of Germany and Austria, to the Queen Dowager Elizabeth of Italy and, at Buckingham Palace, to the King and Queen of England.—Ed.]

My experience within and outside of "society" has taught me that most people use the world "etiquette" to mean merely the knowledge of how to eat, talk and act correctly.

But etiquette is much more than just knowing the correct thing to do. It is good manners, it is courtesy and it is an instinctive considerations for others—three qualities necessary not only to success in "society" but to success in all human intercourse.

Etiquette really means civilization—life as we live it today as distinguished from what it was in the days of the primitives.

Just try to imagine what our life would be like without etiquette! It would mean, for instance, more difficulty in boarding trolleys and subways, in driving automobiles. We'd all still be eating with our hands only and the goodness know what other things we would be doing!

In my opinion etiquette not only makes the wheels of life run more smoothly, but also acts as a safeguard to all human relationship. Nearly all human beings are born with a certain native common sense which usually prompts their actions. That is, we seem to know instinctively that when we are introduced to people we must greet them, or that we must treat old people wih more consideration. Unfortunately, however, this instinct does not always tell us what to say to those we meet or exactly how to show respect and courtesy to our elders, and for that reason we must all learn the fundamental rules and some of the niceties of etiquette.

In spite of the fact that we often "get by" because our friends are lenient and are willing to take the "will for the deed," there is always the correct and incorrect way of doing things. And almost invariably that correct way is the common sense way, too.

"I'm pleased to meet you" or "I'm charmed to meet you" is not the correct thing to say, and when a person who knows better hears this, he knows that although you may look the part you are not really a well-bred person.

There is no doubt that the bulk of the responsibility of etiquette falls to the woman, for she is expected not only to know the right thing to do as hostess and guest, at every imaginable function, but to assume the responsibility of a well-bred future generation.

Man has less to worry him in the matter of etiquette, yet, he must not overlook the possibility, that at least once in life, he may be asked to be best man at a wedding or god-father at a christening—and on such occasions knowing the accepted thing to do is a great relief; it turns a duty into a pleasure.

THOSE WHO "DON'T CARE"

There is no doubt in my mind but that everyone, naturally, not only wishes to be well-bred, but to be thought well-bred. No one wants to make social blunders; secretly we are humiliated by them—even the people who like to pretend that they do not care about etiquette. Incidentally, I believe that this seeming indifference is only a pose to hide their lack of knowledge, for usually the very people who assume it are careful about at least some detail of behavior.

$400,000 ETIQUETTE FEE

We never know what Fate has in store for us. There was the case of the famous Maria de Barrill, who, before the loss of her fortune and her consequent death, held the reins of all New York society. It seems that a very wealthy woman wanted very much to get into New York society and therefore, offered Maria de Barrill $400,000 to coach her in etiquette and later introduce her. It is a fact. Now there is nothing amazing about the fact that this woman had to buy her way into society—for that is done often—but I am thinking how humiliating it must have been for this woman to ask Mme. De Barrill to get into New York society and, could and should have known years before!

In my articles, however, I shall try to cover those problems of etiquette which are continually arising, not merely in the lives of those alleged to be "in society," but in the lives of the average man and woman. For it is from the common sense and character of the great body of intelligent and educated citizens that what we call the rules of etiquette have sprung. Among these topics will be "The Formal and Informal Dinner"—"The Guest in Your Home," "The Afternoon Tea," "The Debutante," "The Dance," "The Engagement and Wedding," "The Invitation and Acceptance" and many others.

(Next Sunday Mrs. Hoyt will describe the proper etiquette for the formal dinner.)

SCHOOL ENJOYS NEW QUARTERS

Lillian Payne

Payne's Academy of Drama, Dancing and Music, under the direction of Lillian Payne, is recognized as one of the most select schools in the Southwest. The growth of the school has been such as to demand larger quarters, and recently a new building has been completed with studios, elegantly appointed music rooms, a little theater, fully equipped and a ballroom. An excellent faculty is in charge of the different departments.

On January 25 the dramatic class, under the direction of Edward Dvorak, will present "The Bank Account" in the theater, where plays are given every two weeks.

Under Jean Barry, director of ballet, and a pupil of Stephano Mascagno, rehearsals are being conducted for special features to be given in the early spring. Also a new dancing club is being formed at the academy to be called the Wilshire Dancing Club, which will meet the last Friday of each month.

Miss Payne, who is district chairman of California and Nevada for the American National Association Masters of Dancing is planning elaborate entertainment for the convention which will be held in Los Angeles August 20 to 25 next.

WHO WOULD BE QUEEN?

The motion-picture industry is going to have a real queen elected by popular vote. Her autonomy will extend over the premiere of the American Historical Revue and motion-picture exposition to be given in Los Angeles next June as a great international celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the Monroe Doctrine. She will probably share her regal honors with President Harding, who is expected to be present for the formal opening of the Monroe Doctrine Centennial.

Since the motion-picture industry is sponsoring the revue and exposition, it has been decided to let those of the industry select the queen of events for the opening night. The lucky girl winning this honor will ride in state in the electrical parade preceding the opening; she will preside at the opening ball and lead the grand march with the Governor or some other high dignitary; she will have a prominent part with President Harding in the official opening ceremonies; she will press the button that ignites the first bomb of the pyrotechnic display, and she will preside at the exposition breakfast to be given at dawn following the night of festivities that will mark the opening to the public of the thirty-day celebration.

Only patrons of the revue and exposition will be admitted to the premiere. They alone will elect the queen, who will preside on the successive nights of the month's fiesta of history, literature, music and art. Patron certificates are now being offered the personnel of the motion-picture industry at $10 each. These certificates carry with them $12.59 worth of revue and exposition tickets, including a ticket to the premiere, and 1000 votes for queen.

A great deal of rivalry is expected among the various beauties of the local film colony for the honor of presiding at the revue and exposition premiere. It is thought each studio will have a candidate and the keenest competition is anticipated.

JUST AS HAPPY

A newspaper article calls attention to the fact that John D. Rockefeller commenced work sixty-seven years age at $4 per month and is now worth almost a billion dollars. At the very time John D. was making his $4 a month, the editor of this column was receiving 25 cents a day with dinner thrown in, following a mule hitched to a wooden mold-board plow. We haven't John's millions, but we have as much to eat as we can digest, a good bed to sleep in and a few friends left who smile at us when we meet.—[Madisonville Hustler.

How Guests Were Delighted in Homes.

Mrs. C. E. Weatherbee, Mrs. L. W. Cushman, Mrs. John M. Horton, Mrs. C. C. Houghton, Mrs. Delos Williams, Mrs. John A. Fallis, Mrs. Presley E. Berger, Mrs. Wilson E. Allen, Mrs. William F. Fallis, Miss Lillian Thomas, Miss Clark, Miss C Williams, Miss Ala Ballou and Miss Allice Allen.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Beeson, 520 South Euclid avenue, was the scene Sunday of a quiet, but pretty wedding when their daughter, Miss Marguerite Beeson, became the bride of Arthur Nolan of Bloomington, the Rev. W. W. Vinson, pastor of the First Free Methodist Church, being the officiant. Spring blossoms and fernery were used with artistic effect in decoration. The bride wore her traveling gown, a tailored suit, and the ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate members of the two families. Both young people are well known and popular here, each having graduated from Chaffey High School. Mr. and Mrs. Nolan are to make their home in Colton.

Complimenting Mrs. John Jenkins, who, before her marriage last week in Los Angeles, was Mrs. Edna Armstrong Mitchell, Miss Marie Millard entertained a group of young women Monday afternoon at her home, 226 East G street. The bride was presented with a beautiful Madiera luncheon set. A score of guests enjoyed the affair.

In honor of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis J. Frank (Marie Greenleaf,) whose marriage was a recent event, members of the choir and music committee of Bethel Congregational Church, gathered Thursday evening at their ranch home on South Euclid avenue. The affair was in the nature of a surprise. An informal musical program was a feature of the eevning and the bride was presented with a sterling flower basket. Refreshments were enjoyed toward the evening's close.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Pardee on Fifth avenue was the scene of a merry affair Monday evening when a gay company of neighbors and friends took them by surprise and gathered to help celebrate the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Pardee.

OXNARD

Mrs. Lee Paul charming entertained on Tuesday afternoon at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Livingston, on F street, at a beautifully appointed bridge luncheon, honoring her guest, Miss Florence Bradford of Fresno. The table at which a dainty luncheon was served at 1 o'clock was centered with striking arrangements of French marigolds. Mrs. M. C. De Brell was awarded the first prize for high score and Miss Mayre Daily the second in the bridge games, which occupied the afternoon hours.

The Oxnard Monday Club has had the very good fortune to secure Charles Wakefield Cadman, well-known composer, and the Indian prima donna, Princess Tsianiana, for an entertainment to be given by the club Tuesday evening, February 13. It is seldom that Cadman visits the smaller towns and it is expected that a large attendance will mark the event.

Eluding Oxnarders and friends in Santa Barbara, Enos D. Prentice of this city and Margaret Kinney of Santa Barbara were married in Los Angeles Tuesday last. While relatives of the couple were aware of the fact that a wedding was soon to take place, they were surprised to learn the news Tuesday, when they read the marriage license in a Los Angeles paper. Mr. Prentice, a rancher of the Hueneme section, and his wife, who is a trained nurse, will make their home at his ranch upon their return from a honeymoon. Both are well known here.

The Wednesday Afternoon Card Club met a day ahead of time last week at the home of Mrs. Ray Timberlake in a surprise party for Mrs. Timberlake and also a farewell to Mrs. William Reimers, who is soon to leave Oxnard. Cards were enjoyed all afternoon, high score going to Mrs. Ray Sommers. A guest prize was given to Mrs. Reimers at the close of the affair during the serving of refreshments.

At the last meeting of the Oxnard Monday Club a delightful program was enjoyed. Mrs. Martha McCan, president of the Board of Park Commissions, city of Los Angeles, spoke on work being done in San Fernando in the way of there. She said that the old fountain there. She said that the lod fountain was being moved from an adjacent field to the gardens and old Spanish flowers and shrubs besides native flowers are being planted.

Another speaker at the meeting was Mrs. Kincaid, a prominent newspaper woman of New York and Washington, a former press agent of the Democratic party at Washington and member of the labor commission. Her address was along lines of peace and what a wonderful place California is in comparison with the East. She stated that California has the faith that the East lacks. She said it was the haven of the country.

At the next meeting of the Huenemo Improvement Club social meetings will be resumed. An interesting speaker will be present to talk on "New Thought as Presented by Coue." This feature of the meeting promises to be entertaining and it is expected many will be present, members and others interested in the club's work.

BAKERSFIELD

Invitations for a smart bridge tea will be issued soon to the friends of a group of young matrons who will entertain for the benefit of the Woman's Club. The affair will be an event in the early part of February and will be given at the club. The young women who will be hostesses are the ushers at the club including: Mmes. Clarence Cullimor, Clinton Fowler, Preston McCutchen, Wayne Peacock, Thomas Sawyer and George Suman.

Two popular debutantes who will become brides this month are Miss Ernestine White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. White of 1111 I street, and Miss Thelma Giebner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Giebner of 2103 Twenty-second street, whose betrothals were announced by their mothers at a smart luncheon Tuesday afternoon at the White home to the complete surprise of a coterie of mutual friends. Both bride-elects are members of local prominent families. Miss White will become the bride of Harold McCutchen, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McCutchen, and Miss Giebner will wed Perry McCutchen, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McCutchen. Both boys reside at the Old River and their families are pioneer residents of Bakersfield.

Mrs. William Beaufoy of 201 Twenty-third street, announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Olive Beaufoy, to Walter E. Burnett of Los Angeles at an informal luncheon at which the intimate friends of the bride-elect were present. It is announced that the wedding will be an event of the early summer.

Mrs. Mary Wardwell and Mrs. Hilton R. Warren were hostesses Tuesday afternoon at a large bridge party in the tea room of the Woman's Club. The function was attended by a large group of the social elite. Red roses arranged gracefully in baskets, bowls, and vases, formed the lavish floral decorations. Following the hours of bridge dainty refreshments were served. The matrons who assisted the hostesses were: Mmes. J. Wright Coulter, Helen Shields, Thomas E. Klipstein, J. C. Muir, Sidney Greeley and Edward Benson.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Crow surprised them with a party and miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Baptie of 1904 Maple avenue on Tuesday evening. The affair was shared by fifty-five friends. The young couple are newcomers to the community and will reside at 1729 Maple avenue, where they have opened a studio. Music was the diversion of the evening and at a late hour refreshments were served.

VAN NUYS

Mrs. L. G. Wiley opened her handsome home on East Sherman Way Wednesday night to a large number of young women members of the Westminster Guild. After serving delicious refreshments a most delightful evening was spent. Those present were Misses Dorothy Reel, Mary Jane Keffer, Lorena Smith, Margery Leslie, Grace Steinman, Olive Chadeayne, Gertrude Brown, Gertrude Allington, Gertrude French, Gladys Northrup, Irene Chapman, Pauline Hall, Mary Kerr, Ina Smith, Ruth Smith, Jessie Willey, Beulah Willey, Avis Judy and Mmes Benjamin B. Knap, Howard Trotter and E. B. Brown.

The meeting of the Encino Circle held the past week was largely attended by the members when the following officers were elected for 1923: President, Mrs. A. G. Stepper; vice-president, Mrs. J. Desnoyer; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Mulhoiland; secretary, Mrs. C. R. Webb. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Desnoyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Bliss were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Jess at the Los Angeles Country Club on Monday night.

Mrs. J. Marlar Campbell was hostess Friday at a dinner at which her sister, Miss Margaret Bradway of Berkeley, was the guest of honor. The table was beautifully decorated and a most delightful afternoon followed the elaborate luncheon served. In addition to the honoree the guests were Miss Jennie Campbell, Mrs. Cecil Forbes of Amien, S. D., Mrs. Lee Hendrick, Mrs. Lessie Taylor and Mrs. J. M. Campbell of Van Nuys.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dysinger and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Scott and daughter Virginia, all of Fullerton, were guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Bandy of Van Nuys.

Mrs. Frank X. Pfaffinger of Los Angeles was a guest during the past week of Mr. and Mrs. Max Pfaffinger of West Sherman Way.

BREA

Celebrating their fourteenth wedding day anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Walz kept open house to a number of intimate friends Sunday, at their home on South Pomona avenue. A delicious chicken dinner was served at noon to a number of guests. These included Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Carson of La Verne, D. M. Burke of Pomona, Miss Velma Carson, Miss Ada Brown of Los Angeles, Mr. M. C. Cross and daughter, Flora, of Pomona, Mrs. P. Walz and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Walz.

Clyde Rohne, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Rohne of Seivers street, was the recipient of a very pleasant birthday party to celebrate his fourteenth natal day anniversary on Thursday. Among the young friends gathered to help celebrate the joyous occasion, were the Misses Doris and Clara Woodward, Gladys Paschol, Evelyn Passomaneck, Alice Winchel, Hollis Blaksley, Theadore Woodward, William Corlette and the honoree Clyde Rohne.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sexton and Mr. and Mrs. F. N. High of Redlands, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Sayles, Saturday evening, the quartet were entertained at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Gurley on West Ash street. The color scheme of red and green was carried out in favors, place cards, flowers and ferns. Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Gurley were dinner guests at the Sayles home. Mr. and Mrs. High and Mr. and Mrs. Sexton are both former residents of Brea.

LA HABRA

Mrs. Eleanor Hazen, president of the State Nurses' Association, and Americanization and welfare worker in the Mexican camp, entertained several members of the faculty of the Fullerton Union High School, the superintendent and wife of the La Habra Citrus Association, and a coterie of friends from Los Angeles Sunday, to a Spanish dinner in the community hall of the new camp. After the dinner the guests were entertained by songs from the "Pasada," by the Mexican chorus, and several vocal solos by Mr. Comez of Sherman. The most interesting event was the showing of the pageant of the "Nacimiento," which has been on exhibition since the Christmas festival, of the birth of the Christ child. This is composed of dainty wax figures of the shepherds and their flocks, the Three Wise Men travelers, Joseph and Mary, and the babe in the manger, all done by the clever fingers of the camp artist, Francisco Espania. Even the donkey, which is carved out of a solid block of wood, with the manger and surroundings of the Kahn, leave nothing to the imagination. Every small detail is carried out in perfect order by the genius of this lowly artist from our sister republic. The whole was a perfect setting for the worship of these primitive people for their "Nacimiento," of which they held a nine days' celebration, just finished on January 6. Mrs. Hazen's guests included her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hazen, of Modesto; Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Blackman, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter England, and Mrs. C. Allen of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Cumrine, Rev. and Mrs. Claud Smith of La Habra; Prof. and Mrs. Louis Plummer, Miss Anita Shepardson, Miss Druzilla Mackey and mother, Mrs. C. Mackey, and Rev. Edward Statom of Fullerton.

The Women's Club entertained in honor of the birthday of their president, Mrs. C. E. Tower, at the community hall Thursday. After the business session a program on California literature was given under the direction of Mrs. George Wolfe. A community song, led by Wanda Davis Phillips, followed by readings by Mrs. C. Frome of Los Angeles, and a paper on California authors, by Mrs. A. H. Linsdell. The social that was then enjoyed by the members was a total surprise to Mrs. Tower. A beautiful fern was presented to the honoree by Mrs. Charles Varney, after which tea and sandwiches and home-made cake were served by the hostesses, Mrs. C. E. Varney, Mrs. W. L. Rhodes, Mrs. C. E. Hamilton, Mrs. A. H. Hart, Mrs. George Wolfe, Mrs. J. H. Walker, Mrs. C. L. Crumrine and Mrs. A. J. Wilson.

ALHAMBRA

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized last Sunday when Miss Muriel Grensted, daughter of Mrs. G. W. Grensted, became the bride of Carl G. Meiners of Ojai, Ventura county. Rev. J. H. Amis was the officiant. The bride was gowned in white satin canton crepe trimmed with Spanish lace and pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Taylor as maid of honor and best man, respectively. A reception and wedding supper followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Meiners left for an extended trip to the Hawaiian Islands and will be at home after June 1 at Ojai, where the bridegroom is engaged in ranching.

In celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mr. W. F. Tate of 969 Dos Robles Place, well-known residents of this city, were honored at a reception Monday evening, given at the home of their daughter, Mrs. W. F. Adams, 590 Cahuenga avenue, Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Adams were hosts to 150 guests, many of whom were friends from out of town. Mr. and Mrs. Tate were the recipients of many gifts and congratulatory messages.

Miss Grace Stephens was hostess to a merry group of her friends Wednesday afternoon on the occasion of her birthday anniversary. The guests were the Misses Margaret Warford, Dorothy Johnson, Ruth Callecod, Leah Sisk, Eugenia Grensted, Marjorie King, Cecelia Grete, Beth Crabtree, Vera Parnin, Lorraine Sanford, Gvonne Howard, Jessie Patterson and Dorothy Bray Brav.

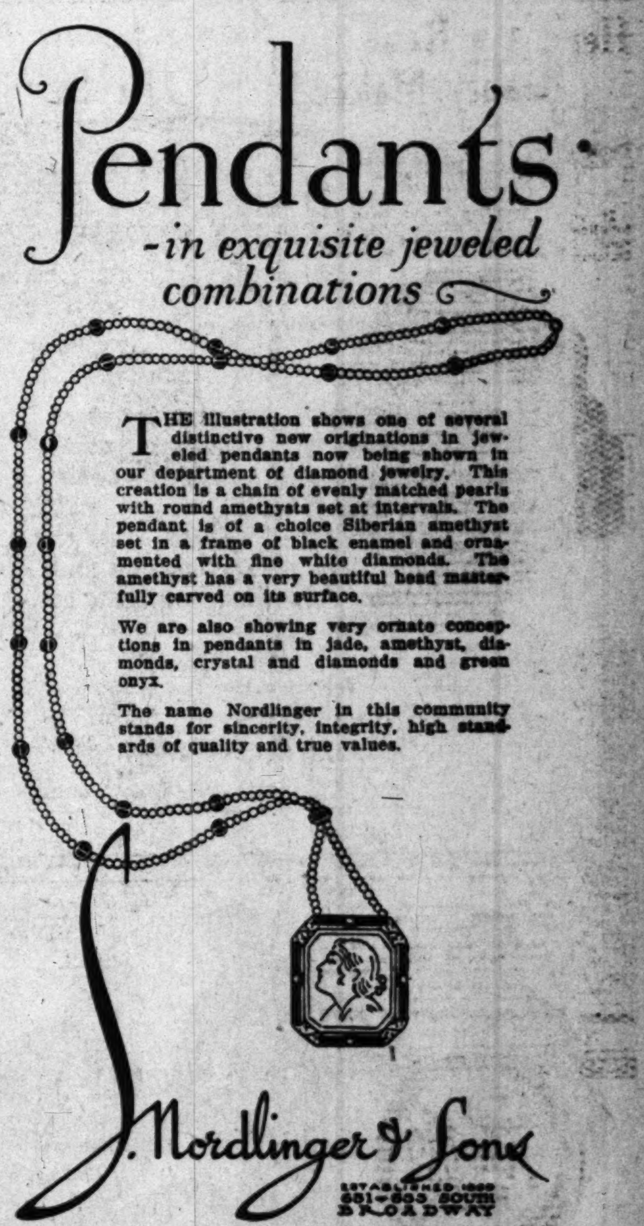
CORONA

The home of Mrs. Zella J. Stickle was the scene of a happy gathering of ladies Tuesday afternoon when, assisted by her sister, Mrs. George M. Blair, she entertained most delightfully with a dinner-bridge party for twenty ladies. A profusion of marguerites was used to beautify the living-rooms and a pretty arrangement of these same flowers being made on each of the five tables at which dinner was served. Nut basbets in harmonizing colors were used, and place cards also serving for score cards.

Following the serving of dinner, bridge whist was enjoyed until a late hour after which Mrs. D. A. Crew was found to be winner of the first prize, and Mrs. Ida J. Otto being a close second. To each of the ladies was presented a dainty enameled candle stick with hand-decorated candle. The guests departed at a late hour with expressions of pleasure in the entertainment of the evening.

To assist in the general celebration which was made Monday afternoon of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pentelow, Mrs. H. H. Case gave a charming little luncheon at noon to a group of friends at her spacious home on Ramona avenue. The home was redolent and beautiful with a profusion of purple violets, which floral motif was also used on the luncheon table with covers laid for six. At the announcement of the serving of lunch Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Miss Anna Platt, and the way led to the dining-room by the bride and groom of fifty years. Those present to enjoy the informality of this pleasant gathering were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pentelow, honorees; Mrs. Nellie Brown, Miss Anna Platt and Miss Lillian Lewis, and the hostess, Mrs. Case. Adjournment was made shortly after lunch to the near-by Pentelow home for the reception in the afternoon.

About 100 members and friends of the First Congregational Church of this city enjoyed their annual meeting and banquet Wednesday evening, when, following the reports of the various officers of the different departments of the church, Rev. Holland N. Burr, director of religious education of the First Congregational Church of Los Angeles, gave a most interesting talk. Rev. Burr spent about nine years of his boyhood days in Corona and was able to entertain his audience with occasional references to escapades not unknown to live-wire boys. Rev. Burr's mother, Mrs. W. N. Burr, was also present at the meeting and spoke a few pleasant words. Following the meeting a general good time was enjoyed renewing acquaintances.



Pendants
-in exquisite jeweled combinations

THE illustration shows one of several distinctive new originations in jeweled pendants now being shown in our department of diamond jewelry. This creation is a chain of evenly matched pearls with round amethysts set at intervals. The pendant is of a choice Siberian amethyst set in a frame of black enamel and ornamented with fine white diamonds. The amethyst has a very beautiful head masterfully carved on its surface.

We are also showing very ornate conceptions in pendants in jade, amethyst, diamonds, crystal and diamonds and green onyx.

The name Nordlinger in this community stands for sincerity, integrity, high standards of quality and true values.

"Visit Our Gray Shop"

The Girl the Men Admire

By Marion Smith

JEAN came running in with an open letter. "Oh, Mumsie!" she exclaimed, "look at this, an invitation to the Bleden's house party. May I go, Mumsie dear? Do say yes. I was graduated at the head of the class last week, and I'm eighteen, let me try my wings out in the world alone, and besides Captain Jack is going, he told me so last night when he called," and she blushed.

"Yes, you may go," said her mother, "but don't get any foolish ideas into your head about lovers, no falling in love yet awhile."

When the Belden's big limousine drove up, her anticipations were high. There was much laughing and chatting, and finally they arrived at a stately Colonial mansion overlooking the sea.

Everything was enchanting. It was Jean's hour, she was just a gay, fine American girl queening it over her devoted admirers.

Of course the other girls were surprised at Jean's popularity because she had been pale, anemic and tired looking for several years previous, and they were talking about it one morning when Gloria Kent's brother who was walking near, asked what subject was so interesting. When he was told, he laughed, and said: "Jean is attractive because she has sparkling eyes, vivid coloring, that charm of personality which fairly radiates from a superbly healthy body. Look at her skin, smooth as satin, and the roses in her cheeks! That's the kind of a girl we men admire!" and he sauntered off.

That night when the girls were alone before retiring they asked Jean what was the secret of her restored health and beauty. Jean was silent awhile, then said: "You all know that there is a time in our lives as we approach womanhood, that is often critical, and so it was with me. I became anemic, nervous, ready to cry at nothing, lost weight and appetite, until mother consulted old Dr. Brown who recommended Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for me. It is made of roots and herbs and is a tonic for ills peculiar to women. You can see how strong and healthy I am and I never suffer any more."

"Eureka!" exclaimed Madge Wilbur, "I'll get a bottle of Favorite Prescription when I motor to town, then perhaps I, too, will be a girl that men admire."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a pure herbal remedy that has helped thousands of women during the past fifty years. This is one of the many grateful letters Dr. Pierce receives daily:

LOS ANGELES—"Before my marriage I was weak and nervous when my mother suggested that I take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to see if it would help me. I found such great relief that I kept on taking it until my system was regulated and I had no further suffering or weakness. Now I rarely have need for any kind of medicine."—Mrs. E. B. Enyart, 3553 Garnet Street.

How to Instantly Have A Beautiful White Skin

A Free Prescription Does This For You—You Can Prepare It at Your Home

New York:—"It is my own discovery and it takes just one application to get such marvelous results," says Mae Edna Wilder, when her friends ask her about her wonderful white skin and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. "You can do the same thing if you follow my advice," she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every girl or woman what this prescription did for me.

"Just think of it—all this change in a single application. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. This is the identical prescription that whitened my skin and obliterated every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make.

"You can prepare at your own home. Here it is: Go to any grocery and get 10 cents worth of ordinary oatmeal and from any drug or department store a bottle of Derwillo. Prepare the oatmeal as directed in every package of Derwillo and apply night and morning.

"Before applying Derwillo the skin should be cleansed thoroughly. Use a good cleansing cream. Liska cold cream is excellent for this purpose. The first application of this combination will astonish you. It makes the skin appear white, transparent, smooth and velvety.

"I especially recommend it for tan, coarse pores, dark, sallow, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and in fact every blemish the face, neck, hands and arms are heir to. If your neck is dark one application of this Derwillo-oatmeal combination will make it look as white as a lily.

"It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. Derwillo instantly gives you a youthful complexion everyone will talk about. No matter how rough and ungainly the hands and arms, or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to the sun and wind this combination will work a wonderful transformation. Millions who have used it have had the same results I have had."

NOTE—To get the best effect be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of Derwillo. It is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. The manufacturers and druggists guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city under a money-refund guarantee by department stores and all druggists including the Owl Drug Company Stores.

Angelina Council, 1543, Security Benefit Association, will give a dance for the benefit of their drill team next Friday night, 2705 North Broadway.

"Members are urged to boost this dance, as we want to send our team to Portland to compete in the national drill contest in June of 1924," says the announcement. "Each ticket entitles the holder to a chance on a grand prize. The public is invited."

Royal Arch Masons of Huntington Park are arranging for installation of officers tomorrow night.

Knights of Pythias of Huntington Park will install officers next Tuesday night.

The newly organized chapter of De Molay of Huntington Park recently initiated its first class of candidates, twenty-three in number, which brings the membership up to seventy-five. Many visitors were present from the Long Beach chapter. Dr. Stewart of Los Angeles, deputy grand marshal, gave an address. The chapter is arranging to hold an election Wednesday night, the 17th inst. The members will meet every Wednesday night hereafter in the Masonic Hall.

Norman Bailey, prominent member of the Los Angeles Elks Lodge, No. 99, attended the Elks' session at Huntington Park Friday night, taking charge of the work.

Huntington Park Odd Fellows are making arrangements to go to Long Beach Saturday evening, the 27th inst., when the lodge at that place will initiate a large class of candidates at the Pier Auditorium.

LOYAL ORDER OF MOOSE

The club rooms of Golden State lodge are the mecca of all visiting members of the organization. Each day brings new visitors and inquiries relative to permanent locations in Southern California. Through the information bureau many queries have been answered. Many eastern members ask information concerning investments and reliable information has been supplied, with the result that the lodge has contributed much to the continued growth of the Southland.

A letter from members of the home at Moosehaven was received by Secretary Hurley, thanking the lodge for its Christmas remembrance.

Next Wednesday the lodge will celebrate its regular initiation ceremonies. Every indication is for a large class. There has been ready response to the lodge's suggestion to the transfer of outside members residing here. The office has been kept busy in handling these members and it is expected that a substantial growth in Golden State's membership roll will be indicated within the next few weeks.

Several propositions relative to the selection of a site for Golden State's new home have been submitted, but as yet nothing satisfactory to the lodge has been received.

Walter Gould Lincoln, chairman of the Convention Club, is preparing an extensive campaign for membership to continue until June 30. The campaign already is under way. Chairman Lincoln feels certain Golden State's goal of 1000 members will be attained. At that time the charter will be closed and the admission fee raised to $25.

The object of limiting the membership to 1000 is to keep the lodge within the confines of what is known as a small lodge where every member, when he walks into the club rooms, will be known.

The dance and entertainment last Saturday night was well attended. Music was furnished by Golden State's jazz orchestra.

The Women's Mooseheart Chapter is active at the present time in building up its membership. Wives and daughters of Moose are elibible to membership.

The date of the Legion Frolic at Venice has been changed to February 17 and 18. The change was necessitated by meeting of the Legion's officers at Moosehaven this month. All Legionnaires are requested to see that their dues in both the lodge and Legion are paid up so that they will be entitled to attend the next frolic, which will be the largest ever given by Unity Legion, No. 2. Any Moose, not a Legionnaire, and who wants to become a member, is urged to leave his application with the secretary. This is the last chance to join for $5.

Deputy Herder Peterson says he expects Golden State lodge to carry off the honors at this frolic for the largest number of candidates.

ODD FELLOWS

The December number of the Idaho Odd Fellow has the following:

"John Wanamaker, famous Philadelphia merchant and philanthropist, who passed away in December, in the eighty-fourth year of his age, was a true and consistent Odd Fellow. He believed fully in the teachings and practices of Odd Fellowship, and hence recognized the order as one of the needed and potent factors for the betterment of mankind."

District Deputy Grand Patriarch Mansfield of El Segundo installed the officers of Standard Encampment No. 54 Wednesday evening and the bay district encampment officers Thursday evening. A large number of tribesmen of Comus Sanctorum attended the installation ceremonies at both encampments.

The new officers of Orange Grove Encampment presided for the first time Friday evening when the patriarchal degree was conferred on several candidates. The Golden Rule is scheduled for next Friday evening. Visiting patriarchs are welcome to all meetings.

At the last regular business meeting of Comus Sanctorum, No. 216, the members decided to turn out in full force at the class initiation in Long Beach, the 27th inst. Members of Oasis Lodge, Long Beach, are making plans for a large turnout, this being an annual event.

The installation of officers of Indio lodge of Odd Fellows was conducted Monday. Dist. Dep. Grand Patriarch A. L. Person of Coachella presided. Following the installation a banquet was served. The same grand officers' staff installed Redlands lodge officers last week.

A. A. Rieser, a grand-lodge officer and member of Porter Lodge No. 212 of Oakland, is in Los Angeles on a business trip. While sojourning here he attended the installation ceremonies of Semi-tropic, Los Angeles, and Good Will lodges.

Inglewood Lodge No. 420, conducted public installation of officers Thursday evening. Dist. Dep. Grand Masters Coe and Suite of Sawtelle conducted the ceremony. New officers for the semiannual terms are: Noble Grand, Chas. H. Howell; Vice Grand, S. H. Roush; Recording Secretary, C. H. Hurlbert; Financial Secretary, A. A. Williams; Treasurer, Lloyd Shride.

Edelweiss Rebekahs will conduct initiation of candidates next Friday evening in Fraternity Hall, 220½ South Main street.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Junipero Serra Council, No. 2404, of the Knights of Columbus, has added another activity to its council life, in becoming a member of the Knights of Columbus Bowling Association of California, and, with the team already selected, will challenge all other councils in the Southland. Arrangements have been made for quarters at the Schafer Bowling Alleys, 820 South Broadway.

Last Friday evening, an open meeting was conducted by the council, at which a debate was held between selected students of Loyola College, who engaged in an oratorical battle on the Sterling-Towner educational bill now pending before Congress. Grand Knight Howard of Council No. 2404 and John T. Curtin acted as judges, and a close decision was the result of the efforts of the young speakers. The college orchestra played. The students demonstrated that they were just as good musicians as the others were orators.

At the noonday luncheon Friday at Ye Bull Pen Inn, W. H. Whalen, superintendent of the Southern Pacific Railway, gave an interesting talk on railroad matters.

Junipero Serra Council is planning an open meeting Washington's Birthday, the evening of February 22. The speaker of the evening will be William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury.

In connection with the business meeting of Progressive Homestead Belvedere, No. 5934, to be conducted at K. of P. Hall, at the intersection of First street and Rowan avenue, on the evening of the 16th inst., the Juvenile Lodge will convene at 7:30 p.m.

An initiation of new candidates will be conducted on the evening of the 19th inst. by California Pacific Homestead, No. 2124, at Lincoln Hall, Walker Theater Building.

Santa Monica, Crescent Bay Homestead, No. 1383, which meets at Odd Fellows Hall, Santa Monica, will give a box supper and dance on the evening of the 18th inst.

"We are proud of the record made by Crescent Bay Homestead during the last year, and we are in better shape to go forward than we have ever been," writes Foreman Helen Dearborn.

Long Beach Homestead, No. 1560, meets every second and fourth Thursday at Moose Hall, 433 Pine avenue. Nettie Cook is foreman of this growing organization.

Pomona Homestead, No. 1222, is making rapid strides in membership and enthusiasm under the splendid leadership of Hershall Jones, foreman. The homestead meets every second and fourth Wednesday in Odd Fellows Hall.

A business meeting and initiation will be conducted the 17th inst., at the Hawthorne schoolhouse by Hawthorne Homestead.

STATE SOCIETIES

The state society picnic season in Southern California will begin Saturday at Sycamore Grove when former residents of Idaho and Utah will enjoy a joint reunion. Following the noon-day luncheon a splendid program will be given, starting at 2 p.m. On account of this picnic the Idaho social will be omitted next Saturday evening.

The postponed Wisconsin reunion will be held at Forum Hall, 208 Mercantile Place, Monday evening. Col. Frank H. True will preside. There will be a program of speeches, music and dancing. The annual Wisconsin Society picnic will be held February 12 at Sycamore Grove.

Members and friends of the Maple Leaf Canadian Club will enjoy a program of music and dancing at the Gamut Clubhouse next Saturday evening.

A reunion of former residents of the Lone Star State will be held on the evening of the 15th inst., at Music Art Hall. Dr. H. S. Adair, new president of the Texas State Society, will preside. Visitors from Texas are invited.

The midwinter rally of the Hoosiers, under the leadership of the president, Cecil Wilson, will be conducted at Fraternal Brotherhood building, 845 South Figueroa street, on the evening of the 16th inst.

Thursday evening, the 17th inst., the Virginians will offer a welcome to all who ever lived in that State, at their reunion at the Angelus Hotel.

The same evening the Massachusetts society will have a baked-bean supper at California Hall, at the intersection of Main and Thirtieth streets, followed by a program of readings and music with dancing as the final attraction. Supper reservations should be made early through Mrs. Ross, phone 10063.

Members and friends of the Tennessee State Society will meet in Angelus Hotel Hall on the evening of the 18th inst., and on the same evening the Arkansans will enjoy a reunion at 932 South Grand avenue.

The Michigan University Alumni Association has arranged for a series of luncheons to be given every Friday at noon at 614 South Hope street.

The first meeting of the Illinois State Society of Southern California in 1923, held at the Ebell Clubhouse, 1719 South Figueroa street, Wednesday evening, was one of the most enthusiastic meetings in the history of the society.

The newly elected officers are: Frank P. Cooper, president; T. W. B. Everhart, first vice-president; G. W. Morris, second vice-president; Mrs. Walter F. Spreen, third vice-president; Mrs. Eda M. Sherman, secretary, and Mrs. S. Miller, treasurer.

Mrs. Lizzie B. Fowler, the retiring treasurer, was the recipient of a beautiful jet bead necklace and the past president, James A. Tomlinson, who served the society as president from 1919 to 1922, was presented with a handsome white-gold watch.

The membership drive instituted by the new president means a membership running into thousands before the close of 1923, a large real estate purchase and clubhouse ownership under the name of the Illinois State Society of Southern California.

Hereafter the monthly meeting will be held on the second Wednesday of each month. All former Illinoisans and their friends are invited.

NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

Officers were installed by Dist. Dep. Grand President Walter Baskerville, at Ramona Parlor, last Friday evening. A large attendance witnessed the ceremonies, the visitors including Grand Director Charles L. McEnerney of San Francisco, and Past Grand Presidents Traeger and Lichtenberger of this city.

Following the installation a high-class vaudeville entertainment was presented under the direction of Charles O. Brittain, first vice-president of the Parlor. An emblem ring was presented to the retiring Junior Past President, Louis P. Russill.

ARTICLE NO. 16—SECONDARY BIDS

...quently hands that are ...ssible bids on the first ... bidding are perfectly ... the second or subsequent ... Such bids are the ... "Secondary Bids." These ... of two classes: first, bids ... be passed before the ... bid; second, bids that ... passed after the original ... The first class comprises hands that are not sufficient for an original bid, ... enough, do not contain the proper distribution. For ..., suppose the dealer ... the following hand:

Hearts—Q, 7, 6, 4, 3, 2
Clubs—A, 2
Diamonds—K, 4, 2
Spades—10, 7

...th hand bids one Spade. ... has a perfectly sound ... bid, even though the ... not a sound original bid. ...quirements for a secondary ... are practically the same ... defensive bid—that is, ... one-half quick tricks—with this exception and a[n] important one: that the bid ... indicate any quick tricks ... suit bid.

... second class of secondary ... is, those hands that ... passed on the first round, ... an original bid—are the ...ondary bids. The first ... more like defensive bids, ...though bid on the second ... of bidding.

... dealer bids one Spade and second hand holds the following:

Hearts—Q, 10, 8, 7, 6, 4, 3, 2
Clubs—J, 10, 6
Diamonds—9

he should pass. If the Spade bid is overbid, second hand should show the Heart suit on the second round, bidding three Hearts if necessary. This is a typical secondary bid, one in which the strength is entirely confined to the trump suit and without any quick trick strength. Such hands are very numerous and occur many times during an evening's play.

The player must learn to pass all hands on the first round of bidding that do not contain any tricks unless a certain suit is trump. Otherwise partner has no choice except to read such bids as sound defensive bids, thereby inferring that his partner has at least one and one-half quick tricks, of which at least one-half quick trick is in the suit bid. It should be obvious, therefore, that to bid such hands on the first round of bidding is contrary to the principles of good bidding in that it gives false information to partner. The novice always should remember that the object of good bidding is to convey exact information to partner, and if he fails in this requirement and subsequent loss occurs, the fault is his and he is properly subject to criticism by his partner.

Another and perhaps even more serious result of incorrect bidding is the loss of confidence in one's bids. Once a player gets a reputation for making unsound bids, it is very difficult to restore confidence in one's partners. They mistrust and ponder over one's bids and wonder "Is he giving me correct information or is he bidding unsoundly?" Many a rubber has been lost by just such a lack of confidence; so try to avoid the reputation of being an unsound bidder. Pass hands that do not contain tricks except with a certain suit as trump, and bid them on the second or subsequent rounds of bidding unless such course becomes unnecessary or inexpedient. Make up your mind to give exact information by your bidding and stick to that resolution. It is the only way to become a good Auction player.

Many Juvenile Defectives

A survey of the 400,000 school children of the State of Wisconsin revealed the fact that 40,000 of them were in need of some training more specialized than can be had in the regular classrooms. The survey was made under the direction of the National Commission of Mental Hygiene and showed a degree of deficiency hitherto unrevealed and of unsuspected magnitude. State-wide supervision of all school children and special surveys and special classes for these children have been suggested.

THE EXEMPT

PIERRE KEY'S Music Article

BY PIERRE V. R. KEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. — However young it may be the new year is not musically backward. After experiences of the past six days, one must conclude that the magazine cover artists who drew Nineteen Twenty-three as a shy and scantily-clothed little person are all wrong in their ideas. For this selfsame New Year has fluttered in upon us with such a wealth of music that keeping up with it semes almost impossible. One of the first things done for musical New York during early January days was the debut here of Georges Enesco. Readers of this colmun will identify this musician as a composer of the modern schools whose works have had enough attention in the past half dozen years to make their creator a personality. He got in aboard ship on the last day of 1922, and proved to be a quiet and unassuming man (what a relief from the average foreign visitor who has done as much in the art as Enesco.)

It is not possible at this writing to go into details as to how Enesco conducted the Philadelphia orchestra. The hour is late, and there will be ample opportunity of judging the newcomer during the month he is to serve as guest conductor during the absence in France of the Philadelphia orchestra's regular leader, Leopold Stokowski.

What is more pertinent is the success gained by Stokowski and fifty-seven of his musicians, when they started the Soiree musicales a few evenings ago in the Biltmore Hotel ballroom. The concert was the first of a series of six designed to offer certain novelties, one being to establish 9:30 p.m. as the starting hour of each program. With one of the smartest audiences possible to assemble, the introductory concert moved along brilliantly. Before each of the old-time compositions was performed Stokowski explained briefly the interesting points. This procedure brought about a sort of intimacy between conductor and auditors, and when the closing number was finished—barely little more than an hour after the program began —nobody wanted to go home.

Mrs. C. S. Guggenheimer and Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn are chairmen of the committee which is responsible for these Soiree musicales. It would surprise no one if they were to develop a real and deserving popularity.

FRIENDS OF MUSIC

The Society of the Friends of Music goes serenely on its way, giving compositions seldom heard elsewhere and thus establishing for itself a sort of excluzivity. One hears comments of an uncomplimentary nature about the works it performs, but just why it is not always clear to discover. For the organization gives much of interest apart from worth; and there is no other musical society in this city which can show an untarnished record in avoiding dull compositions.

Last Sunday's concert, given in Town Hall, had variety and qualities of entertainment in more than commonplace degree. It was entirely Brahms. Artur Bodanzky of the Metropolitan Opera conducted —as usual. "Bodanzky's Friends of Music," someone once said. Well what of it? Bodanzky is a fine musicitn and a fine conductor. And the envious have a way of uttering spiteful phrases.

The tall and elaborately composed Artur managed to get a good deal from his small orchestra and chorus, first in the "Schicksallied," when both performed, then with the serenade for orchestra alone, and finally the "Rhapsodie," op. 53, for men's chorus, orchestra and contralto.

One of the splendid moments of the concert came when Mme. Charles Cahier sang the two Brahms songs, "Gestillte Sehnsucht and "Geistliches Wiegenlied"—for contralto, viola and piano. The singer's voice is not as fresh nor as serviceable as it formerly was, but her art mellows. With Louis Bailly playing the viola and Bodanzky himself at the piano, there was a combination to remember.

MR. CROOKS REPEATS

Promising tenors are so rare that when one appears unexpectedly he is apt to attract attention. A few weeks ago Richard Crooks made a first appearance with the New York Symphony Orchestra, and sang some Wagner music with surprising facility. We commented in this column at the time on the Crooks voice. A few afternoons ago, with the same organization, this young man sang the prize song from "Die Meistersinger," and then was heard, with Mrs. Ruth Blackman Rodgers, in the duet for soprano and tenor from the prelude to "Die Gotterdammerung."

Not in a long time has an American tenor come before the public with such a fine natural equipment as Mr. Crooks. The quality of tone is warm, yet vital; and though it is lyric in character it has enough substance to lend itself in dramatic music. But one so young should not be set at Wagner; that may come later, with far greater safety.

Save for the high tones—which are not yet sufficiently concentrated or formed with the freedom essential for their utmost effectiveness—Mr. Crooks uses his voice well. And he has the singing instinct and a correct idea of interpretation. If he is guided aright, and his head stays sensibly upon his shoulders, we predict for this young man a fine future.

THE WISE TITTA RUFFO

Just outside Aeolian Hall was gathered a group of musicians. One chanced to be the critic of one of New York's foremost morning daily newspapers. The talk happened upon the recent singing artistry of Titta Ruffo, who has improved so amazingly that it is the subject of much conversation.

Here is a baritone with a phenomenal voice who has discovered that the people don't care always to hear him shout. When he departed for Europe last spring (as was stated in this column) Ruffo declared his intention of using more art in his singing than he had formerly done.

True to his promise, he has returned with every apparent intention of moving in a new groove. In his out-of-town concerts (according to reliable reports we have gotten) Ruffo has also restrained that magnificent organ of his. Incidentally, he is now coaching with Victor Maurel who, in his day, was one of the greatest of baritones.

The point worthy of emphasis is Ruffo's readiness, with much of his career behind him, to study. Let the younger singers take notice, and profit accordingly.

MUSIC TEACHERS CONVENE

After a week of lively sessions, the members of the National Music Teachers' Association have said good-bys and gone to their respective homes. It is some years since this organization has honored New York with a convention. On this occasion it proved how much good it is accomplishing, and what a debt the people of numerous towns and cities owe to those who have helped to make it useful.

If it were not for the part this teachers' association plays in acquainting our youth with music, they would not make such fine citizens as they are destined to become. And in many other ways the association is lending a helping hand at the right moment. One of its recent accomplishments has been the nation-wide warning about the crooked song publishers.

And yet, no longer ago than twenty years, a music teacher was regarded by some narrow-minded business men as a suspicious character. Such is progress—with which music has had much to do.

MASSENET'S "MANON"

With so much music hurled at one it is possible to comment only upon the highlights. Everybody knows that we are having a rush of symphony concerts to the head; that recitals—song and instrumental—are as commonplace as taxes; and that the Metropolitan rolls along like the brook. But a few evenings ago we had the first "Manon" of Massenet of the season, with Lucrezia Bori and Mario Chamlee sustaining the leading roles.

What a charming artiste is Miss Bori! Admiring her voice and finesse and charm, one hesitates to give free rein to one's pen. She has her faults, of course. What singer hasn't them? Still, they are insignificant; and it is a question if any other opera singer does as much with resources which are not—so far as mere voice is concerned—noteworthy.

Chamlee seems to be getting "behind the tone" more than has been his wont. He needed just that punch; the something which would make his singing less smooth at all times, less perfect in the matter of the line of the phrase.

Last night we had the long, looked-for revival of "William Tell"—the opera you may recall, which is best known for the apple which is shot from a lad's head. In the next article we will have something to say about how the opera was given, and how the principal artists acquitted themselves.

MUSIC PROSPECTS FOR 1923

Predicting is a dangerous business—as has been observed before. Some experts were of the opinion that 1922-1923 would outstrip the previous season . . . and guessed wrong. Now these same experts are optimistic over 1923-1924. In all probability they will hit nearer the mark, this time. World conditions begin to reflect signs of a change for the better, and if that actually comes to pass music will come in for its share.

One interesting phase of the industry will be the competition for business among the artists and music organizations for there is to be a race between the newly formed managerial combination and those managers of artists who are not of that combination.

Selby Oppenheimer of San Francisco, and Miss Lois Steers of Portland, Or., spent the past few days here, engaging most of their next season's attractions. "Who's Who and Why" will be an appropriate title for an article which should be ripe for writing about a year from now.

Acting a Lost Art

London has a First Nighters' Club and at a recent meeting St. John Ervine, the president, said:

"The British theater is very near its last gasp. I sometimes wonder whether we know what acting is. We see people from the higher ranks of the middle classes and the lower ranks of aristocracy walking very prettily across the stage, mumbling their words. The audiences do not know what acting is like, and one sees them going into raptures over dreadful performances."

I Then Saw I Would Have The Secret Key to Health
For Thousands of Weak, Nervous, Run-down Folks—A Message Of Good Cheer To Those Who Want To Be Strong, Healthy and Vigorous Cut Out and Use Free Trial Coupon Below Today

If I could sit down with you in your own parlor, face to face, and tell you how many thousands of people have been helped back to good health, increased strength and energy by this newer form of iron, I am sure that you would not hesitate for a moment to go to the nearest drug store and get a two weeks' trial treatment.

First of all, I want to be sure that this treatment is what you really need, and second, I want to make it very easy for you to try it at my expense.

Did you ever stop to consider how few people are suffering from a definite disease as compared to the vast number who are just weak, sick, nervous and run-down; people who are always ailing, complaining and doctoring without ever seeming to get any better? One has pains in the back and thinks he has kidney trouble; another has pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and is sure he is suffering from heart disease; still others have severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine, and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I have made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. I then saw that if I could supply this iron in a form that would be easily taken up by the body, I would have the secret key to health for thousands of weak, nervous, run-down people. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalizing weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. In the old days people often took metallic iron which some physicians claim the body cannot absorb. In compounding this newer form of iron, which I call Nuxated Iron, I used a special form of iron which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test and see if you cannot be like other people whose blood is rich in iron, who possess great strength, force and energy. Cut out my trial coupon and go to your own druggist and get your first trial package of Nuxated Iron. Then see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while are today in good health and filled with abundant strength, energy and endurance through the use of this newer form of iron. It would seem that every run-down person who wants to get back their old-time strength and health would go at once to their druggist and make this trial at my expense.

Trial Coupon

Fill in this coupon with your name and address and take it to any druggist in your city. Deposit with him the price of one regular full-size bottle of Nuxated Iron. This is not a payment, but a deposit only. It is still your money. If you are not more than delighted with the results obtained by two weeks' use of Nuxated Iron, simply return the outside wrapper to your own druggist who will promptly refund your money. We will repay the druggist the full amount he refunds upon receipt of the coupon and wrapper.

The Season's Hats

GAY with flowers and fruits of every hue—the new Hats pay tribute to the California Season, and make of themselves veritable garden-spots of color.

Among them the youthful poke shape holds unchallenged sway—and many are its versions. Pokes of shiny hair-cloth in dark colors adorn their quaint beauty with cluster after cluster of gay blooms. Some of them demurely face their brims with taffeta to match the flowers.

Many display the new crown—cut in sections and draped. One model of black haircloth drapes the brim as well, and emphasizes it with two gay camelias.

Prices for this flower-trimmed millinery begin at $15.00.

New Metal Broche On Sale, $11.50

115 yards of new fabrics show how beautiful brocaded metal cloths may be when suppleness of weave and colorings that are best set off against a gold and silver background—

Both conspire and produce a result of great richness.

Metal Broches to be featured as a sales feature for Monday come in French blue and gold, green and gold, old blue and gold, green and silver, black and gold, black and silver, tomato and silver, American beauty and silver.

36 inches wide. To be priced unusually low at .... $11.50 yard

FIRST FLOOR

Printed Silks

PRINTED SILKS point the way for spring, and fashion follows. Printed Silks are the mode, its foundation and its adornment. And Robinson's are forecasting the coming season with a brilliant display of Printed Silks in almost every imaginable color.

Some in delicate tints of pastel loveliness—others in the exotic hues of the Orient—they reveal a tracing and blending of patterns almost bizarre in character.

Among them are printed crepe de chine, cheeri-o crepe, krinkle crepe-knit, printed roshanara, bordered roshanara, printed pussy willow, and Cinderella printed crepe. In widths from 36 to 40 inches. The fabrics begin in price at $3.00 a yard.

SECOND FLOOR

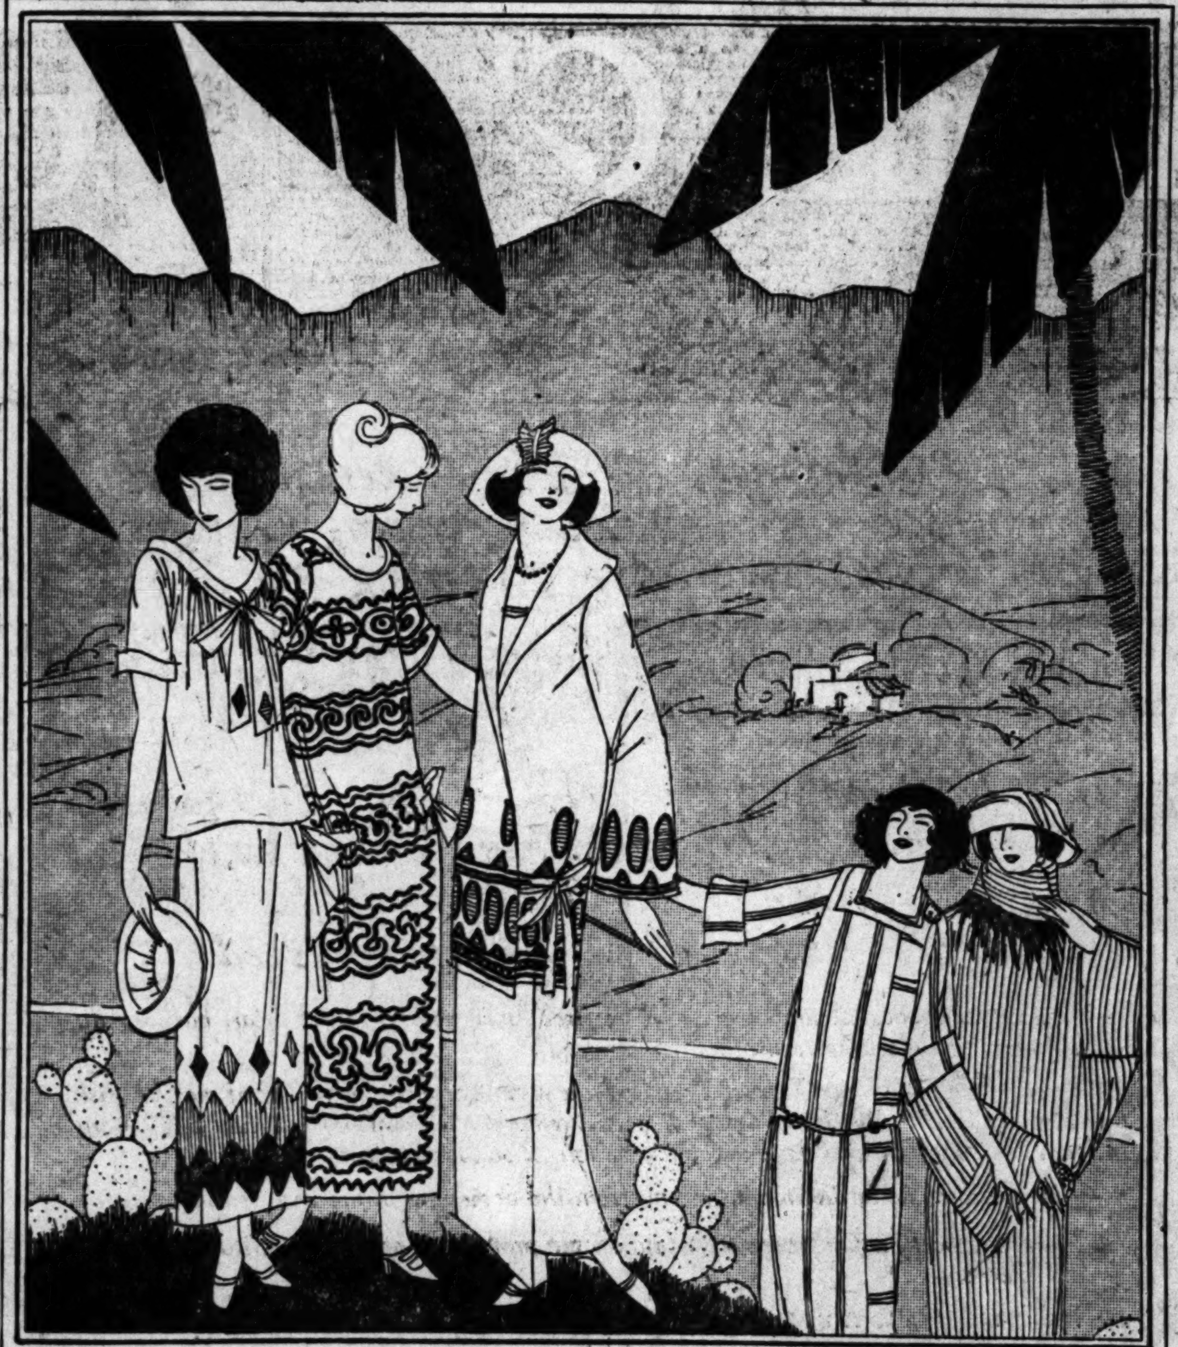
Spring Wool Fabrics

NOTABLE among them are the new Bochenille weaves—some of them in combinations of silk and wool. One group achieves a somewhat brocaded effect by an all-over design in self color. Others display the new wide, horizontal stripes in contrasting weave and color.

Some Skirtings for the California season show small checks formed by the crossing of lavender or blue threads on a tan ground. Others favor stripes—in bright colors and indistinct weave as lavender, gray, yellow and white in one pattern or tan, gray, blue and green in another.

The prices of these new fabrics begin at $3.00 a yard.

SECOND FLOOR



CALIFORNIA SEASON

FROM Santa Barbara to San Diego, from the mountains to the green-blue of the Pacific, the California Season holds high carnival. Play in the out-of-doors, under blue skies and a warm sun, needs its accompaniment of brilliant Sports Wear.

Its Frocks

The California Season attracts to it glowing Frocks of every description.

From England come sports costumes of washable wool fabrics, in white and colors. These are delightful for beach wear, golf or tennis. The second figure from the right displays an English Frock in blue striped with white, $35.00.

To grace the country club tea are Frocks of white crepe de chine, with wide borders of Rodier wool embroidery in gay colors. Sketched at the left, $85.00.

The second frock is of crepe de chine in cool white. It shows an unsparing use of color in the bright red all-over design, $75.

THIRD FLOOR

Silk Bandanas

HAND-BLOCKED Bandanas that are so prominent in the fashion magazines are being shown in the Men's Section. They have just come in from overseas.

Men and women both like them for sports wear, enjoying their colorings and unmistakably European "tone." Some are using the large size Handkerchiefs as a mild weather muffler. Beginning at $2.00.

FIRST FLOOR

Its Wraps

THEIR keynote is extreme simplicity, and they attain the unusual by beauty of fabric and line. The Wrap sketched at the right above is typical of the new mode. Of black velvy, its collar edged with monkey fur, it has smart lining of gray striped silk. $185.

Its Suits

THESE are characterized by exquisite youthfulness. Some are gay with color, others conservative—and all are unmistakably daughters of a new season. Sketched in the center above is a suit of silk crepe mascotte—beige, with brown hand embroidery. It may be had in navy also. $125.

Its Skirts

THE new Sports Skirts appeal in countless ways to those who love the beautiful. On some of the models, one color vies harmoniously with another in gay stripes. On others checks or stripes in self-color become noteworthy through the intricacy of design or weave.

Varying shades of tan, caramel, brown, gray and other colors are available, as well as white.

The Season's Sweaters

KINSHIP to men's Golf Sweaters is seen in these new models of heavy knitted silk. Intricacy of weave and novel arrangements of color are confined to the front. The sleeves and back are in plain weave, solid color.

The cut is severely straight, trimly belted, and collarless. And the final effect is one of youth and correctness.

These come in several colors—such as navy, brown, Copen and beige—the back and sleeves in solid color, and the front in a two-toned novelty weave.

They are priced at $27.50 and $37.50.

People and Their Troubles

Listen, World!

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY Elsie Robinson

The worst old maids are the male ones. You can excuse an aging, inexperienced lady for her fussiness and timidity and even for her meddling. She looks the part and she hasn't anything else to do anyway. But when something in outsize loud paints, balbriggan underwear, [illegible] neckties, brogans, cheap [illegible] and red whiskers begins nosing around, whining, snooping, objecting, twittering, peeving and making himself a parboiled nuisance generally, you want to hand him a Ty Cobb that will land him in the Emergency.

Generally I like men. If they're men. But I cannot abide them when they act like a cross between a squaw and a mosquito.

The kind of old rabbit that's always butting into your personal affairs and telling you disagreeable things "for your own good"—

Who runs and tattles to the boss on the slightest provocation—

Who beats the neighborhood buzzards to it at the slightest hint of scandal—

Who is always snooping around looking for Vice, and finding some where the ordinary human couldn't see it with a microscope—

Who's always wheezing for the "sweet, old fashioned girl," and declaring he'd "rather see his daughter in her grave than with her hair bobbed"—

Who makes his home a perfect haven of rest by crabbing if anyone else sits in his chair, and who insists that the beefsteak must be done in a certain way and no other, and who breaks forth in loud, wet sobs if anyone has grabbed the newspaper before he sees it and left it mussed—

All these I maintain are Old Maids of the most obnoxious order. They should be sewed in a sack, and left in someone's back lot just as you would any other Troublesome Tabby. And I've a sack!

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES"

An Actual Occurrence

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—[To the Editor of The Times:] [illegible] our little children, bent on useful errands and en route to and from school, have been forgotten by those fighting for the [illegible] of the dog-muzzling [illegible], and for their benefit I [illegible] the instance of a dog without a [illegible].

On October 29, my mother was [illegible] while in the back yard of [illegible] home by a ferocious bulldog. [illegible] tore away the new leather shoe [illegible] buried his fangs deep into the [illegible] part of her foot. Her cries [illegible] to her side, and we to[illegible] could not unlock his death-grip. Then a neighbor's boy [illegible] by with his dog, and the [illegible] dog immediately loosened his [illegible] and attacked the little boy's [illegible].

The nervous shock was almost [illegible] to my mother. The family [illegible] was called at once, and the [illegible] which were ugly and seri[illegible] were treated with nitric acid. [illegible] doctor ordered the dog's head [illegible] to the State laboratory [illegible] examination, which disclosed [illegible] rabies of the most virulent [illegible]. My mother's life was saved [illegible] wonderful nurses at the [illegible] laboratories, in the Pacific [illegible] Building. During the [illegible] days we went to the [illegible] for the pasteur treatment, we witnessed little children [illegible] 4 to 10 years of age, being [illegible] treated against and saved [illegible] a horrible death of rabies. [illegible] a matter of fact that all [illegible] bitten by rabid dogs [illegible] developed symptoms of rabies. [illegible] it not therefore follow that to [illegible] dogs to run the streets without a muzzle is unfair to other [illegible] to say nothing of our loved [illegible].

Creates a Fight

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Why, [illegible] do correspondents like [illegible] and other friends and [illegible] of Arbuckle attack the [illegible] as they do? Why do they [illegible] the numerous women's [illegible] and civic organizations [illegible] America, who are daily [illegible] resolutions against the [illegible] of Arbuckle films? To[illegible] of The Times carries [illegible] that Hays's own [illegible] chosen to aid him, is [illegible] to Fatty's return to the [illegible].

[illegible] of mothers throughout [illegible] are inarticulate on this [illegible] through the voice [illegible] women's clubs, but if they [illegible] so much trouble to express themselves individually as Fatty's admirers do, his friends would see that there are others besides ministers interested in this subject.

As to children not being told the revolting facts of Fatty's downfall, the average child of 12 or 15 reads the newspaper more or less and discusses the day's happenings as well as adults, that is, the child of average intelligence.

Hope some one of Arbuckle's friends will cease attacks on the ministers and take up the cudgels against the women's clubs! This is a challenge.

KEEP THEM MOVING

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In todays issue of your paper, an article appeared as to the steps to be taken to rid the city of criminals. In that article Chief Oaks is reported to have said that the "hobo squad" (twelve police) were performing effective work, bunk, pure bunk. Chief Oaks knows or should know that not one hobo in fifty rides into Los Angeles, they get off at Saugus, or if coming from the east they get off at San Bernardino, and beg rides on the highway or pay coach fare into Los Angeles. Chief Oaks also should know (as I do) that no matter how many yard "bulls" are employed the hobo will get in. I was one for years "tis I that know their game." The thing to do is to make the town so distasteful to him that he won't want to come in. Here is the solution, place a uniformed policeman, young and active on beat on Los Angeles street between First and Second and let him also patrol First and Second streets from Main to Los Angeles streets and prevent the hobos from loitering on these streets, they fairly bitter these streets with their carcasses, keep them moving, keep the sidewalks clear, in this way the hobo camping ground (Los Angeles street) known from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Ore., as the hobo's haven of rest, will not be so pleasant a winter retreat for the panhandler, the moocher, the petty larcency thief, the dope fiend and various other fiends.

Young, able-bodied men, who should be ashamed to be seen near a mission (I don't mean in a religious sense) begging for a place to lie down or a bowl of soup while ranchers are short of help all over the country. It is simply ridiculous, I care not who says otherwise.

The dangerous element is from 18 to 30 years of age and Los Angeles street and the adjoining streets are full of them. The cure is keep them moving and they will soon move out.

[Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing the Los Angeles Times Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskins, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and inclose 2 cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.]

Question: How much should be given a bell boy for a tip?
M. N. A.

Answer: The American Travel and Hotel Directory says that upon arriving at a first-class hotel, 10 cents is ample renumeration for being shown to a room by the bell hop who carries the bags; 10 or 15 cents adequate compensation for the bringing in or taking out of each trunk. When a porter arranges to check your trunk through to its destination a fee of 25 cents is expected for the outgoing trunk.

Q.: Where is the deepest marble quarry in the world?
L. S.

A.: Rutland, Vt., claims the distinction, having a marble quarry 350 feet deep.

Q.: Was the fiery cross mentioned in the Lady of the Lake really on fire?
P. L. N.

A.: This cross was a symbol. When a Scottish chieftain wished to summon the clan he set fire to the extremities of a cross made of light wood, then extinguished the flame by immersing in the blood of an animal slaughtered for the purpose. This "fiery cross' was borne by a messenger and brought about a hurried gathering of the clan.

Q.: How does the size of Stone Mountain, Ga., compare with the bulk of coal that has been mined in this country?
C. O. C.

A.: Stone Mountain has a visible bulk of 7,500,000,000 cubic feet. The amount of coal mined in this country up to 1919 was 13,000,000,000 tons. This would make 320,000,000,000 of cubic feet.

Q.: Why do some plants and trees produce flowers before leaves?
D. L. K.

A.: The Department of Agriculture says that a variety of tree growing in the South and sending out its blossoms before its leaves, will in the North send out foliage ahead of blossoms. This characteristic is evidently associated with the responses of the plants to climatic conditions and temperatures.

Q.: How much is the coast of England and the United States being washed away each year?
T. T. F.

A.: The amount varies exceedingly with the locality. For instance, on the coast of Yorkshire, England, it is estimated that the action of the water is washing at lease seven feet per year. At Cape Cod, the erasion is about six inches a year.

to the social misdemeanors of persons of this and other States. Regretable as these occurrences are, they are greatly magnified by the important positions given them and the unnecessary detail with which they are described in the news columns.

We feel that we are correct in stating that such treatment of unsavory news matter is not demanded and not desired by the self-respecting and law-abiding readers of your columns. Such news is also regarded by them as very undesirable reading for the young and inexperienced members of their families.

We are firm believers in proper publicity and the principle of freedom of the press, and have no desire that there be any undue restraint or concealment of essential facts regarding the true social condition of our community, State and nation. We do feel, however, that there is a great responsibility resting upon the public press to present the facts so that evil will not predominate and debase public thought. We believe that the public interest will be best served by presenting the news in such manner as to turn the thoughts of the reader in the direction indicated by the Apostle Paul when he wrote:

"Whatsoever things are true, whosoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any praise, think on these things."

We are, therefore, appealing to you to use the influence of your paper to emphasize not the evil, but the things of good report.

Sex No Exception

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] A woman was hanged a few days ago in England for murder. She went out with the name of her lover on her lips, who departed simultaneously, to be united perhaps in the lower world. Within the past several years there has been ample material in this city for at least a dozen hangings and three or four of these are women. But, had one woman been hanged, the other assassinations would not have occurred in all probability. There is a false glamor called "chivalry" for woman which blinds addled pated jurors into the belief that a woman should not swing, even when she commits the most bloodthirsty and cruel murder. Feebleminded sentimentalists sympathize with her, but not a thought for her victim in the grave, or for others. It is only the assassin who is remembered, and who becomes a "hero" or "heroine," and probably graduates into the movies.

The false "chivalry" for woman should end with the commission of a crime. She should be known only as a criminal. The law makes no distinction because of sex, and the juror who does commits perjury, though not in a legal sense. If the law is to be continually evaded by mushy-headed jurymen it may as well be amended so as to say "unless the murder is committed by a woman." Then, there would be no farcical trials at the expense of the taxpayers. If a woman slays a man, or even another woman, she might be "tagged" as a compromise.

A few examples of British justice would stop these wholesale murders. The acquittal of such an assassin only encourages others to do likewise. It has been more than half a century since there was a vigilance committee in this city and there are more murders in the city now, proportionately than when it was a frontier town.

THE HELPING HAND

"How far that little candle throws his rays!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge announced the gift of 750 acres of land in the Lake Mohawk region for Y.W.C.A. camps, at a recent budget week luncheon in New York. The name of the giver is withheld at present, Mrs. Dodge said. The Girl Reserve Camp, the junior girls' camp, will have this land next summer, though the senior camp, now at Summit Lake, N. J., probably will not be moved until the following summer. Mrs. William Sloane Coffin reported the total of gifts had reached $202,-067.47.

Free milk for Baltimore schoolchildren unable to pay for it will be furnished by the city through the appropriation of $7000 in the school board budget by the Board of Estimates. Last year the city provided only $1000 for this work, the deficit being made up by the Davy Council, through which the milk was sold to schoolchildren.

Bequests of $3000 to the Brookline Friendly Society and $2000 to the Brookline Anti-Tuberculosis Society are contained in the will of Anna B. Barlow of Brookline, filed in the Norfolk Probate Registry at Dedham, Mass. After provision is made for private bequests, the remainder of the estate is left in equal shares to the Episcopal City Mission and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

One dollar from each of the Knights of Pythias, $1,000,000 in all, has been contributed by the supreme lodge of that order for benefit work among the lepers of Culion Island and to carry on the search for an absolute cure for that dread disease. Part of this fund will be used in the erection of a fully equipped experimental laboratory.

Dr. Samuel Lloyd, treasurer of the Veterans Mountain Camp of the American Legion, announced recently that Edwin Gould had contributed $10,000 more to the maintenance of the camp at Big Tupper Lake in the Adirondacks. Last spring Mr. Gould gave $10,000 toward the purchase of the property. The camp will soon open for the care of tubercualr and convalescent veterans. The buildings have been made habitable all year 'round and one new barrack building with twenty beds has been completed. Another having sixty-four beds will be finished soon. The camp is now occupied by several partly disabled veterans who are helping to put it in order.

The Boston (Mass.) Metropolitan Chapter Red Cross has completed its first series of health talks by radio. These talks were broadcasted once a week for twenty-two weeks from the station of the American Radio and Research Corporation, Medford Hillside, Mass. The final talk of the series was on vacation typhoid. It is probable a new series will be started after the summer vacation period.

During the past twelve months, 121,189 persons were cared for by dispensaries maintained at four hospitals supported by the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies in New York.

Supplied What it Lacked

She was pretty and spoke with a delightful accent. No wonder the cashier's heart beat fast as she handed him a check.

"I'm afraid you haven't indorsed this quite correctly."

"Indeed! No?"

"No; it is made out to Gertrude H. Grey, and you have written 'Gertrude Grey.' "

"Gertrude Grey is my name," she nodded.

"Ah, you don't quite understand me," replied the cashier. "What I mean to say is, you have left out the H."

"Oh, so I have," she exclaimed, smiling sweetly as she took back the check and dipped her pen in the ink. "Age 21," she wrote.—[Chicago News.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY MYRA NYE

"We are too old when we mind trouble."—Shakespeare.

"Madame Caroline Severance, founder of the Friday Morning Club and its first president never minded trouble. Therefore she was young when she died at 94 years of age, just before the World War began."

This statement by Mrs. Andrew S. Lobinger in her review of the life of this pioneer women at the beginning of the all-day celebration of her 103rd-birthday anniversary Friday was a challenge to club women again to go upon the quest for youth.

Of all things, is not the chronicle of a man or woman upon a quest the most absorbing? The shepherds followed the star; Lancelot and the long train of knights bent upon some far, sweet ideal; Ponce De Leon and the fountain of perpetual youth, down to the business man of today, who, in spite of his crisp business look and manner has a quest at the bottom of his every effort and to the club women in quest of the spiritual lever that shall uplift the world.

Yet those on the quest find something else than what they seek, the shepherds the babe; Lancelot a new country and a new romance; Ponce De Leon a Florida; the business man not gold always, but enrichment, and the club woman, youth.

Can the 2500 members of the Friday Morning Club be sure—any one of them—that this woman whom they honor, who was on a quest to honor womankind, ever dreamed that she would be so honored as she was honored Friday? And she found youth at 71.

She was honored by the gift of song Friday morning.

Lawrence Strauss with his artistry gave a recital of song, each number a tone picture set with jewels of diction and word purity. Of all the nineteen songs he sung, for some reason—I cannot tell why, because I am not sure I know—I liked the fourteenth century Old English song, "Lord Rendal."

Mr. Strauss told me that he cut out nine of the stanzas and of the many he sang there was not one too many to show the tragedy, the tenderness for mother, the love alternating with hate for the sweetheart who had poisoned him and still other emotions all strung on the fibers of his mother's heart beats as he said, "I'm sick to my heart," and died. If ever the word silver made bright before the eyes the sheen of silver or love made alive the emotion of love it was in this song sung by Mr. Strauss. To Mr. Strauss diction does not mean to pronounce a word faultlessly—as he does. It means to bring out the spirituality of each word and he succeeds.

"By the stairway, narrow, steep,
Thou shalt climb to sleep;
From sleep to dream and sun once more.
Sleep well, sweet friend, sleep well, dream deep."

Such simple words as these from the lips of this artist made a picture, pulled the heartstrings, awakened love for a friend and satisfied.

Mr. Strauss has followed the quest for music and he has learned to paint with words.

Mme. Severance was honored by the piano accompaniments of Gertrude Ross, who has been on the quest to present in music. California to those who love California, and she has made them love it more by her compositions.

Mme. Severance was honored by the words of Mrs. Lobingier.

Mrs. Lobingier has been on the quest to serve mankind by serving the women of the Friday Morning Club. The end of her quest is not yet, but "the house by the road" will be the new clubhouse. Long ago she found dignity of style in her mode of expression; wit apparently was born with her, refreshing simplicity and directness of thought she has found, and dignity. Friday she sought merely to give information, but she found inspiration and gave that.

It may be that the women who think the end of their quest for youth is in the beauty shops will find that other women who know not those shops at all, who have mothered children; have outdistanced Ponce Dr Leon and like Mme. Severence will find youth at 71 and like her too, after that age, will do their most significant work in the world.

"She made for us noble traditions."

She said at the age of 80 the words that now are craved deep for the facade of the new building and graced a tablet of the old clubhouse for thirty years:

"We dedicate this building to the highest welfare of our homes, our schools, our city, our country and the world.

"We pledge ourselves that nothing human shall be foreign to our sympathy and our helpfulness."

Opera Reading Club.

The Opera Reading Club of Hollywood met Monday morning in the Masonic Temple auditorium when "Rigoletto" was interpreted and sung by a group of artists of recognized achievement.

Dr. Frank Nagel in his clear and keenly sympathetic way played the vivid pictures of the incidents, moods and descriptive atmosphere of this famous love-tragedy, and with fine technique this master teacher so interpreted the disagreeable theme that only the beautiful was impressed upon the minds of the audience.

Lora May Lamport, coloratura soprano, whom critics herald as having no superior on the Pacific Coast, sang with exquisite delicacy the lovely arias of the innocent Gilda. The resonance of this artist's voice seemed better than usual, and her high notes fairly tingled with clearness and certainty.

Lilia Snelling-Farquhar, dramatic contralto with verve and understanding, interpreted the parts of Madalena, while her voice gave the needed depth and richness necessary for perfect ensemble in the quartette.

The role of "Rigoletto" was sung by Amon Dorsey Cain, whose fine dramatic baritone voice possesses quality and range, and great smoothness. His duets with Miss Lamport were exquisite harmony. The part of the Duke of Mantua was sympathetically sung by Raymund Harmon, whose voice possibilities and range was depicted in the contrasting emotions of sadness and tribulations to gladness and exhilaration.

Mrs. Loren J. Curtis presided. The next opera analysis will be Aida on February 5.

Sisterhood of B' Nai B'rith.

The Sisterhood of Temple B'nai B'rith will hold its semimonthly meeting at 2:30 p.m. the 16th inst.

Mrs. Minnie Joffa, the playwright, who is a local woman, whose first play, "Playthings," was produced by Morosco, first here and then throughout the country a few years ago, will read "Anna Christie," by Eugene O'Neil, of which Mrs. Jaffa says, "I unhesitatingly say Anna Christie was the biggest play I saw in New York last season."

Mrs. Morris Stoloff, formerly Elsie Cohen, will sing with violin obligato by Mr. Stoloff.

Rabbi Magnin will speak on "The Great Within."

Elysian Heights Civic Club.

Mrs. Augusta W. Urquhart for president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs? Most decidedly yes if it were left to Elysian Heights Civic Club to settle—that is, judging from the hearty indorsement of her nomination made at the last meeting at the home of Mrs. Madge B. Burnham, 1554 Curran street. The club also indorsed the proposed Community Property Bill.

Mrs. M. H. Tehr spoke on "Community Service" and stressed the "constructive use of spare time." Said Mrs. Tehr, "The school house should be the civic center of the neighborhood" and again, "it is not good citizenship not to use the facilities furnished us" by the municipality—the public library being cited as an example. The speaker insisted that "what we do with our play hours can enrich our minds and benefit the community."

Miss Miriam Faddis gave a review of "The Next War" by Will Irwin. A book, according to Miss Faddis, "well worthy of careful reading by thinking people.

Quoting Miss Faddis, it is "a strong plea against propaganda for the bugaboo of the 'Next War.'"

Irwin's panacea for the war mania is some kind of a united body of fifty or sixty of the best nations of the earth into a compact body for the maintenance of peace.

"Call it what you will," said the speaker, "but it must have the two-fold power of compelling the world to an observance of order and the slower process of educating the peoples into a harmony of universal brotherhood."

Card Party and Tea

Woman's League of the University of California, Southern Branch, is to entertain on the afternoon of the 18th inst. with a card party and tea at the Men's University Club, South Hope street. The guests of honor are Mmes. John F. Mead, president of the Hollywood Woman's Club; Grantland Seaton Long, Ebell Club; Andrew Lobingier, Friday Morning Club; Lyman B. Stookey, D.A.R.; J. F. Sartori, Regent of the University of California; Clarence Van Graham, Philanthropy and Civics Club; Helen Matthewson Laughlin, dean of women, University of California, Southern Branch; W. D. Hunnewell, University of California, Southern Branch, and Mrs. John Urquhart, president of the Los Angeles district.

Highland Park Ebell Club

Ernest Bryant Hoag, A.M., M.D., gave an illustrated lecture on "The Hawaiian Islands" before the Highland Park Ebell Club last Tuesday morning. Combined with the lantern slides, which were exceptionally beautiful, Dr. Hoag sketched the history of Hawaii and its development, giving full credit to the missionaries for their wonderful work. "Hawaii," he said, "is the world's greatest melting pot."

Mrs. H. Norton Johnson gave a lecture at 1 p.m. before the Bible section on "The Symbolism of the Levitical Feast."

Next Tuesday is public affairs day, with Mrs. James R. Riggins as chairman. Miss Mary J. Workman will give an address on "Citizenship," and Mrs. J. H. Ballagh will speak on "The Jury From Its Inception to the Present Day."

Tuesday Club of Glendale

The Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale opened the season of 1923 with a splendid musical afternoon. The artists were Herbert Proctor, tenor, assisted by Miss Just, Dr. Frank Nagel, pianist-composer, and Conrad Nagel, actor-reader.

A pleasant surprise for the club was the gift of a very choice rose bowl from Mr. and Mrs. Philip Parker. This was in honor of the time twenty-five years ago on January 9 when Mrs. Parker celebrated her birthday at what proved to be the first meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon Club. The bowl contained $25, one for each year. This is a timely gift and something useful and appropriate will be purchased for the new clubhouse.

The drama section, Mrs. R. E. Chase, curator, will celebrate the tercentenary of Moliere Friday, the 19th inst., at the home of Mrs. Harry Lockwood. The members of the section will give readings from his plays, "Tartuffe" and "The Hypocrite."

Daughters of the Confederacy

All the chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy of Los Angeles and suburbs are uniting in making the Southern luncheon in the Ambassador Cocoanut Grove on the 19th inst. one of the big social events of the year. This luncheon is a reunion in celebration of Robert E. Lee and is given under the direction of the Wade-Hampton Chapter, of which Mrs. McLaughlin White is president and Mrs. Dorothy Romer is vice-president; Mrs. Romer is also chairwoman of the luncheon.

The Daughters of the Confederacy cordially invite all southerners and all who admire the life and character of that great American, Robert E. Lee.

J. W. Anderson will act as toastmaster, and a number of well-known southern speakers are being arranged for by Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Douglas, who is chairman of program.

West Ebell Club

A musical program will be a feature of the next program of the West Ebell Club. The artists are Mrs. G. L. Charette, soprano; Grace Eaton Gow, pianist, and Mrs. W. H. Gunther, pianist. On the afternoon of the 18th inst the drama class will give a card party at 2 p.m., with Mrs. Alfred Gresham as hostess.

Miss Georgia Stark, noted musician, will give a recital at the clubhouse on the evening of the 19th inst., to be followed by a dance. Mrs. S. E. Heller is hostess for the month of January.

Women's University Club

Willa Cather, rated by some critics as foremost woman novelist of America, was presented in personal reminiscence by Miss Marian Lynne at the recent meeting (and, by the way, the name is pronounced with a short a) endured the proverbial early struggles of of the literary section of the Women's University Club. Miss Cather an ambitious and talented girl, although later she was fortunate in her friendships with people of means. As a high-school teacher of English, Miss Cather was considered enthusiastic and inspiring, but not too strict in demanding scholarly work. Accepted on the staff of McClure's Magazine, she showed independence in refusing to do hack work. But when a special series of articles was requested she at length succumbed, though only when the bribe of a European tour was offered. Miss Cather's novels, including "One of Ours," a war story of rare merit, are said to be in almost every case developments from earlier short stories. Miss Cather always aims to let her characters present their own story, restraining herself from comment. Apparently it is this bare objectivity, the simplicity of art which conceals art which has distinguished her among modern novelists.

The popularity of the literary section is largely due to the leader, Miss Nancy K. Foster, known in Southern California as a writer and an instructor in literature. The next meeting will be held on the 18th inst. at 3:30 p.m., in the Women's University Club rooms, Brack-Shops Building. All college women are invited to attend and share in the discussion of Abbe Pierre by Jay William Hudson.

Ebell Club Does Much

High-school boys and girls! Do every one of you know that you have the chance of earning $50 offered as a prize by the Ebell Club scholarship committee for the best essay on "Patriotism"? If you haven't known of it before, there still is time to write it. If you haven't written your essay yet, get busy now! Send it to the Ebell Club, 1719 South Figueroa street, on or before the 18th inst.

Monday afternoon at Ebell Club, Grace Hyde Trine will give a lecture-recital on "Modern American Poetry." Mrs. Trine (Ralph Waldo) is brilliant—versatile. To her pen may be attributed many charming modern poems, an anthology on American and English poets today as well as interesting work in connection with the direction of plays ad pageants. She is one of the leading figures in the Beechwood Playhouse at Scarborough-on-Hudson, the perfect little theater of the Frank A. Vanderlip estates.

That is for Monday afternoon. Monday morning at the Browning department Mrs. Ada McClelland will read a paper on Mrs. Browning, followed by the reading of Mrs. Browning's poems by Mrs. Zoe Ballard Fuller, clever and gifted Ebell member. Wednesday morning is books and current literature, the department under the curatorship of Mrs. Albert Dennison Jack. There will be discussions of current magazines by Mrs. Herbert True, of current poetry by Mrs Zoe Ballard Fuller, and a discussion and criticism of Lothrop Stoddard's Revolt of Civilization by Mrs. Charles N. Flint.

Thursday at the Bible department of Ebell, Dr. Ralph Tyler Flewelling, head of the department of philosophy of the University of Southern California, will give an address on "Whether the Message Be of God."

Californiana, meeting Friday at 10:30, will consider the pioneer life of the Forty-Niners as portrayed by noted writers. Spanish, French and practical relief departments always greatly interest those who regularly attend them.

Photoplaywrights

With fitting ceremony, yet with charming simplicity, newly elected officers were installed in the Photoplaywrights last Monday evening, in their clubroom which was filled with beautiful flowers. As the new officers took their places they were greeted with hearty applauce.

When Mrs. Grace Johnson, outgoing president, officially handed over the reins of government to Mrs. Charlotte C. Hetzel the incoming president many experienced that little lump in the throat—"The King is Dead; God Save the King."—Feeling keen regret for the passing of the old order, mingeld with welcome for the new regime.

Mrs. Hetzel will have as her coworkers during the year 1923 the following: John A. Pelz, vice-president; Mrs. Dorothy Selover, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Catherine Little, chairman of the house and membership committee; Mrs. Lee Barnett, chairman of entertainment; A. B. Broadhead, chairman of review; Mrs. Grace Johnson, chairman of scenario reading department, who will have as her assistants, Mrs. Cartherine Little, Mrs. Marguerite Stevenson, and Everett Frost.

Mrs. Hetzel, retiring secretary, then read the year's report, which was considered in the light of a literary gem, the minutes and the treasurers report.

Mrs. Dorothy Selover, mistress of ceremonies, opened the evening's program by calling upon Messrs. Pelz, Frost, and Broadhead to tender to Mrs. Johnson the sentiments of the club.

Presentation of tokens of regard then were given to Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Hetzel, in the form of Colonial Lady boudoir table lamps, presented by Mrs. Selover, on behalf of the members.

Mrs. Johnson presented Mrs. Hetzel with a large bouquet of flowers, and Mrs. Hetzel to Mrs. Johnson a sheaf of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Johnson gave a farewell talk to the members telling them how she had enjoyed the two years she had been in office. She congratulated the members, not only upon the material benefits during the past year, but upon their spoken resolution to strive to make the club year of 1923 better than the one just past.

After personal congratulations by the members, a musical program was given. Those contributing toward the evening's amusement were: Miss Jessie Whitney, soloist; Mrs. Grace Johnson, soloist; Misses Bovee, songs at the piano; Mrs. Percy, selections at the piano. Dancing followed.

During the evening refreshments were served. The hostesses were: Mrs. Dorothy Selover, Mrs. Catherine Little, Mrs. Ida Jones, Mrs. Lee Barnett and Mrs. Bovee.

How's Your COLD?

As an aftermath of the recent unusual warm spell colds are extremely prevalent. Taken in time, these affections will not become troublesome, but if no remedies are used for a week or so, pneumonia and other conditions of a serious nature are likely to occur. "The Sun" is splendidly equipped to supply the proper remedies to "nip your cold in the bud," and, as the list below indicates, our prices are thrifty penny savers.

'Sun-Beams'

—a column of good cheer

Were you one of the fortunate ones to receive a letter a short time ago containing a brand new, crisp one dollar bill?

I didn't keep that dollar bill and I do not think that any one of the thousand men and women of Los Angeles who received it, did either.

Perhaps you would like to know something about the letter which contained the dollar and then you will know why I did not keep it.

The letter is from F. C. Calkins, and reads partly as follows:

"Here's a dollar! Yes, it's a REAL dollar—nice and clean and new.

Keep it if you want to, after you've read this letter—but I don't believe you will, then.

Here's what it's all about: I've made an investment—of a thousand dollars—in human nature—human kindness. I've mailed a thousand dollars—in a thousand letters to a thousand people picked at random. I have done this because I believe that everyone is really kind, way down inside—that no one is REALLY heartless—and that the only reason why folks do not help where help is needed is just because these needs are not IMPRESSED upon them hard enough.

And that's the mission of each of my thousand dollars—to impress the importance of a need. This thousand dollars is my subscription to the Orthopaedic Hospital—School for crippled children—and I'm investing in the belief that EVERY ONE will come back in the stamped return envelopes I am enclosing—and that each dollar will bring several more—at least another—with it."

What do you think about Mr. Calkins' faith platform: "Everyone is really kind?" I think I know, for since this column was started and I began a search for the many little incidents which occur each day in the Sun Drug stores, that might be used in the "Column of Good Cheer," I discovered a wealth of material to use—more than is possible to use in ten years of writing.

Mr. Calkins did make a good investment and everyone who invests in human nature, finds a return in the smiles and joys which he brings.

the present time, she is dramatic coach at the Sawtelle High School. One of the interesting features in connection with this production is the fact that the two audiences will be asked to name the play.

Five titles have been suggested: "Chains," "Peacock Feathers," "When's Your Birthday," "Just Folks," and "Paradise." The program will contain a ballot on which those attending can vote for what they consider the most appropriate name. The story is a simple one, dealing with New England folk.

The cast will be one of the best that could be chosen from the players that have been listed. It contains Fred Gilmor Brown, … Blauvelt, Edna Holbrook, William … Marjorie Nutter Leveson, … E. One hundred and seventy-five little girls were made happy with the dolls and a great many children had their only candy and toys.

At Pasadena Club

Tuesday last was a day full of good things for the Shakespeare Club of Pasadena. It was the first regular program day since the holidays. The book and magazine section heard a most interesting talk by their director, Dr. Margaret S. Carhart on "Books About People We Should Know." She spoke of "A Daughter of the Middle Border" by Garland as the most valuable biography of the year. She described "The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page," by Hendrick as the most fascinating book she had read in years. She reviewed a number of other books.

At the meetings of the Bible department, the director, Rev. O. P. Gifford, D.D., gave a fine and uplifting talk on "The Divine Diet," using as his text, "Man Shall Not Live by Bread Alone." This is one of the best attended sections of the club. The regular luncheon was served at noon with two after-luncheon speakers. Miss Mary Travilla, a minister of the Society of Friends of Philadelphia, spoke on "The Problems of the New Year." Her talk was most interesting.

Miss Ada Brooks of the Broad Oaks School spoke on "The Girl and Her Desires." Miss Brooks's subject was one on which she was well fitted to speak, having been in educational work for many years.

The afternoon meeting after the usual business was disposed of, was turned over to the chairman, Mrs. H. D. Bentley, who introduced the lecturer, Mr. William Rainey Bennett who gave a talk on "The Man Who Can." Mr. Bennett's talk was not only entertaining and amusing but instructive as well.

The Drama League

Miss Helen Hardison, head of the drama department at Cumnock School will real E. A. Milne's "The Dover Road" at the meeting of the league, Los Angeles branch, Thursday evening the 18th inst. at The Chatteau corner of Lucas and Shatto streets.

This was one of the outstanding plays of last season in New York and has created a great deal of comment in the West where it has not yet been given. It is expected therefore that this will be one of the most attractive programs of the league so far this winter. Any one who is not a member may attend, admission charge for non-members being 35 cents.

State Reciprocity Tea

Second Reciprocity Tea of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be given the 16th inst. at 3 p.m. in the Coffee Shoppe of the Ambassador Hotel. This tea promises to be one of the most delightful affairs of the year. State Regent Mrs. Lyman B. Stookey with a full representation of State officers of the South, will be present.

Dr. Rockwell Hunt of the University of Southern California will speak on "The History of California." Mrs. Gail Mill Dimmitt will sing a group of songs with Mrs. H. W. Rowntree as accompanist. Reservations should be made as early as possible through the reciprocity chairman, Mrs. Louisa Post, 546 Serrano street. A cordial invitation is extended all daughters as this will be the last big D. A. R. affair in Los Angeles before the State Conference in Oakland, March 8 and 9. The monthly council meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. in the Ambassador Theater preceding the tea.

Building Discussion

"To Build or Not to Build" will be discussed at the meeting of the Woman's City Club tomorrow afternoon at the Walker auditorium. The meeting will be for members only.

The monthly membership luncheon was held at the Palais Royal last Tuesday. Dr. Guril Mellenthin, newly appointed director, was in charge, her assistants being Mrs. H. J. Castellaw and Mrs. Paula Burger.

Shop Talk at Press Club

Notable among various worth-while contributions to the shop-talk program of the Southern California Woman's Press Club, Tuesday afternoon, was the sparkling resume by Neeta Marquis, of a recent stay in New York City.

Miss Marquis named Bob Davis, editor of Munsey's, and friend of struggling writers; Don Marquis, the playwright, whose drama, "The Old Soak," is still running to capacity houses in New York; Henry L. Mencken and J. Darling, the cartoonist, familiarly known as "Ding," as the four most significant personalities by whom she was delightfully entertained and made welcome. She spoke of the vitality, humor and modesty of all four men, and of their undoubted high places in the affections of all literary New York.

At an interesting meeting of "The Pen and Brush Club," to which Miss Marquis was given a card by F. M. Holley, one of the oldest established literary agents, she met John Farrar, editor of the Bookman, and Mr. Frank of Century. Ray Long, editor of Cosmopolitan, and Alma and Paul Ellerbe, successful contributors to Century, Collier's and others, were among other delightful acquaintances, of whom Miss Marquis talked entertainingly.

Among Los Angeles people she chanced upon were Kathleen and Charles Norris, Ben Field, new president of the Verse Writers' Club, and Mrs. Mary Mendenhall Perkins, of the local Press Club, who recently sailed for a year's travel in Europe. Her articles appear in "Archaeology" and "World Traveler."

After a talk by Blanche Harriman Verbeck, president of the club, Mrs. Hazel K. Gough, shop-talk chairman, introduced the speakers.

Mrs. Alice F. Peterson talked on gathering material for jungle stories at Panama.

Bliss Carmen, poet-laureate of Canada, talked feelingly of the Indian and his problems and expressed great regret at the movement in Congress to take away the land of the Pueblo Indians, saying that this would lay open to great danger the Indians living under our care. Mr. Carmen read an exquisite poem of his own, entitled, "Manzanita."

Mr. Irving Way, Mr. Carmen's intimate friend, a book publisher of note, also addressed the club briefly.

Mrs. Helen Lukens Gaut, music, chairman, furnished pleasing musical talent for the program.

New members, whose names were read by the president, Mrs. Blanche Harriman Verbeck, are Mrs. Raymond White Hunter, Mrs. Florence Dobbinson, recently elected national president of State Shakespeare clubs, and Frances King Headlee.

The Reciprocity Club

Mexican girls will give songs and dances at the Mexican program of the Reciprocity Club the 17th inst., at the Broadway Cafe at the noon hour.

The speakers will be Mrs. J. D. Eaton with the subject, "Mexico and its Needs," and Mrs. Rega Cathcart representing the Y.W.C.A. who will speak on "The Mexican People in Our City and Some of Their Problems."

South Pasadena Club

Gilmor Brown, director and one of the founders of the Pasadena Community Players, delighted the ladies of the Woman's Improvement Association of South Pasadena with a luncheon talk at their meeting of last week. He presented the idea that each and every one is responsible for the class of plays and pictures produced and shown at the theaters. He further stated that the theater furnished an unlimited field for education.

The purpose of the community theater is to imbue the members of the community with a liking for worth-while drama. The Pasadena Community Theater is fulfilling its mission in a noteworth manner.

At the afternoon meeting, Rabbi Magnin discussed George Bernard Shaw's play "Back to Methuselah." He gave his personal views of the motives which inspired Mr. Shaw's works. Shaw uses a humorous and satirical style to make serious subjects more attractive to his public.

South Pasadena is proud to claim as her own the Pasadena Trio, who furnished a delightful musical program for the afternoon.

Temperance Federation

Los Angeles City W.C.T.U. Federation will hold its monthly meeting on Wednesday beginning at 10:00 a.m. in Temperance Temple, 301 North Broadway. An open forum of presidents and a business session will be held in the forenoon.

In the afternoon Baroness Otilly De Ropp will speak on "Conditions in Russia," her native country.

Reciprocity Program

As a reciprocity program for a sister club, two of Whittier's prominent artists, members of the Whittier Woman's Club, presented an entertainment before the Covina Woman's Club Monday afternoon.

Those appearing on the program were Mrs. Clyde F. Baldwin and Miss Elizabeth Lum. Mrs. Baldwin read excerpts from Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" to a musical setting rendered by Miss Lum. Strauss was the composer. The cosy clubhouse was filled with an appreciative audience, generous in praise of the two artists' presentation. Mrs. Baldwin is a reader of note, having graduated from the Los Angeles Comnock School of Dramatic Art and Oral Expression. Miss Lum formerly was a member of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, is a musician of unusual ability and recently has completed a number of compositions that have been well received by discerning musicians.

Mrs. A. T. Emory, chairman of programs for the Whittier Woman's Club and Mrs. F. B. Gillette accompanied Mrs. Baldwin and Miss Lum from Whittier to Monrovia.

Whittier Woman's Club

The social section of the Whittier Woman's Club, one of its most enterprising activities, departed from the usual methods in the bi-monthly meetings and Monday afternoon served a luncheon at the clubhouse.

It was a violet luncheon, great mounds of the fragrant blossoms centering the tables, the lights being shaded in violet and other appointments also being in this attractive color. Mrs. R. W. Parkin was toastmistress and cleverly introduced Mrs. W. S. Myers, Mrs. Archie Mitchell, Mrs. John De Land, Mrs. W. H. Coulthurst, Mrs. George Mitchell, Mrs. Guy Taylor and Mrs. Kate Lindley.

A musical program of excellence was given by Miss May Edwards, pianist, and Mrs. Garritson Costar, who sang "Smilin' Through," by Penn; "I Long for You," by Loughborough, and "My Bairnie," by Vannah. The committee having the affair in charge consisted of the Mmes. S. G. Floyd, E. A. Albright, Guy Tyler, C. C. Persing and J. R. Halligan.

Hamilton Club

The first regular meeting of the Hamilton Club in 1923 was held Wednesday, the 10th inst., in Suite 1168, Hotel Alexandria, the permanent quarters of the club.

Mrs. H. W. R. Strong called the meeting to order, and gave an interesting talk of an organization that has been formed. Its object is to combat what they call "The Great Conspiracy" to subvert the American government. Mrs. Strong also recommended Dr. M. E. Gates's pocket edition of the Constitution of the United States for study. Dr. Gates conducted a class every Sunday in Washington (D. C.) for the study of the United States Constitution, until his death last summer.

Mrs. L. C. Wood gave a very comprehensive digest of the forty-eighth chapter of the Federalist. This chapter was written by Madison. The keynote of the subject is the relation of the legislative, executive and judiciary departments, each to the other.

Miss Lenore King gave a very interesting paper on the life of Alexander Hamilton, by Fred S. Oliver.

The thought Oliver brings out is that of a great intellect, supported by unselfish purpose, struggling against collosal difficulties, to benefit even its bitterest enemies. An intellect great enough to see beyond the petty jealousies and intrigues of the moment and to grasp the broad ideas of a government, permanent and founded upon the principles of liberty.

Hamilton's official career extended over a period of a little more than five years, from April, 1789, to March, 1797. It seems a marvel that he should have gained any foothold for his policies, according to an Englishman's viewpoint.

NEWS NOTES BY THE NEOPHYTE

This is the day of vigor and brutality. The swift vital touch of Eugene O'Neill is quite the rage at present. How the women love it. The more refined—the daintier—the more sheltered the woman, the better she glories in the stark realism of O'Neill.

Brutality is so fascinating to women anyway, unless they have to come into actual contact with it. This second-hand glimpse of life "as is" has become quite a fad, as evidenced by the club programs this year. If the club women of this city don't know Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie" before the winter is over they will be either blind or deaf or both.

As a single solitary diet, I find "Anna Christie" a little too heavy for the good of my health. It strips me of emotion and leaves me shivering and cold. But not the club women! It is amazing what quantities of it they can absorb without the slightest indication of mental indigestion. Of course, there are pepsin tablets of frivolity which help out, but back to O'Neill they all go. If there is one club in the community which has not had a review of "Anna Christie," will it kindly step forward and receive the Neophyte's kiss on the left cheek as a tribute to its originality. I hand it to you!

OH! MRS. URQUHART

Ready for some gossip? Mrs. John C. Urquhart has made a startling confession. She has thrown discretion to the winds and has waxed terribly confidential. The Neophyte is hoping that it won't affect her candidacy for the office of State federation president—but you never can tell. Confessions are such incriminating affairs, you know.

It was at the Philanthropy and Civics Club that it happened. With a faint blush upon her cheek, she declared that this was the only club to which she paid her dues! The rest of the statement was drowned in the gasps of the members. It was so sudden. Do you suppose a twinge of conscience made her do it? Oh, Mrs. Urquhart, Mrs. Urquhart, what can you expect of the rest of us—the lax and the lazy ones—when you set an example like that?

But wait—there is an explanation! Her memberships in other clubs are complimentary. Oh, what a relief! It did seem too awful, didn't it? Mrs. Urquhart is such a sweet lady, that it's a shame for her career to be blighted by a few unpaid dues. She must be careful, though, how she words her remarks, for shocks are such ghastly things at best, and when the speaker is our choice for State president — well, anyway, we're awfully glad the confession wasn't a real one after all!

"ELIGIBLE" HANDWRITING

What sort of a penman are you? There is a lot to be said on the subject of penmanship. However, most of it is bad. A new type of writing was introduced to the world recently when the speaker at an Ebell luncheon, said, "The most that we aspire to do is to teach the children to write 'eligibly.' . . . Ah, that's the question! How does one do it, this writing "eligibly?" The word eligible has always been associated in the Neophyte's mind with a nice handsome bachelor, you know the kind who is spoken of as "a most eligible young man." He must be perfect as to looks, teeth and morals.

On that basis, whose handwriting is eligible? Is your penmanship good morally? Is it upright and stable? Or does it lack backbone? Is it quiet and well behaved or is it conspicuous? Does it walk backward or does it run away from the paper? There is a lot of downhill writing, too. We couldn't conscientiously call that eligible, could we? No, I'm afraid that very few of us could qualify!

Personally I am at my daintiest best in writing on the typewriter. Then I don't give myself away. In these days of soul-searching when even our handwriting doesn't escape a telltale examination, the typewriter is the best friend we have. After Rita Long, handwriting expert, found out from my writing that I possessed a flow of language which I made no effort to control—well, give me a typewriter every time.

It is possible that the lady of the Ebell Club misstated herself and meant legible instead, but she started on a train of thought, and that is something, isn't it?

Aren't these degenerate days, though? Even the club women have been drawn into the whirlpool of excitement and dissipation. The opening topic of every club president after the holidays has almost invariably been, "I hope that everyone has recovered from the holidays!" What do they mean, these presidents? There seems to be a sinister meaning back of it all. What kind of holiday festivities did these women have, anyway.

It would bear looking into. The nice, plump club women are busy worrying how they can get rid of the Christmas turkey and gravy which is visible in pounds of flesh. They explain painstakingly that they had lost fifteen pounds "and then Christmas came along." Is this Rome or Los Angeles? To hear these nice brainy club women talk you would think that the whole holiday time was spent reclining on a couch imbibing delicate viands.

Their minds have been temporarily sidetracked, that's all. The thought of the nice "foody" time which is past has dulled the real spirit of club life temporarily. But the tide is swinging back. We're getting back our health—"the holidays were so upsetting, you know!"

"WHEN ON THE JURY!"

If it isn't the crime queens, or the movie stars, it's the club women. This rage for capitalizing our "experiences" is getting the best of us. With Madalynne it was different. The published statement of her life and emotions was a desperate effort to set herself up in business again. But the club women! They are called on the jury, and for a month or so endure all the thrills of an inside glimpse of what's what on the seamy side of things—but why inflict it on the rest of us.

There seems to be an epidemic of jury stories and jury programs going the rounds of the clubs lately. Each ex-jurywoman is making capital of her "time" served in the box. What she talks about the Neophyte doesn't know, but I expect that all the lurid details of the courtroom are being brought out for the occasion.

EXPERT IS CENSOR OF NEW PLAY

New York Police Captain Watches Details of Scenes for "Within the Law"

Not every motion-picture studio has a police captain attached to its executive staff!

Yet that is exactly what Joseph M. Schenck has engaged for his Norma Talmadge unit during his production of "Within the Law," now under way at Metro under the direction of Frank Lloyd. This picture will be released through Associated First National.

It isn't for police protection, either, that Capt. Obrien's services were requisitioned and he was put on the pay roll. The studio officials provide adequate safeguard against theft. It was purely in an advisory capacity.

The production is from the stage play, "Within the Law," which is of New York's underworld, with much of the dramatic action taking place in the Tombs. What more natural, then, for the ultimate success of the elaborately staged picture than to secure advice from an expert.

The captain, formerly of the Chinatown squad and familiar with every inch of Manhattan's crime belt, was eminently fitted to give the best technical advice on the Tombs detail to be found anywhere.

Notwithstanding the fact that he came to the Coast exclusively for a holiday, he has found, like many another specialist who came to do likewise, that his services were much in demand.

It will take at least two months to complete production of "Within the Law" and Miss Talmadge has as members of the cast Lew Cody, Jack Mulhall, Eileen Percy, Helen Ferguson, Arthur S. Hull Joseph Kilgour, Lincoln Plummer, Thomas Ricketts, Catherine Murphy and Dewitt Jennings.

NEW RECORDINGS ARE INTERESTING

Among the first 1923 releases of Victor records is an interesting group of soprano solos. Lucretia Bori sings Juliet's Waltz Song from Gounod's opera on Shakespeare's famous drama. Geraldine Farrar sings a composition of Dvorak—"Songs My Mother Taught Me." Galli-Curci sings "Sometime He'll Come," from "Madam Butterfly." Another of Puccini's dramatic, emotional scenes is interpreted by Maria Jeritza—famous "Vissi d'arte" (Love and Music) from Tosca, in which role this artist opened Metropolitan Opera Company's present season.

The fragrance of some long-forgotten pressed flower suggests the character of De Gogorza's latest record, "Madoline." "Mother in Ireland" is a song of the homesick, composed in waltz time, with a melody which John McCormack sings lightly and easily, dwelling here and there with true lyric fire and passion on some high note.

Paderewski, who plays two matinees in Los Angeles this season, offers Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 10. Liszt's intricate and delicate finger machinery is in it—the multiple trills, overhand chord passes that crash like thunder, crystalline glissades and moments like warbling brook-water.

Another piano record is Rachmaninoff's "Waltz," and "Elfin Dance" by Grieg. From a set of piano syncopations, Roy Bargy offers "Pianoflage" and "Knice and Knifty."

Of the violin records, Heifetz plays "Spanish Dance," by Granados, and Kreisler his own composition, a canzonetta, "Aucassin and Nicolette."

Brunswick offers several numbers by the Ukranian National Chorus. This is an organization of fifty-six voices in the extraordinary chorus of singing Slavs. They sing "Over the Vast Plains," (Stentaenko,) "Our Lady of Potshavi" (Koshetz,) "The High Mountain" (Lyssenko,) "Cuckoo, Grey Cuckoo" (Stetzenko) and "In the Jordan" (Stetzenko.)

The New York String Quartet offers two movements, Lento and Scherzo, from the F major quartet by Dvorak. There is also the usual array of male chorus orchestra, band, voice, popular, ballad and dance music. Likewise some new artists have been added to the long list of those already singing for both companies, with representative records from each.

CHANGES FATE DESPITE YEARS

Tusky Jacob

Can a man change his destiny with his beard?

Perhaps.

Tusky Jacob says he can.

Before he shaved his long whiskers and hair, he was one of the patriarchs of the pictures. But since then, he has successively played a convict and a fighting, thieving beggar.

Tusky Jacob is one of the oldest bit players in the motion-picture business. He is 75 years old to be exact. He has done a great variety of roles in his time. He played King Lear in Charlie Ray's picture, "The Barnstromer," Pig-Pen Peter in "The Son of the Wolf," a barfly in "When Satan Sleeps," and a prophet of the wilderness in "The Radiant Beggar," starring Alice Calhoun. Nearly all of these were kindly chracters. And then his fate changed. He decided to shave his beard, and the first role he drew was that of a convict in "Are You a Failure?" which features Madge Bellamy. Now he is playing one of the "devils" of the Montmartre in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

He got his name Tusky because of a protruding tooth, but he lost that long before he said good-by to his whiskers. It was knocked out of his head in a barroom brawl scene in one of the famous dance-hall pictures of yesteryear.

INDESTRUCTO Trunks

THE SEAMSTRESS

My land! Anybody to look at me would think I would be the first one in the world to want to have wrinkles in my face took out in a tuck or anyway so you could get 'em out. . . .

Oh yes'm, I reckon I got a little vanity, but my land! I ain't got near so much vanity for myself as what Lonny—that's my husband—and Isabel Pearl—that's my daughter—have got for me. You see I don't have to look at myself all the time. And they have to look at me all the time they are with me, most. . . .

Well, I know I hear that most anything can be done with a face now. They used to be a saying, "That girl's so ugly she ort to change her face." Everybody knew it couldn't be done. But now! It looks like to me that, if you believe what all them beauty doctors say, a face can be made over.

Well, Isabel Pearl went and looked into it last year to see if she couldn't have a tuck tuck in her face and if I couldn't have them lines took out of my forehead and around my eyes. She found plenty of them cosmetic doctors, or whatever you call them, what would promise anything. Yes'm, they could cut out pieces and fill up hollows and do everything they was to be done. . . .

Charge? My land! They wanted to charge your eyes and your teeth both out. Yes'm they certainly did and then if they should happen to make a slip what could you do about it?

Well, so I says, "Hold on! You just wait awhile before you go and put your money into it. You run right along and consult some good surgeon what has handled a knife and needle and thread long before these fellows ever begun. A good surgeon ain't agoing to take no chance. No'm, and whilst he may be a little old fogy and not up to date, he can tell you about how far you can go between bein' certain of the result and when you begin to take chances. Some of us might be willing to take chances, but we want to know when we begin a-taking 'em. . . .

Yes'm, I do know some bad effects and I know some good effects. Now you take that putting paraffin under the skin, like they did a few years ago. Why, the beauty specialists and them kind of doctors said it was a perfect success. But my land, some of 'em had it done and the paraffin all run to lumps and a surgeon had to take it out and the faces was left scarred something awful sometimes.

My land! When you think what a disgrace most folks considers old age, and the signs of it, either for men or women and how they slave and lie and suffer to keep folks fooled about the years, why you'd think that old age was a punishment sent on us instead of increasing wisdom and a honorable discharge. Yes'm, you'd think that it was a plague.

Ma'm? Yes'm, it is hard to know when to stop wearing pink and baby blue and what shape your neck line ort to be. Goodness knows they's enough worry about dress when you know you can wear most anything. But the trouble is, as Lady Nancy Astor says, not so much in paying enough attention to gitting the right clothes but in keeping your mind on eternally changing 'em.

Now you take a woman what runs to her mirror every day and stops to look in the store windows, every one she passes, and always tries to get the other person to sit with their faces to the light—why she gits turrible fussy about her clothes. She gits 'em made one way and she thinks they are too young or not young enough and she keeps up that eternal changing 'em. Well, now you know that's just misery and it makes the lines come worrying so—

No'm, the boat ain't so very becoming to a woman what's got beyond forty. And—

Ma'm? Why I would have a brown dress if I wanted it, yet and still, brown does bring out the brown spots if a body has 'em like me on the face. There's another thing you got to think of.

Well, when women have all of these worries the minute they begin to show age, is it any wonder that they would be willing to give up their eye teeth (looks like to me the whole world's doing that now anyhow) for something that would make 'em look young all the time?

I want to ask you one thing, though. Now they say that they take out a crescent-shaped piece of skin and then sew the edges together without making a scar. Now that's just where I've got 'em! I cer-tain-lee have sewed long enough to know that you can't do that without puckerin' one side—the long side to the short side. How are you going to help it? I've handled scissors and needle and thread longer than most of them fellows—

No siree! Ruther than take the chances on something I know ain't proved, I'll give up youth. It's a heap more comfortable anyway to just git old natural. And if I'm going to lose Lonny that-a-way, like they say husbands is lost by old age, why I'll just console myself that he ain't much to lose and git over it.

IN FRATERNAL CIRCLES HERE

preme President James A. Batchelor.

Monday, the 8th inst., Victory Lodge No. 1068 held its regular business meeting and initiation. Plans were made for many social events to take place in the near future, prominent among them being the banquet to be given on the 22nd inst. to all members who have secured a new member during the banquet campaign.

Tuesday evening, the 9th inst., Victory Lodge officers and members, accompanied by the supreme officers, the district manager and the Blue Team, motored to Redondo Beach to initiate a class of new members for Redondo and Santa Monica lodges, $50,000 of insurance having been written by them in two months. After the initiatory ceremonies there was a public installation of these lodges, Supreme President James A. Batchelor officiating as installing officer.

"Ladies' Night" at La Grand Lodge No. 9 is becoming so popular and well attended that Maple Hall is taxed to its uttermost for room for the dancers.

Southgate No. 1086, the baby lodge, is growing rapidly and will soon be crowding the older and larger lodges for place. This lodge has elected a splendid corps of officers, and gives every indication of a successful year.

WHAT IS GRIFFITH DOING?

Many Rumors Arise About Plans of Famous Director on Expiration of Present Contract

BY PALEN KLUMDH
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—As soon as he makes two more program pictures D. W. Griffith will have fulfilled his United Artists contract and will be free to spread his wings and someone's pocketbook to make a tremendous spectacle. Beyond these two pictures, which will probably be completed by June 1, his plans are not definite, but he has several projects in mind. One is a tremendous spectacular production to be made in this country, one that would take a year or fourteen months to make; one is a production that he has long planned to make in England; yet another is the filming of "The Fool," Channing Pollock's play in which James Kirkwood is at present starring on Broadway.

Channing Pollock is most anxious to have Mr. Griffith film his play, but when the play was produced it was agreed that it should not be presented in motion pictures until the close of its New York and Chicago runs. It looks now as though "The Fool" would be good for a year or so on Broadway and by that time there is every reason to believe that Mr. Griffith would be deep in the production of his spectacle and not turn his attention to this hokodrama. Still Mr. Griffith is very much interested in doing it and the author wants him to, so it may be arranged.

The rumor that Mr. Griffith contemplates filming Wells's "Outline of History" crops up every little while in spite of his denials. Now it can be laid officially at rest, however, as it is not only denied by the Griffith organization, but the rights to it are said to be owned by the Bray company which plans to present the "Outline" in a series of animated drawings.

He has often talked of filming the search for the Holy Grail and it may be that this is the production he plans to make in England at the completion of his United Atists contract. He is not telling, however.

Whatever his productions in the near future, it is probable that Ivor Novello will be the featured player, as Mr. Griffith has a five-year option on his services and is most enthusiastic over his work. Mr. Novello is the son of two distinguished musicians and is himself the composer of several songs, including the nationally popular "Keep the Home Fires Burning." He has appeared in this country in "Carnival," an English-made production released last year by United Artists. Soon he will be seen in "The Bohemian Girl," which the American Releasing Corporation is handling.

Mr. Novello is playing in the picture on which Mr Griffith has been at work for several weeks. This picture is being called "The White Rose," "X. Y. Z.," or what-you will. Like most Griffith productions, it will have no final title until it is nearly finished.

There always is an air of mystery surrounding the making of a Griffith picture and the present one is no exception to the rule. Yet Mr. Griffith wants it distinctly understood that it is not to be a "mystery" drama. "One Exciting Night," which he recently completed, was his contribution to the spine-chilling drama and everyone who knows anything about Mr. Griffith—and who doesn't—knows that he isn't interested in doing the same sort of thing twice.

The new picture is the first one Mr. Griffith has ever filmed in the locale of his boyhood. He has sent cameramen south to make scenes before, but he has never gone himself to the country he knew as a youth to make a picture. He was born in La Grange, Ky., and it will be in a little town similar to that, that the chief events of the new story will take place. Parts of it will be filmed near there and scenes will also be taken in Miami and New Orleans. Exterior scenes for the picture which is to follow the one now in the making will also be taken while the company is south.

The present story is a similar little tale of community life built around country stores and rural ministers and "butchers and bakers and candlestick makers." At present there are no plans for any big spectacular scenes in it. It promises to be just a nice little program picture distinguished chiefly, if one is to take Mr. Griffith's modest word for it seriously, by the excellence of the cast. Mae Marsh, an old favorite; Ivor Novello, whom Mr. Griffith hopes to make a new one; Carol Dempster, Kate Bruce and Lucille LaVoigne are all in it.

The making of this picture, though in a way one of the minor episodes of his career, is in reality the fulfillment of a long-cherished dream of Mr. Griffith's. Probably every celebrity has that desire to go back to the home town and put the folks in a book or on canvas, or —as in his case—on the film.

Mr. Griffith makes no claims of greatness for these coming two productions. They will represent the best he can do with this type of material—and there are many people who feel that Mr. Griffith is at his best in the simple little intimate dramas. But when he is free to spend much more time and money, he will turn to colossal themes and spectacular sets again.

RUSSIAN PIANIST

The Letto-Russian Literary Society will present Austris A. Wihtol, a Russian pianist, in recital at Symphony Hall, Music-Arts Building, tomorrow at 3 p.m. The pianist has done considerable concert work in the smaller towns on the Coast, but this is his first appearance here.

"ACE" HEADLINES

"An Ace in the Hole" is the title of the Thomas Dugan-Babette Raymond playlet that will headline at the Orpheum next week. It is not a card trick or game episode; the ace is an aviator, and the girl falls for him when he finds the hole in the ground after his fall at her feet.

DISCARDS "ATMOSPHERE"

Constance Talmadge has discarded all the Chinese atmosphere in which she plunged her home during the making of "East Is West;" once more her house looks like the beautiful American home which it is. Her next picture will show her as one of our own girls.

Laurette Taylor Charming in "Peg o' My Heart"

Elsie Ferguson Misplaced in "Outcast" Part

BY HARRY CARR

All the lovely little flapper stars have been challenged in their supremacy by the pictures showing in Los Angeles during the past week.

Elsie Ferguson, Laurette Taylor, George Arliss, Guy Bates Post. To say the least, all of them are out in mid-channel, and have been so for some time.

In the case of the men it was a little different; but Laurette Taylor and Miss Ferguson both appeared in a type of play in which we have been accustomed to see girls gorgeously and outrageously young like Gloria Swanson and Dorothy Gish.

ART VS. YOUTH

It was Art throwing down the gauntlet to Youth.

And did they get away with it?

Well—fifty-fifty; Laurette did.

All things considered, "Peg o' My Heart" was an extraordinary performance. There were moments when Peg looked a little weary and worn; but there were other moments when she didn't look more than 15 years old. Of course, to get this effect they simply burned her up with lights until sometimes her face was like a white sheet.

She was wonderful to me because she was the first comedienne I ever saw who didn't imitate either, Dorothy Gish, Mabel Normand, Louise Fazenda or Mary Pickford.

Her methods were absolutely individual and as much her own as her Irish eyes.

As a matter of technique, Peg was delightful. She scored her effects with a touch as sure and as deft as a great painter laying in colors on a canvas. She didn't make one unnecessary or futile movement.

PEG PUT IT OVER

It was a revelation to me to see that Hoyden comedy can be put onto the screen without acting all over the place—that the impression of impudence and reckless disregard for conventions can be registered with a smile and wink without moving the body.

Personally, Laurette Taylor is not a likable woman; but this picture shows her to be a great artiste of the most subtle and unusual power.

Elsie Ferguson is always a fascinating screen figure—if for no other reason than that she always carries such an air of snobbishness and distinction. A sort of you-can-look - but - you - mustn't-touch air.

In the "Outcast," she appeared as a fallen woman of the streets. She was about as convincing in the part of a street walker as Will Hays would have been.

To be plain, it was a very bad picture.

PROPS IN EVIDENCE

It was badly dressed. Big hunks of furniture stood around and you could only see such portions of the actors as chanced to project around the corners of mountainous settees, couches and other gargantuan objects. The backgrounds

"PASSION," "Deception" and other productions notwithstanding, the best picture that Ernst Lubitsch has made has never shown in this country. At least, it is the one that Lubitsch personally likes best. Whether we generally would approve it is, of course, another question. We may never have the chance, because Lubitsch himself is afraid that the American exhibitors will dislike it. So there you have all the likes and dislikes in the case, and you can draw your own conclusions. Personally, I have a rather consuming curiosity to view the film.

The name of it, Lubitsch tells me, is "Puppe." Translated, this means, approximately, "Dolls." There is no ulterior motif behind the title as far as I can determine. The film is really just a fantasy and as such it has had a large appeal to the public in Europe.

The curious part of it is that the picture was one of the least expensive ever made by Lubitsch. The settings were executed on paper. There was no construction. The characters were played by human beings, but the backgrounds were fantastic and unsubstantial as the walls of a Japanese house.

Lubitsch said that this, one of his innovations, met with great disapproval from the foreign exhibitors. When they came out to inspect his picture in the making they wanted to know what in thunder was the idea of the paper settings. It seems, however, that when they found the public liked the film they were very keen for everything about the picture. Lubitsch mentions incidentally that exhibitors are pretty much the same the world over, despite the vaunted culture abroad.

We suggest the following addenda to the revisions on photoplay titles for the last year:

"Yo Gods" and "Piffling Women."

WHAT gets our goat is that despite all asseverations to the contrary the program pictures are still with us. However, Harold Lloyd declares that the day of spectacles is not over.

THE latest popular game in Hollywood is shuttlecock and battledore. It is being played regularly now at the Pickford-Fairbanks studios. Doug Fairbanks, Raoul Walsh, the director, and Ernst Lubitsch are the principals in many contests, and Mary sometimes takes a racket.

The game is played somewhat after the fashion of tennis and seems to fit in quite well with Doug's plans for reviving history, because it is several centuries old.

WHILE we are on the subject of Doug and Mary, it might be well to mention that Mary suggested her concept of an ideal cast for "Faust," when she mentioned the other day that she wished that she could have John Barrymore for the title role and Douglas as Mephisto. Doug is, however, scheduled to start work very shortly on his pirate story.

WHILE the votes are being cast for the director of "Ben Hur," with Marshall Neilan apparently running strong, it might not be inopportune to chronicle that George Fitzmaurice has lately been mentioned in connection with "Ben Hur." There is something worth thinking about here, although since Mr. Fitzmaurice has signed with Samuel Goldwyn, there might be some slight objection, technical or otherwise, to his making a picture for the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. Admittedly, this reflects an odd situation, though one that could probably be amended through a little diplomacy.

YES, the weather has been lovely for picture-making. And many of the companies have been taking advantage of this. It really begins to look like a big movie year.

SOMEBODY has suddenly discovered that "Rupert of Hentzau" is named after the villain in the story. That's an unheard-of situation, of course, but I don't know what they are going to do about it. They can't very well change the title to Rudolf Rassen-

Day by Day Our Comedies Grow Sadder

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

DAY by day, in every way, our comedians are getting gentler and gentler! Charlie Chaplin and Harold Lloyd indeed are becoming regular tear chasers. We tremble now even for Larry Semon and Buster Keaton—when are they going to turn refined on us? I hear that Larry, indeed, has a sneaking desire to play "Deburau" and that Buster is going to turn Beau Brummel.

Mack Sennett's bathing girls are now bathing in tears! Phyllis Haver, Marie Prevost, Mary Thurman, all the lovely, joyous throng, have dry-cleaned their bathing suits and offered them to the poor.

Even Louise Fazenda, hardy perennial in the laugh garden, is going to die in her next picture—"Main Street."

"Oh, I've got to diet so I can die!" Louise told me gleefully the other day.

And Mabel Normand in a costume play. She of the negligee in "Fatty and Mabel Adrift," when the villain pushed the house into the ocean.

They all seem to be longing for tragedy relief in their comedy lives.

But I'll tell you right now—when Ham Hamilton plays "Hamlet," I'm going to quit.

Alas for the furtive few of us who still like to laugh without also paging the tear, who love to see the fat man topple and the villain hit on the head with the resin beer bottle!

How times are changed, indeed! The custard pies have retired from the garbage pail of art, one might say, to their rightful, dignified place in the pantry, and the last siphon bottle I heard of was taken to the museum along with the slap stick.

THEATRICAL DEPRESSION JUST MYTH

Business Good for Right Kind of Attraction, Says Advance Agent

That much of the so-called depression in show business exists solely in the imagination and that this theatrical season has been unusually successful for the attractions the public demands, was the statement of Thomas Hodgeman, advance representative for Kolb and Dill, who are coming to the Mason Operahouse for an engagement of one week beginning Monday, the 22nd inst., who arrived in this city today. While here he will complete the arrangements for the presentation of Aaron Hoffman's latest comedy, "Now and Then," in which, Kolb and Dill play.

"Since Kolb and Dill have been on tour this season," said Mr. Hodgeman, "we have failed to notice any depression in theatrical business. Kolb and Dill have not suffered from a box-office stringency, in fact it has been to the contrary and the same might be said of such shows as 'The Bat,' Mitzi in 'Lady Billy,' 'Six Cylinder Love' and a score of others which have caught popular fancy.

"Kolb and Dill believe they have found the acme of all the offerings they have displayed on the road for many seasons in 'Now and Then,' which, amid gales of laughter, endeavors to depict conditions existing just prior to and following the passage of the muchly mooted Eighteenth Amendment. They carry their own orchestra as usual."

FORTUNE SPENT ON FILM SCENE

"Hearts Aflame" Forest Fire Appalling Spectacle

Eight Weeks' Preparation for Ten Minutes' Shooting

Stars Took Long Chances in Making Picture

Eight weeks preparing for ten minutes of actual shooting.

That is what the Reginald Barker company filming "Hearts Aflame," which comes to Loew's State today, was confronted with.

In the screen it is a wonderful spectacle. Magnificent, terrifying, impressive, appalling, like a fiery monster it turns twenty acres of beautiful pines to a cinder-strewn waste.

"I wouldn't duplicate that forest fire for $1,000,000," said Barker. "Knowing now what broad chances have to be taken to stage such a spectacle, I wouldn't want to accept the responsibility for the lives that were risked. The thing kind of grew on all of us at the time, and we took chances without thinking, but to stand off now and plan the event with a full knowledge of the risks to everybody involved is quite a different matter."

FORTUNE EXPENDED

A hundred men toiled for two months, a fortune was expended in lavish sweeps, and a group of film favorites headed by Anna Q. Nilsson, Frank Keenan, Russell Simpson and Craig Ward risked their lives in order to give the public one of its greatest thrills. The fire will probably stand in film history, for no one is likely to take the chances that Barker did in making the scenes, to equal it.

From a technical point of view the fire was a stupendous project. Obviously it could not be started in the woods, so months were spent in uprooting pine trees in the mountains and carrying them to the mouth of Pacoima Canyon, where a forest was specially built. The flames were electrically started by eleven switches, each having twelve spark connections in the forest. As red fire will not photograph at night, a total of 6000 gallons of gasoline were used to spray the trees and soak the tons of excelsior serving as underbrush, to produce flames that would pick up on the film.

Twenty cameras constituted the lens battery, and forty spotlights and three great Army searchlights lit up the players in the various parts of the burning forest. The electrical equipment used approximated $85,000 in value. In order that Mr. Barker might be in constant touch with every camera and forest ranger station, a field telephone service was installed and a former signal corps operator was put in charge.

"I think that the most welcome sight of my life was when Miss Nilsson and Mr. Ward climbed gingerly out of the locomotive after their wild ride through the burning forest," said Mr. Barker. "What I suffered from the time I was notified by telephone that the engine had started into the flames at the farther end of the forest until I saw it emerge like a salamander at my end cannot be measured in words. And Miss Nilsson and Mr. Ward, who played the parts of engineer and fireman, no doubt suffered at least twice as much."

HOLLYWOOD GRAD A HIT AT STANFORD

Word comes from Stanford University that Harold Minsky, a Hollywood High School graduate, has developed into the dramatic "find" of the year, using the leading part of Jimmy Gubbins in "Three Live Ghosts" to display his abilities.

The play, which is now being produced at the Morosco, was presented by the sophomore class last quarter, and the then-unknown Minsky was chosen for the lead from almost a hundred candidates. At Hollywood he had taken the lead in the "Pirates of Penzance" and three or four other productions, but his first appearance at Stanford was as one of the "Three Ghosts."

COMEDIANS ARE GROWING SAD

ago of 1918 I went out to the Chaplin studio to find Charlie raging up and down the stage, teeth clenched, and tears in his eyes, as he wrinkled over a new gag that was just a-borning. Nowadays he smiles as he tells you how, pretty soon, he is going to play the tragic Pagliaccio!

How careful Charlie used to be about those gags! I remember one hot day when he was making "A Day's Pleasure," and the tar in which he was supposed to stick, in the Ford scene, just wouldn't jell. Out romped Charlie to mix the near-tar himself. And when he got through it stuck, too!

We suspect now that Charlie is going to park his pants and his cane permanently, and come out in his next picture wearing trousers and a Fedora. Probably he won't fall down once. We may as well face it. No more will Charlie stoop to pick up an imaginary fluid dollar: No more will his nether integuments cause him comic worry; no more will the suspense of his comedy depend partly on his suspenders.

"The Kid" was the best picture that Charlie ever made, and it was full of whimsicalities, as well as of ordinary gags. Who will ever forget heaven and the feathers flying when the angels scrapped? That's the sort of thing we remember rather than the near-sad stuff about the child.

AND "GRANDMA'S BOY"

So, too, "Grandma's Boy" was a work of genius. But Lloyd did not top it with the more psychological "Dr. Jack." It isn't the psychological twist of autosuggestion that we remember so well in "Grandma's Boy" as it is those kittens licking the grease off the young swain's boots. Grandma was a wise old dear, but we shall have forgotten her long after we remember the young lovers tumbling into the stream when the big pig arose beneath their feet.

When Fatty Arbuckle dropped his two-reelers and went in for the five-reel comedy dramas he let me in on the reason for making the change.

"It's just about a hundred times easier," he confided, "to make a comedy drama than a two-reeler, and you get more for it. Also you get more fame. People go in and laugh when they see you in a jazz comedy, but all the same they think to themselves, "Pooh, that's nothing! He's just a boob.' Yet you have worked yourself sick and your brain is fagged thinking up new gags for that comedy."

Then there's another reason. The war is over now, and nobody has anything national to feel sad about, so they are making the comedies sad. Sad, and so "ruffined," as Trixie Friganza says.

There's nothing left for Arbuckle, it seems, but the funny stuff. Nothing, that is, smiled Chaplin the other night, except the nursewife in "East Lynne" or "Juliet"!

Even as this story goes to press we find that Fatty is to play "Handy Andy." No doubt he will be awfully peeved because there isn't a single tear in the whole thing.

Will Revivify English Drama of Golden Age

"The Knight of the Burning Pestle," the second dramatic production of the season's series being presented by the Literary Theater of Los Angeles, at the Ebell Club auditorium, under the auspices of the University of California Extension Division, is scheduled for three performances, two on the evenings of January 20th and January 22d, and one special matinee for children at 2:15 Saturday, January 20th.

An especially attractive feature of the play is its revival of old English morris dances.

The principal roles will be distributed to players as follows: Mr. Frayne Williams, "Merrythought;" Mr. Richard Sloan, "Jasper;" James Ferguson, "The Citizen;" Liston M. Oak, "Venturewell;" Julia Hayes, "The Knight;" Carolyn Woodhall, "Citizen's Wife;" Vivian Hoops, the saucy Elizabethan boy; Doris Schukow, "Princess Compions;" Olive Pape, "Luce."

GROWN-UP ROLE GIVEN TO CHILD

New York 12-Year-Old Wins Leading Part in Play by Precocious Ability

For the first time in the history of the screen, it is believed, and perhaps also in the history of the stage, a 12-year-old girl has played a leading ingenue role in an important drama.

This young actress is Miss Violet Virginia Blackton, daughter of J. Stuart Blackton, and her work in her father's production, "The Virgin Queen," marks the beginning of her career as an interpreter of principal roles in film plays. Since she was a tiny tot little Miss Blackton has appeared on the screen and at the age of 3 showed a decided aptitude for the work. With her small brother, Master Charles Stuart Blackton, she has played in many American productions made by her father, and the "Blackton Kiddies" had a large following with American audiences before they came to England.

They attracted particular attention in a series of country life films produced by Mr. and Mrs. Blackton at their country home at Oyster Bay, Long Island. These included "The Little Strategist," "A Summer Idyll," "The Diary of a Puppy" and "The Little Scout," and were shown with great success throughout the United States and Canada.

PROVED HER ABILITY

Miss Violet Virginia was tried out for the role of Lettice Knollys, favorite lady-in-waiting to Queen Elizabeth, in "The Virgin Queen," for so careful a producer as Mr. Blackton would not permit even his own daughter to play a role unless he was convinced of her ability to act with success. And it was quite departing from precedent for a small girl to essay the part of a grown-up heroine.

After a few rehearsals and screen tests, the young lady convinced her experienced father that she had ample technique and dramatic ability to interpret the role effectively, and in appearance she well represented the vivacious maid. Mr. Blackton's other daughter, Miss Marian, also plays in "The Virgin Queen," having the role of Mary Arundel. Miss Marian made a great success in the comedy, "The Skylark," at the Central Theater, New York, just before coming to England.

Violet Virginia had the role of the heroine, as a small girl in "The Glorious Adventure" and that of the eighteenth century dancer in "A Gypsy Cavalier." She wears some beautiful gowns in "The Virgin Queen," which, like all the other costumes in this production, were designed by Mrs. Blackton. Little Miss Blackton is fond of outdoor sports. Outside the studio no one would suspect her of being an actress or of knowing anything about studio life.

NOVEL OF SMUG FOLK SCREENED

"Main Street" Script Ready for Filming; Small Town Foibles Exposed

Since the announcement was made that Warner Brothers would film Sinclair Lewis's widely discussed novel of the American small-town, "Main Street," a good deal of curiosity has been expressed as to just what treatment of the book would be necessary to make it suitable for the screen, whether changes would have to be made or whether it could remain the same as it is. Now that the final script has been completed, an interview with Julien Josephson, the writer who has adapted "Main Street" to the screen, and Harry Beaumont, the man who will direct it, should be particularly timely.

"When we started to go over the first script of 'Main Street' Mr. Beaumont and I spent some time discussing exactly what attitude the motion-picture should take," says Josephson, "whether it should be the cynical, ridiculing attitude which it is generally conceded the book takes or whether it should be more of a humorous view and we decided that we would lighten the spirit of the book somewhat because the screen is a more obvious and less subtle medium than the printed page and instances in the book which were softened by pages of description would naturally be far too harsh for the screen and put the characters in an entirely different light to that intended by the author."

OLD CALIFORNIA LIVES

Accurate Restoration of Early Day Conditions Makes "Suzanna" Authoritative

Eight months were spent in research work by Mack Sennett before he ever began actual filming of his California romance, "Suzanna," in which Mabel Normand is starred at the Mission Theater.

In spite of the fact that this time consumed many actual dollars, the producer insisted that every detail and record necessary to a true reproduction of atmospheric backgrounds should be in keeping with the 1835 period, and, therefore, he sent F. Richard Jones, director, and Sanford D. Barnes, technical head of the Sennett studios, into remote corners of the "Sunkist" State in search of properties and records.

On a cattle ranch between San Diego and Monterey, Dick Jones found two oxcarts which had been discarded and were about forgotten by their owners. They were dug out of a mass of age-worn things of long ago. Another important find was a carriage, the very style of which it was feared could not be had, stored away in a hayloft of a barn on the big estate adjoining the historical "Ramona" home, in Peru, Cal., known as Camulos ranch.

Through the courtesy of the present occupants of Ramona's birthplace and home, permission was granted to have this important relic of early California days shipped to the Sennett studios for use in "Suzanna." Jones and Barnes were also permitted to photograph Ramona's chapel and other rooms and exteriors of the old dwelling, which had been continually occupied for more than a hundred years, so that they might accurately be reproduced on the big Sennett stages.

Interior and exterior decorations of the various buildings adjacent to the patio, in fact, the entire architecture and all plans of the Rancho del Fernando, where much of the action takes place, have either been loaned or rented by old Spanish families, so that in the aggregate the finished production carries the beholder back to the early days, which it represents, and allows them to feel the parts the players are living.

WHEN FATHER WAS WRONG

Being a Symposium of Instances Where Parents' Projects for Progeny Failed

"Don't obey your father and mother." It is not strictly true that experience has proven the incapacity of parents to choose careers for their children, but it is surprising to look over the list of celebrated screen players and see how many became great through not adopting the vocations selected for them by their elders.

Charles de Roche, great French actor recently brought over by Paramount, veritably had to fight his way on the stage. His mother offered him money not to do it, and his father, for thirty years an official of the French steamship lines, wanted him to follow shipping.

The mother of Theodore Roberts, one of the best-known character actors on the screen and stage, implored him to become a Unitarian minister, and his father urged him to go to sea first and become a marine lawyer afterward. The elder Roberts, long master of a ship plying out of San Francisco, had had a great deal of litigation in his business, and hoped his son might be able to handle it for him.

If Gloria Swanson had followed the safe and carefully-protected career suggested by her relatives she probably would have gone into business of some kind, but she certainly would not have become the celebrity in Paramount productions that she is.

DOROTHY AS PORTIA

Dorothy Dalton's father nearly prayed that she become a lawyer and go into the legal end of the real estate business, and if she hadn't "disobeyed" her parents she would probably be mulling over dusty legal documents, writing "whereas the party of the first part, etc.," instead of living at the Ambassador and getting a salary big enough to hire a small army of real estate lawyers.

Looking down over the long list it appears that the kind of vocations preferred by the parents of these world-famed artists were invariably of the conservative sort. The mothers generally leaned to the ministry for their sons, and to the teaching profession for their daughters. The fathers were for something solid and substantial, not infrequently along the lines in which they had themselves succeeded. Very few were for anything in which their offspring had to take "chances," and there were some, even in this enlightened day and age, who looked with uneasiness on the calling of actor, thinking that perhaps it was not quite respectable.

As it is they are world celebrities, and one of the interesting features of stars' careers is that, in many instances, they are actually supporting the parents who, in the old days, tried to lay out their lifework for them and show them how to become successful and prosperous.

dyll and the Princess Flava or anything like that.

Tony Moreno ran up against the complication first, it seems. He was, you may remember, originally preferred for the part of Rupert. Tony was all puffed up about the contract, too, when the role was originally offered him, and he heard what a big picture Selznick anticipated making. Then he read the script. He came down to the Selznick office in great excitement.

"I can't play this role," he said.

"Well, why not?"

"Why, I couldn't take a chance on it. I've made my reputation playing heroic roles, and here you have me doing a lot of nasty intrigue, and being killed off before the end of the picture."

So—that's that.

RUSS PLAYERS PLEASE GOTHAM

the height of a man (the sets are a great relief from the prevailing New York fashion in sets, which are high arched like the Pennsylvania Station. See "Hamlet," "Will Shakepespeare," "The World We Live in" for example.)

The plot thickens with more conspiracy, the Godounoff and Prince Ivan Shouisky have a heavy argument, after which the Tsar makes them quite literally kiss and make up. Then he dismisses Godounoff and after inquiring whether he is or is not the Tsar, he puts his head in his wife's lap, by way of getting consolation for his inefficiency. The role of the vain and vacillating Tsar was handled with such art by Ivan Moskin that it is difficult to perceive how any mere knowledge of the language in which he spoke could have added anything to his performance.

In the fourth act, the Tsar signs a paper betraying Prince Ivan, learns of the conspiracy to put away the Tsarina, recalls Boris, and calls it a day. The curtain goes down on his passionate distaste of the proceedings, and on such acting that there should be a new adjective to describe it with. The old ones that we—I—have been using on different things all this winter are not going to do for the Moscow Art Theater Company.

FINDS CROWN GALLS

The square in front of a Kremlin cathedral, Act Five, makes the entire company remain to pray, as seems eminently fitting. We get the news there, in midpageant, that everything in the entire plot has gone to pot and the Tsar, left alone with the Tsarina, bemoans the fact that he ever had the job of being Tsar thrust upon him.

All of which conveys next to nothing of the means by which the Moscow Art Theater has come and seen and conquered—but they have, and their appearance at the Jolson Theater is, to use a mild phrase, an epoch-making event. And so, good American luck to them.

There have been eight plays in New York this season in which there have been plays within plays—though one of the encysted dramas was a movie.

"The Torch Bearers," "Merton of the Movies," "Six Characters in Search of an Author," "Hamlet," "The Last Warning," "Sally, Irene and Mary," "Johannes Kreisler," and last, but not least, "Will Shakespeare." Of these "Merton of the Movies" was the most amusing and "Six Characters" the play one would most regret not having seen.

At the Authors' League dinner last Sunday night a chorus of well-known writers including Rita Weiman, Samuel Merwin, Leroy Scott, and Beatrice Fairfax danced in the costumes of Shakespearean roles to a ditty sung by Eugene Lockhart, impersonating Will himself.

"Everywhere I go, there's a Shakespeare show! But I get no royalty." Which contains the germ of a sad thought for the philosophical.

And speaking of Shakespeare, the incidental music by Deems Taylor in the Wintrop Ames production, is as they say, alone worth the price of admission. The whole Elizabethan spirit is in it.

were so objectionably obtrusive that you couldn't keep your attention on the scene; your eyes kept wandering away to the jim-cracks on the wall behind. Also the scenery was so arranged that it cut off the picture in layers like a wedding cake.

I imagine that Miss Ferguson may have been somewhat to blame for this, because in one scene she absolutely wrecked what should have been a charming effect with a Spanish shawl by wearing a flowered instead of a plain gown to set it off.

Some of her close-ups were ghastly and made her look very old and worn.

To cap the climax, the story was "purified" to the point of absurdity.

Chet Withey, who directed this picture, is regarded as one of the best; and no doubt these deficiencies were due to conditions beyond his control.

Standing before it a transference is felt to the Flowery Kingdom of China with its beautiful and charming princess, imprisoned in bronze body of a bell by a wicked magician.

Through the efforts of her affianced husband, aided by a friendly spirit, a talisman was found to thwart the magician's spell. Down on the ground flowed the bronze of the bell, and before them, in all her beauty stood the dainty princess of the Flowery Kingdom. And the prince and princess lived happily forever after.

It is up to the beholders to believe or not this tale of the princess of the Flowery Kingdom. But whether they do or not, the beautiful ancient Chinese colors in which the tale is told, the fascinating dragons, the talisman of the tulip and snake and all the other parts make up a bewitching mural.

LIFE JUST ONE THING AT A TIME

Louise Fazenda Can't See Why People Think It is Complicated

Louise Fazenda says life is a one-piece garment. She simply can't understand people who think it is complicated.

"If one sells groceries, that's that. Or writes, or paints, or stenogs, that's that, too. But you don't have to mix things," she declares.

Nobody ever had to be more things all at once than Louise Fazenda in her current comedy for Educational which Jack White is supervising and Bob Kerr directing at United studios. The first demands on her talent was some acrobatic stuff that would worry a specialist in the up-in-the-air art. With risk to limb and weight yes, the scales are telling a sad story — the comedienne accomplished feats that would inspire a "big hand" at a vaudeville show.

One afternoon this week was a record session of falls, Miss Fazenda taking fifteen, literally speaking. From the ridiculous she passed quickly to the sublime, for in the next sequence of the comedy she was a fiery steed for four children, none of them sylphs. Her speed around that set with the quartet on her back would have put to shame the most ambitious horse on the Tiajuana race track.

Miss Fazenda looks weary as the result of so much versatility. She admits, however, that it is one of the funniest comedies in which she has ever appeared. She is cast as an immigrant who passes the customs only to have her troubles multiply when she enters a household as nursemaid and entertainer de luxe to four young terrors!

Most pretentious sets ever constructed for a short subject picture have been built at the United studios for this picture, a Louise Fazenda special as it is called, the second in a series for Educational.

LARGEST STAFF

Buster Keaton has the largest scenario department of any individual star in Hollywood. Jean Havez, Thomas Gray, Joe Mitchell and Clyde Bruckman are preparing the Keaton comedies.

NEW THEATRICAL ENTERPRISE HERE

Claire Morris

Further development of Los Angeles as an art center is one of the aims of the new Los Angeles Theater, now being organized. The organization is along somewhat the same lines as the Literary Theater, the objects being to put good theatrical entertainment before the public. Headquarters of the Theater are maintained in the California Building.

The first program will be given some time next month, although the name of the first play has not been officially announced yet. Plays being considered for future production are "Don't Park Here," "The Spenders," "Crooked Gamblers" and "The Guest of Honor." Miss Claire Morris will take leading roles in the productions.

MAID IMPORTANT

Usually the role of a maid is considered rather thankless in pictures because it is more or less self-effacing, but Bernice Frank, who has appeared as a maid in several Paramount productions, finds that the role has brought her a golden opportunity. In "Grumpy," the maid is a very important character in the story, and William De Mille awarded the coveted part to Miss Frank, who had played maids in two of his previous productions.

SELZNICK FILM FORCE KEEPS BUSY

Two Important Productions Under Way at United Studios

With two of the biggest productions of the year under way, the Myron Selznick production forces, located at the United Studios, are now going full blast, and is one of the most active producing units on the west coast.

The two Selznick productions now in the making are the screen version of Sir Anthony Hope's novel, "Rupert of Hentzau," which is being directed by Victor Heerman, and the screen version of Robert Chambers's novel, "The Common Law," which is being made under the direction of George Archainbaud.

"Rupert of Hentzau" has passed its second month of production, and Director Heerman is now working on two big exterior sets which have been erected on the United lot. As the story is laid in a mythical kingdom, practically every exterior location and background has to be especially constructed.

Work on "The Common Law" is progressing rapidly and the production is scheduled to be completed some time in February. A mammoth set, representing one of New York's most famous cafes, is being erected for this film, and Director Archainbaud is preparing to shoot scenes in which several hundred extras will take part, after which the company will go out on location to work for several days.

UNFORTUNATE GIFT

Some admirer of Harry Meyers who makes his home over in China sent Harry a set of Mah-Jongg paraphernalia and it is worrying him no little bit. "If it was like poker and all those little sticks counted for money that would be fine, but besides having about a million parts the whole darned thing is printed in Chinese and that's one language I can't talk." Harry is hoping for relief though because it is reported that Florence Vidor, who plays Carol in "Main Street," and who is on the Warner Brothers lot, is a wiz at the game and she will be there this week.

IS HEADLINER AT SYMPHONY

Lew Cody

"Secrets of Paris," screen version of Eugene Sue's world-read novel, "The Mysteries of Paris," with Lew Cody in the title role, starts its second week at the Symphony today.

Tales going the rounds of the studios these days are not complete without the mention of Lew Cody's name. He is credited with the lead in a new Paramount feature. Goldwyn is exploiting him in a feature in which he plays the leading role, and he is known to be toiling daily in "Rupert of Hentzau," the most pretentious thing that Selzinck has yet attempted.

While Mr. Cody has in "Secrets of Paris" what he claims to be the finest role yet assigned to him, in this particular picture he is closely crowded for honors by almost every other member of a remarkable cast. William Collier, Jr., who seems to have inherited all of the dramatic ability of his distinguished forbear, is seen in the part of Francois, a keen-witted Apache youth. Mayflower, the waif, is portrayed by Gladys Hulette, whose rapid climb to fame was recently signaled by her splendid performance with Richard Barthelmess in "Tol'able David."

Playgoers of a decade ago will remember Effie Shannon—playing Mme. Ferrand—whose name was coupled with Otis Skinner, Herbert Kelcey and other famous stars of the legitimate stage. And then there is Rose Coghlan, whose prominence on the American stage dates back to the days of our grandparents and whose portrayal of the exacting role of Owl, despite her seventy-one years, throws a chill into the heart with its cruel delineation. Beautiful, impetuous Dolores Cassinelli is seen as Lola; Walter James as the schoolmaster; Harry Sothern, nephew of the famous E.H. Sothern, as the hunchback, and J. Barney Sherry as the chancellor.

Staff Member to be Honored by Universal

A signal honor is to be given a member of the Universal staff, with the inauguration in the western division next Sunday of Armstrong week, as a tribute to Edward Armstrong, assistant general sales manager.

Armstrong has been with the Laemmle organization for ten years, having worked himself up to his present position in that short time from road man in one of the eastern offices. His fair play and good fellowship made him popular among exhibitors, and showmen of this territory are lining up 100 per cent with Universal during the week of the 21st inst., as a token of their appreciation for Mr. Armstrong, according to C. L. Theuerkauf, general manager of the local exchange.

Armstrong is assistant to A. A. Schmidt, general sales manager, and has charge of eight western offices, including Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Denver, Salt Lake, Butte and Spokane.

ADD TO CAST

William Quirk, former star, director and comedian, has been added to the cast of "Glimpses of the Moon," Alan Dawn's production for Paramount now in the making at the Long Island Studio, with Bebe Daniels, Nita Naldi, David Powell, Maurice Costello and Charles Gerrard in the principal roles.

HISTORIC VAMPIRE FLAPPER

Salome Prototype of Girl of Today. Says Nazimova; Balked Desire Motive

"Salome was a flapper."

Nazimova, the star whose newest and most elaborate photoplay "Salome" starts today at the California Theater, made the above statement. She says that the girl who did the original dance of the seven veils was not an overstuffed siren with the contours of a valentine cupid, but that she was very much like girls that one sees foxtrotting at junior "prems," and sitting on a stool eating sundaes in any college town.

"She was a barbaric young girl out of control emotionally," said the great Russian star, "and when you have said that, you have described the flapper, which the world seems to think is a new specimen of woman."

BALKED DESIRE

"What drove the daughter of Herodius to demand the grisly sacrifice of the head of John the Baptist was desire unrestrained. When she saw this man, stalwart of body and unyielding of will, she acted very much the same as a spoiled child that wants the moon. As long as she could not kiss him while he was alive she had him killed to get her desire. The terrible intensity of her "heart-hunger" is pictured wonderfully in Aubrey Beardsley's drawing of Salome holding the head and her hands and gloating, 'J'ai baise ta bouche'—'I have kissed your mouth.'"

At this point the reporter stirred uneasily as he recalled that he had a date with a flapper that evening. The thought came to his mind that the flapper might insist on the kissing and he decided that if such were the case he could submit immediately to her craving. After all, discretion is always the better part of valor and one can't get along very well without a head.

Madame Nazimova seemed to read his thoughts and she quickly added. "Of course the modern girls won't carry it that far."

Merry-Go-Round Revolves About Viennese Theme

The novel, "Merry-Go-Round," written by George Lewys in collaberation with Erich Von Stroheim from the famous director's original continuity, is nearing completion. The authors are working on the seventeenth chapter and all of the Prater scenes and those at the court of Franz-Joseph I are practically done. The story of the Countess Gisella, the most fascinating character in "Merry-Go-Round," whose adventures were censored out of the script, takes up six whole chapters in the book, tracing her descent from aristocracy to the slums of Vienna through various machinations of the Von Stroheim mind. The book promises much in spiciness.

It is planned to publish it simultaneously with the Universal Super-Jewel release of "Merry-Go-Round" in early spring, when an opportunity will be given the public to see an original script in novel form beside the ravages of censorship in the screen version.

George Lewys is the author of "The Charmed American" and various romances of European life and manners.

KIDDIE'S CAREER IS METEORIC

In Three Years Jackie Coogan Wins First Place Among Artists

At the age of 8 Jackie Coogan today is regarded as the greatest child star the stage or screen ever possessed. His meteor-like screen career has taken place within the short period of three years. It hardly seems that long since "The Kid" was given the screen by Charles Chaplin.

In those three short years Jackie has made considerable money. He stands in line to make considerable more during the coming years. Reports prove that never before in the history of man has a child attained so great a public position at the tender age of 8 as has little Jackie.

And never before has a youngster collected so many royalties from so many different articles as has young Mr. Coogan. Other "pocket money" offerings come from the sale of Coogan clothing, Coogan caps and hats, Coogan carts, Coogan dolls and statuettes, Coogan candy boxes, Coogan writing tablets for school use, Coogan—oh, what's the use to name more? Suffice it to say, Jackie Coogan's commercial contracts represent a small fortune in itself.

FRIEND OF NOTABLES

Also in those three brief years Jackie has met and has christened the friendship of others famous in the public eye. Among these people are Jan Paderewski, Victor Herbert, John Phillip Sousa, Mischa Elman, Ethel Barrymore, John Barrymore, David Warfield, Anna Pavlowa, Georges Carpentier, governors, mayors, senators, editors, writers—dozens of famous men and women in almost every walk of life. Many of them write Jackie regularly.

When Jackie grows up into manhood, he will have much to look back to and much to think about. His parents are saving all of the films in which he appears, and some day Jackie Coogan, a grown man, will sit by his fireside and look upon a screen at the celluloid antics of the then grown Jackie Coogan.

COMPOSER LAUDS WOMEN PLAYERS

Ruth Zenner

"Such a very great improvement; so marked an advance in interpretation, breadth of tone, and in general character of program since last I heard it; Los Angeles should give its heartiest support to its Woman's Symphony Orchestra, declared Joseph Carl Breil, well-known American composer conductor.

Mr. Breil, who has just returned here after five years in New York, during which time his opera, "The Legend," was produced at the Metropolitan, was attending a rehearsal of the orchestra. Henry Schoenefeld, under whose direction the orchestra has made such steady progress since he assumed the baton over it thirteen years ago, immediately passed on the words of commendation to his players.

The close friendships of this body of women, the eagerness to make any sacrifice in order to attend rehearsals, the fine enthusiasm and individual artistry, promise much for the beauty and finish of the two programs which the orchestra will present on Wednesday evening, January 24, and on April 18, both at Philharmonic Auditorium.

A brilliant feature of the first program will be the soloist, Carl Gantvoort, the young and gifted baritone, formerly with the Boston and Savage Opera companies. He sings with the ease and certainty of attack, which proclaims the born singer, while his strong dramatic instinct gives added charm. In his aria from "Elijah," Mr. Gantvoort will be accompanied by the full orchestra of seventy-five instruments.

Directors of the Woman's Symphony Orchestra this year are: Mrs. Otto H. Neher, president; Gertrude Barrett, vice-president; Dora Fothergill, corresponding secretary; Leah Witzel, financial secretary; Adeline N. Glidden, treasurer; Grace S. Avery, Beatrice Ricketts, Mae Marshall, Grace Hamrick and Bertha Manley.

AN ART COSMOPOLITAN

There are motion-picture directors and more motion-picture directors. Now become acquainted with one a little out of the usual run—a globe-trotting one. The name is John S. Robertson, and it is one of the biggest directorial names in the game. It will be a much bigger name as a result of his excellent work in directing Mary Pickford in her elaborate revival of "Tess of the Storm Country," which starts today on its tenth week at the Miller Theater, replacing the starring vehicle which placed her in the front ranks of screen luminaries nine years ago.

Prior to assuming the duties of presiding over the megaphone for America's sweetheart, Mr. Robertson had an extraordinary career of seven years' duration—a protracted era of going to a great many parts of the world to follow his calling of making photoplays. Among the more notable of his American-made films were: John Barrymore in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," Gareth Hughes and May McAvoy in "Sentimental Tommy," and Elsie Ferguson in "Footlights."

HANDS ACROSS THE SEA.

Not so very long ago, he took the cruise across the Atlantic to direct David Powell and Ann Forrest in "Love's Boomerang" in London. But, after making about half of the picture there, he decided the manuscript called for some real French locale, hence he took his entire company to France, spending several weeks making exteriors for this picture.

Later in romantic Spain, he made "Spanish Jade," in which David Powell was this time co-starred with Evelyn Brent. On another occasion he invaded Italy in quest of some true Italian "atmosphere." Moreover, his voice through the megaphone has been heard by hard-working exponents of the histrionic art in Old Mexico, Canada, Cuba and Belgium. Therefore, it is not in the least far-fetched to call Mr. Robertson a real globe-trotting director.

And, of all the places in which he has followed his calling, he says he liked Southern California the best—while directing Miss Pickford in "Tess," which he regards as one of the greatest stories ever unfolded on the screen.

MONTAGNE BUSY

There is an air of mystery surrounding the activities of Edward J. Montagne, associate editor of the Selznick scenario department, who recently completed adapting "Rupert of Hentzau" and "The Common Law" to the screen. Montagne is busy these days pounding on the typewriter, but he refuses to reveal the subject matter upon which he is expending his energies.

SUCCESS MOROSCO'S HISTORY

Broadway Playhouse Record One of Triumph; Many World Hits Given Premier

With a total attendance record of approximately 5,000,000, the Morosco Theater this week ends its first decade as a Broadway institution. Ten years ago this week Oliver Morosco opened the theater with a company consisting of Frances Ring, Orrin Johnson, Thomas Meighan, Grace Valentine, Beatrice Nichols and others playing "The Fortune Hunter."

Following a year of stock production, Morosco played traveling attractions and then leased the house to "Broncho Billy" Anderson for a season of musical comedy production. In 1916 Morosco returned to his original policy of stock productions — interspersed with presenting original plays—and has followed this plan since, "Three Live Ghosts," the present attraction, being the 104th straight consecutive play that has been put on under this policy.

Going back over the records it is found that the average length of the Morosco runs was five weeks. Standing out as two world's records, however, are the thirty-seven weeks which "Civilian Clothes" ran and the thirty-six accredited to "Abie's Irish Rose." These were two of the original productions staged here to gain national prominence. Among the others were "The Brat," "Help Wanted" and "So Long Letty."

Among those who have appeared on the Morosco stage are Al Jolson, Florence Reed, Douglas McLean, Maude Fealy, Mary Servoss, Richard Dix, Edmund Lowe, Charles Ruggles, Juliette Day, Charles Meredith, Howard Hickman, Harrison Hunter, Kitty Gordon, Charlotte Greenwood, Harry Mestayer, Walter Catlett, May Boley, Frances White, Forrest Stanley, William Desmond, Carol McComas, Maude Fulton and William Rock.

DRAMA STUDENTS READY FOR SEASON

The students' stock company of the Wallis School of Dramatic Art will begin the 1923 touring engagements by presenting the three-act comedy, "My Rich Uncle," at Pomona, next Friday evening, for an Eastern Star society, at the Masonic Temple.

In that cast will appear Merrill Cellars, Walter Moon, Herbert Lehman, Walter Prohaska, Elizabeth Webb, Ruby Jones and Leda King. This and other companies of this organization will have in repertoire the following dramas and comedies: Wilkie Collins's "The New Magdalen," a three-act emotional drama; "A Jelly Fish," a three-act comedy; "The Truth at Last," a three-act drama; "Up in the Air," a three-act comedy; "All for a Million," a three-act farce comedy, and enough one-act plays, comedy sketches and song and dance stunts to make up a full evening's vaudeville program.

During the coming year this company will be able to provide as in the past, varied entertainments for societies, clubs, lodges, etc., both in and out of the city.

Beach Stuff

Beginning this afternoon, The Birds of Paradise Revue now under the leadership of Bobbie Fitzsimmons, late of New York City and Boston, will put on an entire new Revue, "Safety First."

To all lovers of the beaches in Southern California this offering should prove an attraction, for the ever popular Venice is brought into play with its Pike and all the concessions.

Bobbie Fitzsimmons promises that Jack Miller and Fritz Fields will have all the opportunity to "show off" in the world so the most exacting 'comedy hounds" should be satisfied.

Hi Jinks at Burbank

A carnival of musical joy will be offered Burbank patrons by the Hi Jinks company in its latest entertainment. Promise is made that Lee Bud Harrison will have the funniest character part of his career, and that George Clark will suffer more than ever. The production is filled with speedy comedy interest from beginning to end. Every member of the cast is to be given special opportunities, with Dolly Daye, Ben Dix, Mae MacCrea, George Crump, Kenneth Kemper, and others leading the special musical numbers.

The beauty chorus, with several new charmers enrolled, will prance upon the electric runway in an entire new and effective series of costumes.

Special pains have been taken to stage the production as spectacularly as possible. The large facilities of the Burbank stage make this possible. Several surprise numbers are included in the new show.

Story of Climbers

When Hank Browne "struck it rich" in oil, and made a million, Lizzie's troubles began. She became Elizabeth, went to an exclusive boarding-school, and found herself excluded because she had no crest. Mother went to England, and bought one. Daddy ran for Congress, and Lizzie captured a real nobleman. Alice Calhoun tells the story in "A Girl's Desire."

The cast may be termed an all-star cast, as such well-known players as Lillian Lawrence, mother of Ethel Grey Terry; Warner Baxter, Victory Bateman, who played with Sir Henry Irving; John Donnelly of opera fame, and one of the greatest favorite actresses of her time on the legitimate stage, Lydia Yeamans Titus, the original "Sally In Our Alley," head the list.

"A Girl's Desire" will be the cinema attraction at the Hippodrome Sunday for a week's run. The vaudeville program will be headlined with attractions for young and old. Maude Fox, and her canine circus, featuring "Dan," the talking dog, will be a treat for the kiddies. The Aerial Bartletts will present "A Revolving Surprise," replete with thrills. The colored Jackson trio will entertain in their own original way. Murray and Park have some nifty nonsense to exploit, interspersed with singing numbers. Esmeralda and Webb will present a musical and singing oddity, and the Fitzgerald duo are barrel-jumpers and sensational gymnasts. World news and comedy photoplays will complete the bill.

"Emperor Jones" Thrills

A really worth-while attraction will be offered at the Mason Operahouse for one week beginning tomorrow night, when Adolph Klauber presents the most remarkable drama of our day, "The Emperor Jones," written by Eugene O'Neill, son of the late James O'Neill, creator of "Monte Cristo," and played by Charles S. Gilpin, an actor who rose to world fame in one night, and was voted by the Drama League as one of the ten greatest contributors to dramatic art during the past season.

O'Neill's royal tyrant as interpreted by Gilpin caused a tremendous amount of comment from dramatic reviewers. Many critics could not name an actor for comparison to Gilpin; a few of the older ones compared his work to that of the elder Salvini, but all agreed that no other actor of the present day has demonstrated the same high degree of dramatic skill in expressing the human emotions.

Live Ace in Hole

If you ever play with "An Ace in the hole," you'll enjoy immensely the act by that name which Thomas Dugan and Babette Raymond will use to headline the Orpheum bill opening tomorrow. If you do not daily with the pasteboards you'll like it just the same. This is a skit in which Thomas meets Babette via airplane, and from then on it travels on the wings of the morning.

Another feature of the new bill is proffered by Charles B. Middleton and Leora Spellmeyer in a bit of western atmospheric playing. "Lonesome Land" is its title. Guy and Pearl Magley are a new sort of dancing team, whose stepping is out of the ordinary; she has beauty and frames it in appropriate and fetching costumes, and they have dances that are all their own. Frank Ward proffers his dancing dollies, too, but they are, while human, not divorced from himself. In other words, they are constructed on his own nimble fingers and are the real novelty of the terpsicherean realm. Les Keliors have a mystery act that goes by the name of "And That's Not All." And then there are Scanlon, the Denno brothers and Scanlon, in a quartet feature. Bobby Folsom, the effulgent, with Jack Denny and their superb band, and Billy Dale and company in Parisian skit are held over.

Comedy at Hillstreet

The coming week's bill at the Hillstreet Theater shows an array of comedy talent that far surpasses any program of its kind that this house has yet offered. George McKay and Ottie Ardine will present their new offering, "The Night Watchman."

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" is a boiled-down version of the farce that Florence Moore made famous, both in New York and on the road. Helen Goodhue plays the Polly Hathaway role and is a riot of fun. A miniature musical comedy will be presented by James P. Conlin and Myrtle Glass called "The Four Seasons and the Four Reasons."

Anyone who has seen Neal Abel, the man with the mobile face, will remember with delight those wonderful negro stories he tells and how expressively he tells them. In "Hoops My Dear," the Juggling Nelsons will present the most carefully trained, highly educated and thoroughly submissive set of hoops in the world. "The President of the Face Trust" is the title destowed upon Ed E. Ford, who performs contortions with his face that will make one think it is made of rubber. As an added attraction George McKay will stage an afterpiece under the caption "All in Fun," in which all the artists on the bill take part.

Comedy will also feature the cinema program, for Doris May will be seen in her latest comedy, "Up and At 'Em," said to be a cyclone of fun that should cause gales of laughter. Another chapter of "In the Days of Buffalo Bill;" International News; Aesop's Fables, and an Eddie Barry comedy also will be shown.

Three Headliners

The incoming Pantages show claims three headliners—the Russian dancer, Ivan Bankoff, with his partner, Beth Cannon, and his pianist, Cliff Adams; Cecil Cunningham, who starred with the Greenwich Village Follies in the East, and the Maunaloa Sextet. Bankoff is known here both personally and artistically, and the only advance notice required of his coming is the mere mention of his name.

The name of Cecil Cunningham means more in the East than in the West as she won her laurels in the big cities of the Atlantic Coast, but her present tour of the Pantages circuit shows that San Francisco likes the same kind of songs and comedy that captures New York, and that Portland and Seattle are no different from Boston and Philadelphia in their vaudeville tastes.

The Maunaloa Sextet is a new musical organization that has quickly gained vaudeville popularity. In a comedy sketch by Willard Mack will appear Les Morgan and Beryl Gray. The title "Bungalow Love," has a California sound, but the plot, based on the popular eastern sport of commuting, is entirely novel. The Leach Wallin Trio in a slack-wire comedy, and Kaufman and Lillian in a cross-fire comedy, complete the vaudeville list. Frank Mayo returns to the Pantages screen in his latest drama of the South Seas, "The Altar Stairs," a story of a hero who fought his way to the altar of happiness.

May Cloy, Who will appear in Kolb and Dill show, coming to the Mason next week.

Dog Is Skeptic; Doubts Fortune Script Brings

Pal, the pedigreed pet bull terrier, had been so well trained about it not being real good dog manners to eat meat and chicken in the house that Carter DeHaven had a hard time trying to have his dogship devour a cooked chicken while filming "A Waggin' Tale."

In one of the episodes Pal purloins a chicken from the ice box and devours it. When DeHaven began directing Pal to go ahead and eat the chicken, the dog would look hungrily at the delicacy and then walk away. He could not believe that it was his good fortune to eat the dainty morsel.

Finally, after much direction and much persuasion, Pal was finally prevailed upon to eat the chicken and when he started, oh, boy, how he did wade into that fowl!

Pal made no distinction between the light meat and the dark, but gulped it all down with great greed and gusto.

Pal plays a very important role in "A Waggin' Tale," which is Mr. and Mrs Carter DeHaven's eighth comedy for F.B.O. release. It is being filmed at the Powers studios with Carter DeHaven, who, aside from co-starring in the production, also wields the directorial megaphone.

"BOB 'EM GOOD" CUT

The first prints of "Rob 'Em Good." Hunt Stromberg's burlesque starring Bull Montana, were shipped to New York last week. More than 40,000 feet of film were shot for this comedy and cutting it down to 2300 feet was no simple matter. Announcement of the local showing will be made within the next few days.

DUNNING SYSTEM
Improved Music Study for Beginners. A Heart to Heart talk with teachers.
Are you satisfied with results in teaching beginners? Are you satisfied to let another year pass without availing yourself of the opportunity to possess a Musical Training, which, as hundreds of teachers who have taken the Dunning five weeks course declare, "open to them a new world in music." Can you afford not to possess a systematized plan of instruction which will increase 100 per cent the standard of efficiency among your old pupils and bring you a larger following of new ones? Progress is the Demand of the Hour. Hundreds of teachers have found in "The Dunning System for Beginners," the very essence of success for a life work in the five weeks normal course, which Mrs. Carre Louise Dunning will give in Los Angeles, Feb. 15th. Booklets and full information given. Address Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles.

MUSICAL

OFFER CHAMBER MUSIC

SAN FRANCISCO SOCIETY IN LOCAL CONCERT

Making their first local appearance in many months, the San Francisco Society of Chamber Music will present a concert at the Gamut Theater next Friday evening.

This organization played at the Coolidge festival at Pittsfield, Mass., last September, and created much favorable comment. On that occasion they played the difficult Ravel Quartet for strings, at the close of which the audience rose and cheered the beautiful work. This number will be included in the Los Angeles program.

Among other numbers on the program will be the Kreisler quartet for strings and the Bach Suite in B minor for strings and flute. These works have not been played before in this city.

The society includes Louis Persinger, first violin and musical director; Louis Ford, second violin; Nathan Firestone, viola; Walter Ferner, violoncello, and Elias Hecht, flute. The organization is here as the guest of the Los Angeles Society of Chamber Music.

Balsbaugh Soiree

Theodora Pfaffiin Balsbaugh, dramatic soprano, formerly soloist with Ysaye, will hold her second soiree on Thursday evening, the 18th inst., at her home.

The vocal numbers will be given by Mrs. Joseph Campbell, Mrs. L. B. Slossom, Miss Esther Burrowes, Miss Josephine Campbell, Miss Ruth Nicholas and Miss Balsbaugh. Julian Pascale and Miss Lilliam Weintraub will play some of their own compositions.

Mrs. Ernest Nicholas will be the accompanist.

"Tristan and Isolde"

"Tristan and Isolde," the fine love opera, composed by Richard Wagner, will be given by Dr. Bruce Gordon Kingsley on Sunday evening, the 14th inst., at Symphony Hall, 232 South Hill street. Assisting him is Mme. Anna Sprotte, prima donna, whose inspired portrayal of the role of Brangaene in Europe placed her in the front rank of grand opera exponents. The music grips the listener from the first moment the pulsating chromatic harmonies are wafted through the air. Among the masterpiese numbers on the program are the "Prelude," "Seaman's Song," "Tristan the Hero," "Drinking of the Magic Potion," "Dreams," "Love Duet," "Brangaene's Watch," the "Night Song," "Tristan's Vision" and "Love Death." The entire story, acting and mythology, is explained and illustrated with a wealth of imagery for which Dr. Kingsley is justly famous.

Scheherazade Suite

For the sixth popular Sunday afternoon concert at Philharmonic Auditorium on the 21st inst., Conductor Walter Henry Rothwell has arranged a program that undoubtedly will appeal to all classes of music lovers. His selections cover a wide range of composers of the classic and modern writers of Russian, French, German and Italian schools. The program will open with the very popular "Scheherazade" suite (Rimsky-Korsakow;) Serenade from Impressions of Italy" (Charpentier;) with viola solo played by Emile Ferir, first viola of the orchestra, and conclude with the Prelude to Act III, "Lohengrin" (Wagner.)

The soloist for this concert will be Miss Florence Ringo, the popular San Francisco soprano, who makes her first Los Angeles appearance at this concert. Miss Ringo is a native Californian, born in San Francisco. After several years' study in her home city, she completed her studies in New York, where she made her debut in recital. Miss Ringo will sing Verdi's "Ritorio Vincitor," from "Aida," and "Romanza" from "Adriana Lecouvreur."

Whistles for Church.

Homer Mendenhall, whistler, will be a featured attraction at Temple Baptist Church this evening. He will whistle a selection from Il Trovatore, Evensong (Easthope Martin,) and Consolation (Mendelsshon.)

Mr. Mendenhall, who possesses an unusual range of four octaves, is a product of the California School of Artistic Whistling, and is much in demand in Los Angeles and Monrovia, his home town.

Other whistlers from the school who have recently filled dates in and around Los Angeles are Viola Cusolito, Peggy Warren and Dorothy Winters, child whistler.

Dorothy Edouart broadcasted from The Times radio station last week, as did Mary Margaret Downey of Hollywood.

Bids Farewell.

With an entirely different program the Irish Regiment Band bids farewell to Los Angeles this afternoon at the Philharmonic Auditorium. The program will open at 3 p.m. and the prices will be popular corresponding to those of the Philharmonic Orchestra Sunday afternoon popular concerts.

This organization from the 150th Canadian Regiment, one of the first to go overseas, and which during its service abroad gave a number of concerts in London, is just finishing on the Pacific Coast, the last lap of a transcontinental tour of America.

The soloists for this afternoon include Miss O'Leary, soprano, Jean McNaughton in Irish folk dances, Piper Trenholme, William Tong and Sergt. R. E. Everson, cornetists.

Pupils Perform.

A recital by Norman Earl Mohler, aged 14, assisted by his brother, Orville Ernest Mohler, pupils of the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music and Arts, was given Friday evening in Los Angeles Conservatory Hall, 1500 Figueroa street. Norman is a violinist, and Orville plays the cornet.

Plan National Observance

A national music week in 1924, and regularly every year thereafter, is a possibility as a result of questionaires sent out by the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music. May is favored above all other months for the observance. Music week has been such a success in the ninety-four cities that have tried it so far, that it was decided to determine if a national observance might not be instituted.

Composers for Players

New possibilities in music for the player piano are revealed in an account of the work of Dr. Edward Schaaf of Newark, N. J., who for many years has been writing music expressly for this instrument. The limitations of the ordinary piano, speed and the fact that the composer can write only as much as two hands can play, do not apply to the player piano. Dr. Schaaf makes use of unbelievable speed and the bases, middle, and upper registers simultaneously.

Composer at Monrovia

Alexander S. Thompson, formerly at the head of the music department of the Ohio University at Athens, O., and before that in the same capacity at Iowa State College at Ames, is resting in Monrovia with his wife, where he is at present choir leader of the Monrovia Baptist Church. Mr. Thompson has a number of original compositions to his credit.

Both Soloist and Director

William E. Ooley is one of the few concert artists who possesses unusual ability as a director as well. He has a thorough knowledge of interpretation which has been given him in experience as a soloist on the concert stage. He is director of music for the First Baptist Church, directing one of the largest choirs of the city. On Christmas Eve this choir of sixty-eight voices gave, "The New Born King," by Loveland.

Mr. Ooley was appointed to succeed the late Joseph Dupuy as director of the Occidental College Male Glee Club. His voice is of lyric quality and from the lowest to the highest tone there is never a sign of strain or effort on the part of the singer. His programs are always rendered in a pleasing fashion because of the ease with which he sings. He has the ability of shading the most delicate tone, and has the necessary volume of tone to sing the most dramatic passages where such is demanded.

An Opera a Month

Manuel Sanchez De Lara, opera coach and conductor, will present a different grand opera each month by his own organization of fifty singers. The next performance, the second of the series, will be given Friday, the 26th inst., at the Gamut Theater, will be "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci."

Last month "Rigoletto" was given with so much success that many persons who attended immediately reserved seats for the next production.

During the coming season many operas will be given by the company in other cities, in high school auditoriums, for students who are studying the stories of the operas.

Nyiregyhazi to Play

Merle Armitage of the Fitzgerald concert direction announces a second Los Angeles recital by the remarkable Nyiregyhazi. At this second appearence, Nyiregyhazi will play an entirely different program. Several other Southern California cities will hear him before he goes East after playing at the Philharmonic Auditorium again on Thursday evening, the 25th inst.

Features at "Discovery"

Clare Forbes Crane, gifted planiste, who will be the feature attraction to Grauman's Sunday morning "Discovery Concert," needs no introduction, for since her musical debut before Los Angeles audiences two years ago at a Grauman concert, she has firmly established herself as a musician of rare attainments. Her work is brilliant, marked by marvelous technique and excellent interpretative powers. She will play Shopin's Ballade, A flat, which is the best known of this composer's ballads, being gay and full of beautiful melody and rhythm.

Another special feature to the program will be Richard Callies, well-known 'cellist, whose paying invariably attracts keen interest, for he realizes the most magnificent possibilities of his instrument. His offering will be the ancient Jewish melody of exquisite charm, "Kol Nedrei," and Van Goen's "Scherzo."

L. Castellucci, wizard of the xylophone, is another popular artist and his selection will be Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2." Esteban R. Gradjeda will appear in a cornet solo, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson et Dalila," and a trio of operatic arias, played by Jeannette Rogers, flute, R. Callies, 'cello, and Will Carroway, piano, will be an entertaining feature.

Mozart Classic Coming

Of supreme importance in local musical circles is the announcement of the coming presentation of the Mozart classic "Cosi Fau Tutte," or "school for lovers," which is to be given here soon under the local management of Grace Carroll Elliot. An all-star cast, headed by the American soprano, Irene Williams, and including Lillian Palmer, Judson House, Leo De Hierapolis and Pierre Remington, together with Stuart Ross at the piano, has been chosen by William Wade Hinshaw of Metropolitan Opera fame. The original libretto, in Italian, was written by Da Ponto and the English version was written by Rev. Marmaduke E. Brown and Henry Edward Krehbiel, veteran New York musical critic. The comedy is charming and the music is Mozart at his best. It is an interesting fact that the Metropolitan Opera gave "Cosi Fau Tutte" last winter, and the production was one of the distinct triumphs of the operatic season.

Great Overture Used

One of the most dramatic overtures ever written wil be the opening number of the musical program that starts today at the California Theater, Carli Elinor conducting. The Semiramide overture is a work of refreshing vitality and cumulative climaxes. It was created by Rossini, who used Voltaire's tragedy "Semiramedis" as an inspiration for this masterpiece.

When Gounod wrote "Berceuse" he put into it all the tender and heart-touching melody that a mother can put into a lullaby. Played first as a duet for the violins and then responded to by the cornet and flute it makes a very praiseworthy interpretation of this appealing cradle song.

Davis Faculty Grows

Alice Forsythe Mosher, soprano, who achieved a pronounced success on the program of last Sunday's concert with the Philharmonic Orchestra, has been the latest addition to the teaching force of the Davis Musical College. Much may be expected of one who presents the musical ability and artistic attainment, such as the public has been shown by her splendid performances.

Mr. Sol Cohen, the popular violin virtuoso, head of the violin department, is a most occupied artist. Mr. Cohen appeared on Thursday night at the Philharmonic Auditorium with the Cadman concert and was heard in a recital at San Bernardino Tuesday night, for the Harmonic Club. Aside from the large class under his instruction, and the many public appearances, Mr. Cohen finds time to score a number of screen productions for the Ince interests.

Dr. Eugene E. Davis, pianist and founder of the college, continues in the same excellent efficiency with the additional members of a noteworthy faculty—Mrs. Louise Carola Davis, vocalist; Henrietta M. Russell, piano; Dr. Ray Hastings, organ; Mrs. B. C. Perkins, harmony and composition; Bela A. Adams, flute; Melita C. Swartz, violin; Lulu Muller, piano; Max Carrol, cornet; W. M. Marker, Hawaiian instruments, and a number of other recognized teachers and artists.

AROUND THE PLAY WORLD

Theodore Kosloff in "To Have and To Hold," Grauman's Rialto.

Nazimova in "Salome," California.

Charles S. Gilpin in "The Emperor Jones," Mason.

Richard Barthelmess in "Fury," Kinema.

Alice Calhoun in "A Girl's Desire," Hippodrome.

Forrest Stanley in "The Pride of Palomar," Grauman's.

Evelyn Vaughn and William S. Rainey in "The First Fifty Years," Egan's.

"Boy" Leyton, the timid second mate of the "Lady Spray," whose rough old father, the captain, hates him for his docility. The whole nature of the boy undergoes a change, however, when the old captain casts aspersion on Minnie, a Limehouse slavey who was won the love of the boy. Dying, the father tells a story that sends the boy on a quest which tests his metal.

Dorothy Gish gives one of her most appealing characterizations as Minnie, while Tyrone Power is splendid and convincing as Capt. Leyton. Others whose artistry contributes materially to the high caliber of this production are Pat Hartigan, Barry Macollum and Jessie Arnold.

STORY CARRIES LESSON

Loew's State Theater is offering Reginald Barker's "Hearts Aflame" as the cinema attraction and Max Fisher, king of symphony and syncopation.

"Hearts Aflame" is an adaptation of Harold Titus's novel, "Timber." Barker has woven into the romance and drama the patriotic idea of the preservation of one of the country's greatest assets—its forests. Headed by Anna Q. Nilsson and Frank Keenan and with Craig Ward as leading man, the cast embraces such notables as Russell Simpson, Richard Tucker, Stanton Heck, Baby Richard Headrick, Lee Schumway, Walt Whitman, Martha Mattox, Ralph Cloniger and Joan Standing.

Other features include Rose Perfect rendering "Madame Butterfly" in English, and who will be assisted by eight tiny Japanese dancers. Miss Perfect has been called "the Mary Garden of the Pacific Coast."

"SALOME" IS ARTISTRY

Destined to be as popular as it is artistic is the Nazimova production of "Salome" which opens at the California Theater today. This picture from the point of view of both artistry and entertaining qualities sets at rest the widely spread and erroneous idea that pictures made with an eye always to the beautiful, slight dramatic force. It argues and proves that the best in art is the best in entertaining; and that real art, being simple and unfailingly faithful to life, is perceptible to all.

"Salome" will bear study by all makers of motion-pictures and if the movie going public wants art and entertainment combined, it will find the combination here in a superlative degree.

The eminent Russian actress, with her husband, Charles Bryant, and Natacha Rambova most capably collaborating with her as director and art supervisor, respectively, has achieved something of which she and all who were associated with her may well be proud.

LAST WEEK OF "TESS"

The Miller Theater continues the showing of Mary Pickford's new "Tess of the Storm Country" another week, which absolutely will be its last.

Mr. Miller had booked for showing starting today a new print of Rodolph Valentino's famous "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which is held over on account of the tremendous business being done by the recreated Grace Miller White success starring Mary Pickford.

ERIN MUSICIANS WILL PLAY TODAY

The Irish Regiment Band will appear here at the Philharmonic Auditorium, for a final concert today.

This celebrated band, the only musical organization exclusively Celtic in the United States, will have besides a complement of seventy-five members, a special group of soloists, which including an Irish singer, Irish folk-dancer and the famous Pipe-Major John Trenholm.

It is one of the best known military-musical organizations of its kind, and has been heard frequently in Canada under the baton of Lieut. J. Andrew Wiggins. Most of the musicians are veterans of the World War and gave London concerts which attracted much attention in 1918.

BREAKS RECORDS

According to reports from Florida, "The Bat," the super-mystery play booked to play here shortly, has broken all records for dramatic attractions in that State. Its engagements at the various winter resorts along the east and west coasts of Florida have proven the feature of the season.

KOSLOFF'S CHARACTER TOO REAL

Russian Star of "To Have and to Hold" Suffers for Passion for Detail

Realism has its disadvantages. After Theodore Kosloff raised a fetching little goatee with much care and coaxing for his picturesque role of Lord Carnal in "To Have and To Hold," no one would believe it was real.

"What a fine make-up," everyone would say when they saw him, giving the cherished goatee a hearty tug. As the Kosloff chin grew tender under this cruel treatment, he has decided that "art for art's sake" has painful possibilities.

This versatile Russian, Theodore Kosloff, has a colorful role and makes it stand forth, even in a cast of brilliant stars, for he has the ability of completely submerging his own personality in his part and in "To Have and To Hold" he becomes the graceful and graceless favorite of King James I of England and enters into the spirit of his deviltry with a zest that carries past the screen to his audience.

Not only has Kosloff won fame as an actor, but he is one of the foremost Russian ballet dancers of the world and came to this country first at the head of his own company of dancers. His versatility extends even further, for he is also a violinist of merit. In the early days while attending the Imperial Russian Ballet School in Moscow the youthful dancer played the violin in a theater orchestra as a means of helping support himself during his training.

Possibly it is his comprehension of different artistic impressions that has made him so markedly successful an actor, for since his first appearance before the camera in Cecil de Mille's "The Woman God Forgot," he has become one of the real personalities of the screen and brings a highly satisfying portrayal to all his roles.

"To Have and To Hold," now showing at Grauman's Rialto Theater, is surrounded by an excellent musical program offered by the Rialto Orchestra, with Maurice Lawrence conducting, Herbert Burland at the Wurlitzer and Mischa Violin, Russian genius violinist, in solos.

STILLS FOR DE MILLE

Edward S. Curtis, noted for his Indian studies of "The Vanishing Race," and for still photographs illustrating Ferdinand Earle's screen edition of "The Rubaiyat," is making a series of stills for Cecil De Mille's picture, "Adam's Rib."

HAPPENINGS IN MUSIC REALM

Arliss Pupils Appear

Anita Arliss, soprano and teacher, presented a group of pupils in a successful recital program recently at the Express Auditorium. Those appearing on the program were Ruth Partridge, Fred Gildner, Viola Gaylor, Widmer Brough, Harriett Miles, Edward Manley and Arthur Alton.

"Messiah" Tonight

The "Messiah," which received an ovation when given in Pasadena on New Year's Eve, under the direction of Frederick Vance Evans, will be repeated this evening at the Pasadena Presbyterian Church. Hazel Elwell, one of the best-known sopranos of the Southland, again will be soloist. A chorus of 165 voices, combining the Monrovia Messiah Chorus and the Pasadena Chimes Chorus, was the finest heard in Pasadena for some time.

Harpist at Study Club

Catherine Jackson, harpist, played an interesting program for the Artists' Study Club of Hollywood on the evening of the 9th inst., at the home of Mrs. George Moslin. A group of songs were sung by Mrs. Robert Sargent, soprano, and several violin solos were given by Miss Harriet Becket, both with harp accompaniment by Miss Jackson.

Moor Suite Feature

The Emanuel Moor Suite for two violins and piano, which the Zoellners have played far and wide thruoghout this country will be one of the attractive features of the fourth Zoellner Quartet concert on Monday evening, the 15th inst., at the Ebell Club Auditorium. The Zoellners introduced this work to American audiences two seasons ago with considerable success and will be played by Antoinette, Amandus and Joseph Zoellner, Jr., piano. Moor has one eccentricity which Dr. Baker, the noted biographer, said is without a parallel in modern music and that is he always has managed to keep his residence a secret. The entire program of the Zoellners will have quite a modern color, the Tschaikowsky Quartet Op. 11 and the Schumann Quartet Op. 41, No. 1, rounding out this unusual evening of chamber music.

SYMPHONY CONCERT PROGRAM ARRANGED

For the eighth symphony concert on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, the 26th and 27th inst., the Franck symphony in D minor has been chosen by Conductor Rothwell to open the program. Symphonic variations "Istar" Op. 42 (Vincent d'Indy) and Scherzo "Fantastique" (Suk) which will be played for the first time in Los Angeles completes the orchestral numbers.

The soloist will be Benno Moiseiwitsch, Russian pianist, whose success in the East and as soloist with the leading symphony orchestras has been notable.

Conductor Rothwell is completing a novel arrangement for four popular Sunday afternoon concerts, starting February 4, for which the first concert is to be an all-French program, with Annie Altman, Russian pianist, as soloist, playing the Saint-Saens Concerto No. 4 in C minor.

The second concert on February 18 is to be an all-Wagner program, for which the soloist will be announced later. For the third concert, on March 4, the program will be made up entirely of Tschaikowsky compositions, with Calmon Luboviski, Russian violinist, as soloist, playing the "Serenade Melancholique."

For the fourth and last program all numbers will be selected from works of living American composers, many of which are in manuscript, and will be performed for the first time anywhere. The soloist will be Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus, contralto. For these four popular concerts a special season ticket will be sold.

THE THIRD PARTY IN LOVE

May Sinclair, England's Greatest Woman Novelist, Presents a Study of a Woman Who Could and a Man Who Couldn't Face Reality

BY LILLIAN C. FORD

ANNE SEVERN AND THE FIELDINGS. By May Sinclair. The Macmillan Company, New York.

Most critics agree in placing May Sinclair at the head of English women novelists now living. While "The Divine Fire" remains her best novel—a work of sheer genius—no book of hers can be overlooked by the student of the best contemporary literature.

Recently she has been too deeply plunged into psychoanalysis to give her art free play, and it is something of a relief to find that in "Anne Severn and the Fieldings" she has gotten away from this obsession. Not that there is any denial of psychoanalysis in the book, but neither is there any obtrusion.

Anne is first introduced as a little girl of ten, lonely and grief stricken over the death of her mother. Her father, an Indian official, brings her to his friends the Fieldings and here she spends most of her childhood.

Miss Sinclair strikes the keynote on the opening page. Anne, the faithful, at once asks for Jerrold, the Fielding son a little older than herself, whom she had not seen since she was a very little girl, but who had been her dearest comrade then. But Jerrold, seeing her in her mourning black, avoided Anne. "Somehow he was afraid to come because her mother was dead."

Jerrold instinctively avoided the unpleasant, the unhappy, the harrowing. He ran away from them when possible and when compelled to face them denied their existence. Reality he shunned; he wanted happiness, thought he must have it. "He won't face anything that's even a little unpleasant. He won't listen if you try to tell him. He won't read a book that hasn't a happy ending. He won't go to a play that isn't a comedy. He simply can't stand trouble." That was Jerrold.

So when Anne, the courageous, the unselfish, the devoted, nursed Jerrold's father, dying of hemorrhage, Jerrold could see her only in connection with the harrowing death-bed scene. He eagerly escaped, going to India and putting Anne, whom he loved, out of his mind.

It was the elder brother, Eliot, who stayed to face things. He was as sensitive to suffering as Jerrold, but "he couldn't rest till he had done something to remove the cause of it." These two, with Colon, the younger brother, too sensitive and too high strung to stand the things he compelled himself to face, all love Anne, each in his own way, that of Colon being the love of a dependent brother. But for Anne there is only Jerrold.

The war comes in the story as it affects Anne and the Fieldings, and calls for sacrifice from Anne. Her own reputation as well as her own inclinations are involved, but Anne goes through with it, holding her head high, undaunted by misunderstanding. Through this she definitely loses Jerrold, who had

ZANE GREY'S FINEST NOVEL

Grey says: "I am willing to stand or fall by Wanderer of the Wasteland." In his opinion and ours it is his supreme effort, his most mature and finished work.

Adam Larey, self-exiled wanderer in the wastelands, represents a fundamental desire in every man's make-up, to be able to meet nature with naked hands and survive. The terrible lure of the desert, the vividness of fresh scenes, the clean sure thrill of adventure and romance are here.

Peter Clark Macfarlane

In his new book "Man's Country," which has just been published, Mr. Macfarlane says that American women are jealous of their husbands' business.

RECENT BOOKS

LITTLE THEATER CLASSICS. Volumes Three and Four. Adapted and edited by Samuel A. Eliot, Jr. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

Each of these volumes contains well-known plays cut and adapted for use in Little Theaters. Volume three contains "Bushido," a tragedy exalting loyalty as the old Japanese understood it; an adaption of George Peele's old fairy tale drama, "The Old Wife's Tale;" a rather odd rendering of "Pericles;" and "The Duchess of Peavy," an adaptation of John Ford's "Love's Sacrifice."

In volume four are four plays of widely different kinds—the Mohammedan passion play, an Indian love tale, a specimen of the Shrovetide farce of Hans Sachs and a greatly condensed version of Dryden's "All for Love," in which Shakespearean lines from "Antony and Cleopatra" are freely introduced, with brackets, in the last act. The most interesting play is undoubtedly "The Martyrdom of Ali." It is an adaptation from the Persian passion play, centering on Mohammed and his son-in-law, Ali, the saint of the Persian sect of Islam.

THREE PLAYS. The Dover Road, the Truth About Blayds, The Great Broxopp. By A. A. Milne. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

Three plays that have had successful production in England and America are here presented. They are all amusing, with excellent dialogue and arresting characters, and all have more between the lines than meets the eye.

"The Dover Road," that fantastic satire on those daring couples who take the Dover Road as the first lap in their journey to France, where extra matrimonial alliances are cemented, has been slightly changed by its author, who confesses in his foreword that while in the play he married his Anne to Mr. Latimer, he never wanted her so married. As he explains, "To rescue her from Leonard was easy; to save her from Nicholas was more difficult; and, in an unguarded moment, while I was triumphing over Nicholas, Mr. Latimer got her." In the published version, Mr. Milne has gotten the better of Latimer, and so allows Anne to go on her way, with her eyes wide open to the dangers of marriage as well as of "free" unions.

THE JEWS. By Hilaire Belloc. Houghton, Mifflin Company, Boston.

An elaboration of the thesis that the Jew cannot be absorbed in any other race because he is too distinctly of a race apart, this essay contains much that is interesting if not entirely convincing.

The cause of the rising tide of feeling against the Jewish people Mr. Belloc finds in the fact that we fail to recognize the alien quality of the Jew and to judge accordingly.

SOLILOQUIES IN ENGLAND. By George Santayana. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

Short essays on widely varied topics, written with the charm of style that distinguishes the work of George Santayana and in the philosophical vein that he has made peculiarly his own.

As the title implies, the essays were written in England. Many of them have English traits, English customs, English tradition and spirit as their theme.

THE LABOR MOVEMENT AND THE FARMER. By Hayes Robbins. Harcourt, Brace & Co.

One of a series called "The Farmer's Bookshelf," edited by President Butterfield of the Massachusetts College of Agriculture. It gives a presentation of the labor question for the enlightenment of farmers, who have only recently become interested in this problem.

LABOR TURNOVER IN INDUSTRY. A statistical analysis. By Paul F. Brissenden and Emil Frankel. The Macmillan Company, New York.

One of the maladjustments in our industrial life is the instability of labor, by which a large percentage of workers are here today and gone tomorrow. The waste involved both to capital and labor is evident enough.

THE NEGRO IN CHICAGO. A Study of race relations and race riot. By the Chicago Commission on Race Relations. University of Chicago Press, Chicago.

An extremely important volume on the race question in America. The report of the commission appointed by Gov. Lowden to investigate the Chicago race riots of July, 1919. This book is remarkable for the detailed account it contains of the conditions of life among the negroes in the North and the propaganda employed to stimulate negro migrations from one community to another, and for the recommendations the commission makes to police departments, State militia, the law courts, city councils, boards of education, civic organizations, labor unions, churches, the public, employers, transportation companies and the press.

This volume is fully illustrated with photographs, charts and

LAFCADIO HEARN ON POETRY

PRE-RAPHAELITE AND OTHER POETS. Lectures by Lafcadio Hearn, with introduction by John Erskine of Columbia University. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.

The material for this book has been collated by Prof. Erskine, from several copies in student's hands, of lectures delivered by Hearn at the University of Tokio between 1896 and 1902.

Prof. Erskine regards these lectures with very great admiration. To the reader familiar with commentaries and interpretations of the poetry included in this volume, it will be immediately apparent that they differ from those delivered in the "Lit" classrooms of our own large universities in two particulars, the first being their superior clarity and simplicity, which is, of course, a great virtue, and the second, that the specimens of each author's work which are cited in these lectures are, mentally speaking, so completely predigested that nothing remains for the student but the passive process of assimilation.

Prof. Erskine holds that the excellent form of these lectures is, under the circumstances, so greatly to Hearn's credit as to be reckoned a real work of supererogation. This is because the commentator assumes that those students whom Hearn was addressing "could only understand the general drift of his lectures, in spite of which fact he spoke with the same care and with the same elevation of spirit as though he had been addressing an audience of the Sorbonne or at Oxford."

The truth doubtless is that Hearn was aware, as all who have observed classes of mixed white and yellow students in our universities are aware, that in spite of their halting English the last-mentioned are not a whit behind their white fellows in appreciating both the great literature they are studying and also the power of illustration or the graces of diction revealed in the work of their teachers. And it is within the possibilities that Hearn was able to speak with more "elevation of spirit" when his spirit was in an atmosphere of quick appreciation, enthusiastic admiration and affectionate deference, than in the presence of the cool appraisal of more sophisticated audiences.

The very greatest quality which any teacher can possess is the power of sustained enthusiasm for his subject, and this Hearn had in abounding measure. His love of great literature and especially of great poetry had the height and depth of a real passion. Such a richly endowed preceptor cannot fail to win a response from those who approach him with open minds. On the other hand, it may be said that Hearn simplified and explained a trifle too much, and so left too little to his pupil's faculty of independent research and also gave too scant scope to their creative imagination. But in spite of his fault of repletion this series of lectures will be found of great value, not only to professional teachers and to seeking pupils, but also to the veteran reader, who will doubtless enjoy comparing his own conception of nineteenth-century verse and versifiers with those presented in these pages.

A PARODY ON ETIQUETTE

PERFECT BEHAVIOR. A guide for ladies and gentlemen in all social classes. By Donald Ogden Stewart. The George H. Doran Company, New York.

This, one of the title pages tells us, is a parody outline of etiquette by the author of "A Parody Outline of History."

There are nine chapters in this useful compendium, quite adequately covering the more ordinary questions as to polite conduct under all occasions. First we have the etiquette of courtship, which naturally precedes that of engagements and weddings.

We note the lack of any hints on correct procedure at christenings and funerals, which might logically follow the chapters above mentioned. But our author prefers to take up the etiquette of travel next, then disgressing to the concert and the opera. The newness and timeliness of the book is revealed by the chapter entitled "Etiquette for Dry Agents," this being the only book of the kind, so far as we know, that touches on this important subject. A chapter for schoolgirls, one on games and sports, one on correspondence and a final one on dinners and balls close a book that no civilized American—if there be any—should fail to read and study.

A few samples of the valuable information and directions contained in this fascinating volume will suffice to reveal its flavor. Take that on introductions. "When introducing a young lady to a stranger, it is not au fait (correct form) to simply say, Mr. Roe, I want you to shake hands with my friend Dorothy. Under the rules of the beau monde (correct form) this would probably be done as follows: Dorothy (or Miss Doe,) shake hands with Mr. Roe. Always give the name of the lady first, unless you are introducing someone to the President of the United States, the Archbishop of Canterbury, a member of the nobility above a baron, or a customer. The person who is being introduced then extends his (or her) right ungloved hand and says, Shake. You shake, saying at the same time, It's warm (cool) for November (May,) to which the other replies, Ill say it is."

With such detailed instructions, who need go wrong?

THE ETERNAL VERITIES

BY RAYMOND BLATHWAYT

A MENAGE A TROIS ACROSS THE STYX. By Sir Frank Popham Young, K.B., E.C.I.E. A. M. Robertson, San Francisco.

In his newly published book of verses Sir Frank Popham Young reveals himself as a poet of no mean quality; he displays an unusual sense of rhythm, considerable power of colorization and a very wide and all-pervading grasp of the importance of the infinitely little in the composition of the immeasurably great—which is to say that to a remarkable extent he grasps the inner meaning of life.

The verses in which he summons up the whole spirit of the Orient, entitled "California or Cathay," are full of color and the delightful suggestion of Indian days long numbered with old, forgotten things, but the memory of which never really dies from the mind.

But it is in his "Menage a Trois" that he really brings you up to the sticking-point; some people to that sticking-point of genuine admiration; others, and the more old-fashioned, to a point of shuddering horror at his chill logical acceptance of absolute annihilation after death and his calm and philosophic realization of the intense meaning that every single unconsidered trifle possesses in the whole cosmos of life.

In his attempted explanation of those vast mysteries of existence which must surely and anxiously engage the attention of even the most thoughtless and frivolous from time to time—for very few people nowadays care to take the trouble to think either profoundly or for any time worth considering—Sir Frank leaves unexplored scarcely any phase of life with which we are so carelessly familiar and which we leave so absolutely unconsidered in the scheme of times.

He glances down every avenue of approach to the soul, though I fancy his scientific and hypercritical and hypersensitive mind would probably refuse to recognize even the possibility of the existence of such an outcome as the soul, as he would probably regard it. And yet the poem touches profundities of which the average man is absolutely ignorant and of which he is gayly and quite acquiescingly careless and undesirous.

It is a profoundly moving sermon upon the eternal verities while implying at the same time the absolute physical and rigidly temporal limitations of humanity. "And the rest is silence," you say to yourself as you lay down this curiously intriguing and vastly interesting dissertation. But it does not make for the chubby, complacent condition of mind so characteristic of the ordinary citizen.

FAMOUS CHEMISTS. The Men and Their Work. By Sir William A. Tilden. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

A large book in which the history of chemistry is traced from the time of Robert Boyle, the father of chemistry, up to the present. The facts are all developed through tracing the contributions to chemical science of each of the noted investigators in that field.

The subject is treated under the following heads: Robert Boyle the Father of Chemistry; The Phlogistians; The Antiphlogistic Revolution; Electricity in the Service of Chemistry; Laws of Combination and the Atomic Theory; Electro-Chemistry; Molecule and Atom Defined; Theory of Chemical Action and Constitution of Molecules; Early Attempts at Classification; Classification and Nature of Elements.

In these various groups are given brief but authoritative biographies of some twenty-odd chemists, whose activities date from 1627, the birth date of Robert Boyle, to 1919, which marks the death of Sir William Crookes.

THE GREAT OUT OF DOORS

THE OPEN SPACES. Incidents of Nights and Days Under the Blue Sky. By John C. Van Dyke. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

In the preface to this book of outdoor incidents the author recalls his boyhood dreams "of traversing the unknown wilderness, of canoeing with trappers through wild-rice lakes and down strange rivers, of riding with Indians and shooting big game on the prairies"—dreams that at the time seemed remote and impossible. But the day-dreams of the boy became realities, and John Van Dyke came that he writes in this book, which tells of sleeping out, where one has the feeling of being at home with the infinite; of riding the open and riding the range; of the cowboy and the desert; of fishing and hunting and of various encounters with wild life in different times and places.

It is written with the serene enjoyment of a connoisseur in life, who feels himself so much a part of nature as to have neither fears nor qualms nor petty worries and so is a charming book to read and brood over by those bound too closely to the indoor life which makes up so much of modern life.

A BOOK OF TRAVEL

A few months ago there slipped unobtrusively onto the book counters a truly unique book of travel, "Universities and Scientific Life in the United States," by Maurice Caullery (Harvard University Press.) The author, a famous biologist at the University of Paris, observed our American resources for higher education while he was lecturing at Harvard and other colleges some time ago. His account, written with the charm and incisiveness peculiar to French authors, should be in the hands of every parent who contemplates sending his children to college.

THE RACE QUESTION

Our readers will be interested to learn that President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University is the author of a new study in political science which the Harvard University Press is shortly to issue under the title, "Public Opinion in War and Peace." It will touch upon many questions of immediate interest, such as the direct primary,

LITERARY GOSSIP

Thomas Seltzer, New York publisher, who came into prominence recently by reason of his brush with the Society for the Suppression of Vice, in which the courts upheld the publisher and released a number of books that had come under the ban of the censor, made a brief visit to Los Angeles last week. Mr. Selzer's house enjoys the distinction of having published two novels which won the highest literary honors in France and England. "The Lost Girl," by D. H. Lawrence won the James Tait Black memorial prize in England, and "Batouala," by Rene Maran, won the Prix Concourt in France.

The Holts have just published Theodore Maynard's "Best Poets," which has been so long delayed; "Swann's Way," the first book in the autobiographical novel by the famous Frenchman, Marcel Proust, and "Carolina Folk-Plays," edited by F. H. Koch.

Mr. Marcus Dickey has, with the completion of his book, "The Maturity of James Whitcomb Riley," consummated an endearing task he formulated for himself many years ago. This volume succeeds "The Youth of James Whitcomb Riley," that history of the poet's early years, and reveals his intimate life in the full years of achievement. Mr. Dickey with an informed sympathy, and a precise judgment has made manifest the truth of a rich life.

H. G. Dwight, the author of "Stamboul Nights," "The Emperor of Elam," and "Perisian Miniatures," was an adviser to the American official observers at the Lausanne conference.

"The Book of the American Indian," by Hamlin Garland, illustrated with pictures by Frederic Remington, will soon be brought out by the Harpers. Both Garland and Remington enjoyed long years of friendly association with the Indians of the West. This volume has an unusual collection of stories, both humorous and dramatic, with over thirty beautiful pictures, not illustrations of the text, but rather an independent and parallel interpretation.

Recent new printings announced by the Century Company are really significant as indicating what that mysterious thing, public taste, actually is; "Outwitting Our Nerves," fifty-third thousand; O'Brien's "Atolls of the Sun" and "White Shadows in the South Seas;" Donn Byrne's "Messer Marco Polo," and "The Wind Bloweth," Frank Stockton's classic, "The Casting Away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine," Jean Webster's "Daddy Long Legs," and Janet Laing's "Wintergreen." From all of which it appears that the public is deeply interested in its health, if not taken too ponderously; in romantic travel narratives of alluringly beautiful faraway places (especially if they have a bit of sex interest,) in love stories in a golden pattern of language, and, above all, love stories of likeable people that run the course of laughter and tears, and end as all good-natured readers would like love stories to end.

Many who pick up Roscoe W. Brink's free-verse novel come to scoff and stay to worship. Here's the confession of one reviewer in the Buffalo Saturday Night.

"When I first opened the book I was repelled by it . . . thought it looked difficult reading. Several hours later I laid the book down with a feeling of complete satisfaction. Those who pass it by will be missing one of the finest pieces of literature written in America."

Joseph Conrad celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary on December 6. At his quiet home in Kent, the old Polish sea captain was busy with the proofs of his new novel, "The Rover," soon to follow "The Rescue," "The Arrow of Gold," "Chance," "Victory," "Lord Jim" and others.

Lady Susan Townley has made a distinct contribution to the history of the years before the war in her interesting story of Cecil Rhodes and the Kaiser told in the chapter on Berlin in her new book, "Indiscretions of Lady Susan." The episode seems to be no more and no less than the occasion upon which William's mind first turned to the thought of the Bagdad Railway. Rhodes was at dinner at the English Embassy and beforehand he expressed the wish, "If only we could make the Kaiser abandon his African schemes and leave us free to get on with ours!" During the dinner Rhodes cleverly drew "a red herring across the Kaiser's trail by leading the conversation on to the topic of Mesopotamia." And the meat of the story is the fact that, as Lady Susan puts it, "I am

GREAT WAR IN RETROSPECT

John Buchan, the Brilliant British Historian, Gives Impartial and Dramatic Account of the World's Greatest Military Undertaking

BY THOMAS F. FORD

A HISTORY OF THE GREAT WAR. By John Buchan. Introduction by Maj.-Gen. J. C. Harbord, U.S.A. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

This is a monumental achievement in historical narration. The work is in four volumes and is a revision and rewriting of twenty-four small books on the war that appeared in England between February, 1915, and July, 1919.

In these four volumes Mr. Buchan has covered every phase of the war on the sea, on the land and in the air, including a resume of the historical events that led up to it, as well as the diplomatic exchanges that took place between Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany, Austria, Belgium and Serbia. His account of the campaigns east and west is clear and direct. The errors in strategy, the lack of intelligence on the part of the French, as well as the blundering of the German and British commanders in their attempts to accomplish impossible military feats, are all presented in such a way as to give the layman an intelligent view of the great events during those four years of hell on earth through which the peoples, as well as the armies of the nations involved, passed.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

MERE MAN. Question: May a mere man receive a reply to his query in the column "for the practical woman"? Have recently married one who never made out a check or handled finances other than the spending of her allowance. Under these circumstances is not the "doling system," as you term it, the only solution?

A MERE MAN.

Answer: As "a mere man" you are cordially welcomed and we hope there will be many more of you interested enough to "talk it over." I shall answer your inquiry from the experience of a young broker with whom I recently talked. Realizing that he was marrying a woman who knew absolutely nothing of the financial side of home-making his wedding present to her was a bank book, an introduction to an officer of the bank and a lesson in the checking account. Step by step he helped the wife in business transactions just as he would assist a new man in the brokerage business. They have now been married several years and still maintain the joint bank account. In telling me of his experience his eyes lighted up with pride as he said, "and you ought to see how proud and happy she is in handling her share of the income. As for myself I now rest content for I know that should anything happen to me she knows how to keep what we have saved."

SAVINGS WITHDRAWAL. Q.: Should I need several hundred dollars for thirty days would I lose the interest by withdrawing the amount from my savings bank account? N. W.

A.: The usual rule concerning interest on savings withdrawn between dividend dates is that the interest will be forfeited from the last dividend day. If withdrawn soon after dividend day two months' interest will be forfeited on the amount withdrawn. Why not use your savings account as collateral and borrow? To illustrate; if you have $1000 drawing 4 per cent and need the use of $800 for thirty days you can take your passbook to the loan department of your bank and borrow thereon at 6 per cent. On a short-time loan where withdrawal would occur just before dividend date it means money in your pocket to pay the 6 per cent instead of losing your savings account interest for six months.

ALLOWANCE BUDGET. Q.: Husband insists on allowance plan for household expenses. How can I budget? H. B.

A.: Have the money deposited in bank in your name. Proportion the amount to the items the allowance must cover. As this evidently covers, in your case, only the immediate household expenses you would allocate the sum under food and operating expenses. At end of month pay bills by check. One woman who budgets on allowance plan saved in two years enough money to buy several electrical labor-saving devices she had long desired.

LISTED SECURITIES. Q.: What is meant by "listed" securities? L. T.

A.: "Listed" securities mean those that can be traded by members on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, or the recognized local exchanges, and on which quotations will be published in their official sheets. You can refer to published sheets in any broker's office. The daily papers also publish those securities actively dealt in each day on the New York exchange as well as the "Curb" and various local exchanges. All listed stocks are not, however, safe investments. Whether listed or unlisted it pays to investigate.

SAVING FOR THE EXTRAS. Q.: Somehow all the "extras" like insurance, taxes, etc., come at once and leave us gasping financially for months. How can we plan ahead to meet these items? S. H.

A.: Start a reserve fund. One man I know deposits to a separate bank savings account a certain amount each month for his reserve fund. Figure up your taxes, insurance and similar items and deposit at least one-twelfth of the amount each month, more if possible. This will give you the sum necessary when due and the accrued interest as a nest-egg toward further saving. In paying for insurance this is more satisfactory than the installment basis. It obviates the time payment plan and the worry of meeting the annual premiums.

SAMPLE BUDGET BASIS. Q.: Will you give me the basis for the figures given in the sample budget of December 24, Los Angeles Times? T. M.

A.: The latest and most comprehensible data as to family budgets in Los Angeles and vicinity was gathered by U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics during 1918. It included over 200 families distributed in income groups. This was supplemented in 1919-20 by investigations and computations of the University of Southern California. Taking these figures as a basis, following change in living conditions and prices to present date, and proportioning various incomes accordingly gives the sample budget you refer to. For the individual budget of the business woman not keeping house, living expenses would be allocated under room and two meals, luncheons, laundry, clothing, advancement and savings.

JANUARY at Bullock's—One o'Clock Saturdays

Arrival—Special Bullock Shipment
Chinese Filet Laces
Direct from Interior of China

Remarkable Because of Fineness of Mesh and Lack of Ragged Edges—Two Characteristics of Real Chinese Laces of First Quality—

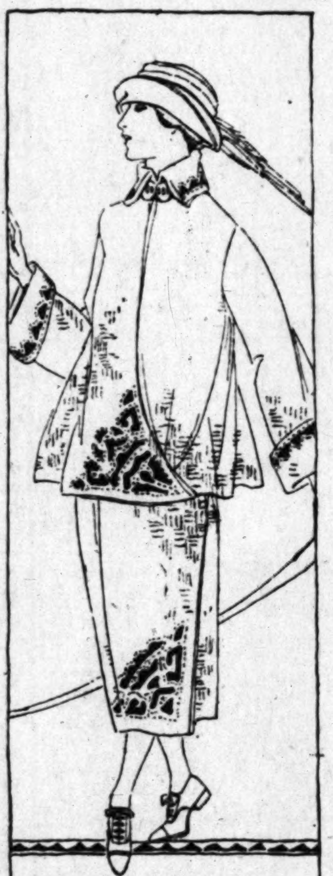
—Including Filet, Irish and Venise Patterns made with care and skill that emphasize the vast difference there is between the Finer Chinese Laces and those so often presented.

—Because each piece in this broad selection has been picked with individual care by an experienced connoisseur of Chinese Handwork, never in the many presentations of Fine Chinese Laces for which Bullock's has been sponsor, and which have had such far reaching publicity in the Southland, have there been more beautiful examples, or such consistent skill exhibited, than in this very collection ready for Monday.

—Place your own emphasis then upon the prices, so attractive, in themselves and so characteristic of the Impelling Value that has marked Bullock's distributions of Chinese Laces from the very start—

First—the Staple Picot Edgings of Filet at 15c Yard.
Second—the Picot Edgings of pretty Irish, 20c yard.
Next—850 Yards Chinese Laces in many patterns, 25c.
Also 1250 Yards Wider Chinese Laces at but 45c Yard.
750 Yards Lovely Chinese Laces Grouped at 75c Yard.
850 Yards Lovely Chinese Laces Grouped at 95c Yard.
665 Yards Very Wide Chinese Laces at just $1.35 Yard.

—A veritable exposition of beautiful designs—hand picked at the source of their origin in China—an opportunity to purchase real hand made laces at very low prices if there ever was one—Monday—at Bullock's Second Floor.



"The Frock—with its matching jacket"

Gray with decorations of blue leather.

BULLOCKS
Sportswear Store

Through the courtesy of a famous manufacturer, but without his label — this first quality Silk Underwear for a sale of note—

100 doz. Heavy Quality Glove Silk Vests at $2.95
75 doz. Heavy Quality Glove Silk Bloomers at $3.95

—Prices much lower than could be possible under the ordinary selling conditions of this splendid Glove Silk Underwear.

—The Vests are made extra long in white, flesh, orchid and corn. Bodice top in style and sizes 34 to 44. At $2.95 each.

—The Bloomers to match the vests. Large reinforcement for added wear—cut full in the seat. Sizes 34 to 44. At $3.95 a pair.

—You will have no difficulty in recognizing the character of these garments and catching the spirit of enthusiastic value that is so evident in these below regular prices. Bullock's—Women's Knit Underwear Section — Fourth Floor.

Again—Wrought Iron

Bridge Lamps

150—$5.95
100—$7.45

—Both with parchment shades complete.

—The price of $7.45 concerns a special group in a new richly finished antique (glazed) gold in the same design.

—Many will recall a similar event some short time ago when Bullock's did not have enough of these lamps to supply demand.

—The arm is adjustable—stand 65 inches high—complete with 6 foot cord.

—Ideal for chair, davenport or study uses. Exceptional at the prices $5.95 and $7.45 complete with shade.

—Bullock's Sixth Floor—Seventh Street Bridgeway.

Now Comes Bullock's January Offering of Men's Silk Shirts at $5.35

—No less than 600 Silk Shirts in the newest and prettiest colored stripes as well as all white with woven stripes or plain white.

—Knowledge adequate to appreciate the impelling significance of this event would require—

First—An understanding of the closeness with which cost approaches selling price.
Second—Acquaintance with facts that obtained lower than ordinary cost through quantity purchase and close co-operation with manufacturer.
Third—Familiarity with the styles that will be most popular with men this spring and summer.
Fourth—Careful inspection of material and workmanship.
Fifth—A comparison between these and other Men's Silk Shirts not nearly so good, selling at prices much higher.

—These are facts which if this announcement could include, but which are real nevertheless, should create a demand for these Shirts Monday that would outdistance even the greatest of Bullock's Accomplishments in Men's Shirt Selling.

—The Price—$5.35. Monday—at the Store for Men at Bullock's—First Floor.

THE NEW

IN STORES AND HOMES

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS

By Olive Gray

UP-TO-DATEST:

Silks for summer wear, so soft and clinging as to seem like challies, are made quaintly with shirred hips and tunics falling in folds; with ruffles and with puffs, which, owing to the quality of the fabric, serve to add to the slenderness of the wearer, rather than to distend the silhouette.

For sports wear, many of the one-piece dresses are of heavy linen, in rather unusual weave, embellished with hand embroidery in contrasting colors to the garments. Colors heretofore seldom found in linens are to the fore—delicate tints of apricot, lavender, orchid, sandalwood, briar, with dull or semibright tones for contrast in the decorative effects.

Oxfords are coming in again and bid fair to become favorites for sports wear and for street use during spring and summer.

New Browns

The shades of brown, brought forth in fabrics and in millinery for spring and summer are of unusual interest. Many who have not found it possible to wear the color heretofore will discover new possibilities in the soft, yet bright tints now shown. These, having more life than most browns, lend vivacity to the personality, whereas the dull tones of this color are wont to subdue, not to say becloud, it. Brown is a color which may weld together other colors, if it be of the proper shade; and also, it may be rendered becoming when not so, per se, if combined with something enlivening. Certain tones of rose run well into brown; lavenders also consort with it; some blues live at peace with brown; the yellow tints are an integral part of it. Hence, the girl who must somewhat economize, may safely take on brown for her spring wardrobe, trusting to the tinting up, possible through the use of other colors, with it. In fact, next to black and to white, brown is the very best of assimilating colors. Therefore may we vote to fashion thanks for kindness to us and to our exchequers, in bringing forth this color as a favorite for dresses, wraps and coats.

The Merest Brush

Just a twirl with a common brush! Then, lightly wipe with a damp cloth and behold! The bath tub, the sink, the wash basin each—all—are brightly, shiningly clean! None of the usual "elbow grease" required; labor saved; temper in best of order! Aunt Jane says there is nothing like it! And she has tried all the ways, the powders, liquids, pastes. This, the latest of cleaners, is a jelly which you apply with a brush; then, as I have said before, you merely rub it lightly off and with it goes the dirt! Such a boon to all who housewife! There is another feature greatly to be praised. It does not injure the hands! Rather it seems to soften and to put them in better condition.

Facing the Face

Some of the new taffetas, or taffeta ribbons, used to face the brims of the large hats for spring and summer, are enchantingly lovely in the sun-and-shine effects. In many cases the hat depends for color solely upon this brilliant facing; again the facing, in its many tintedness, combines all the coloring of hat, flowers and foliage which adorns the upper brim and crown. Without exception, these facings are flattering to the face next which they appear.

The Queue in Blousing

A novel note sounded in blousery was seen at a local shop. The blouse itself was of white Cantonese crepe of that heavy quality which proclaims itself by every fold, even at a distant glance. Plainly made as to body, extremely full as to sleeves, which were gathered into narrow bands, the feature of the garment lay in the queue—for such indeed it resembled—of rich embroidery, falling from about the shoulder line at the back, passing underneath the belt and falling in a lavish tassel, half way down the skirt. That the collar was extremely high goes almost without saying.

"Cowboy Kerchiefs"

Gladys writes that Paris has simply gone mad over the "cowboy kerchiefs." These new handkerchiefs—interpreted as only Paris would think of interpreting—are worn for trimming hats—the corners standing upright jauntily, for sashing blouses or frocks, for adding dash to the tailleur instead of a scarf about the neck, for a dozen other purposes ingeniously devised by smart femininity. I doubt if any of those adopting this American fad have ever seen a real cowboy and it would be interesting to know what they have in mind as the original of their fadding.

LA MODE INDICATES

The hip-length jacket of the new tailleur is built on closely fitting, straight lines.

Shirring from hip-line to waist is used on the long pointed panels of a crepe frock.

A red velvet dinner gown has the off-shoulder line marked with a gold lace bertha.

A white crepe overblouse of mannish lines uses a motif of colored beads at one side.

Very effective on a black velvet sleeve is a mousquetaire cuff of tiers of scalloped silver cloth.

Many evening gowns are compromising affairs, being quite short in front and quite long in back.

A large soft bow at one side is popular trimming for the informal hat at the present moment.

NEW IDEA OF ELECTRICITY

Inventor Has Novel Theory; Hits Present Beliefs

Declares Interpolar Arc Is Carrying Medium

Radio Is Cited as Proof of Stand Against Ether

George Frederick Shaver, an electrical engineer and inventor of considerable distinction, yesterday made known what he declares to be new facts regarding the origin of electricity and a more or less novel theory on the subject.

Mr. Shaver holds that electricity is nothing more than "magnetic energy seeking equilibrium between two poles" and that aerial electrical currents are transmitted through a sort of sea of electricity extending from pole to pole, above and below the earth.

Mr. Shaver because of ill health recently gave up his work at New York and came here to rest. He lives at 5157 Seventh avenue. For many years he was mechanical engineer in the motive power department of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and in the war was supervisor of the Rochester district for the Ordnance Department, U.S.A., and as such had in charge all munition factories of the district. Before the division of the country into districts he was to have been supervisor for the entire United States. He is inventor of a mechanical telephone, of hydrogas and of several other devices.

SCIENTISTS AT SEA

He says that scientific men have believed hitherto that electrical waves are driven by their own impulses through ether, and since the invention of the radio there has been much discussion of the reasons why these waves follow the arc of the earth and do not fly straight off into space. Mr. Shaver does not concern himself at all with ether, which he considers as a Scottish verdict.

"There is no reason for ether," he says.

He takes a magnet and some iron filings and shows how the iron filings will stand in the familiar arc from one side of the magnet to the other.

"It is the nature of electricity," he says, "to form this arc, just as it is formed around the earth between the two poles.

"Dr. Steinmetz holds that there is no ether in interstellar space, and Sir Oliver Lodge calls Steinmetz's conclusions 'stupid.' Sir Oliver says something must exist to carry the so-called waves of energy in the form of heat, light, electricity, etc.

WOULD LOSE INTENSITY

"But there is no reason to suppose that energy in any form is 'carried' by wave motion. Rapidly recarried impulses of energy traveling through space would lose less of intensity were they to encounter no ether or other material element. I think with Steinmetz, that no ether exists, and to admit Sir Oliver's contention only so far as to substitute another 'carrier' for ether; that is, interpolar flow of magnetic currents.

"These currents permeating both the atmosphere and the interior of the earth, furnish a sea of energy that is infinite in flexibility and carries the radio pulsations from the atmosphere to tunnels under the earth's surface, as demonstrated by experiments of the United Staets Signal Service. How could this be if ether, which is supposed not to exist below the surface of the earth, were the carrier?"

CITES REASONS

"The universal law of magnetism, as I see it, furnishes a reason for all electrical phenomena. It appears that energy from any source when loosed, sets up magnetic polarity in quantity and tension equalling the energy expended or transmitted into magnetic energy. When magnetic poles acquire a tension exceeding the resistance between the poles a discharge takes place as in the case of lightning, Northern Lights, so-called static electricity machines, rubbing a cat's back or combing a woman's hair with a rubber comb. All these act and react under the same primal magnetic law of conservation of energy. No energy is ever lost; it is only changed in character or apparent form.

"When we force a helix of wire through a magnetic field we turn the magnetic field force into the armature coils and thence to normal tension through the circuits, which may be hundreds of miles distant yet still be the line of least resistance to the uncharged magnetic poles of the generators in the power station.

In view of the proofs of my theory which have come through the evolution of telegraph, telephone, lighting power and radio, it now seems strange that the world has so long remained ignorant of the fact that electricity is not in itself anything but the interpolar flow of magnetic energy."

IDEA IS BORN

Mr. Shaver relates how he first caught the idea of his theory when he was 16 years of age, lying on his back on his father's plantation in Virginia and looking at two clouds with electrical flashes playing between them. When as a youth he became a telegrapher he grew convinced of the belief, and when he was in charge of the most powerful dynamos in the world, those of the traction company in New York City, he did not change his original view.

"I said nothing about it," he explains, "until radio had proven it. That electrical currents from the radio station of The Times here in Los Angeles can be transmitted to the Hawaiian Islands means they cannot merely be pushed through ether or anything else—they must follow the arc of electricity surrounding the earth. And the experiment of transmitting messages by radio from an airplane to a tunnel under the earth certainly proves it."

Mr. Shaver admits that his theory will not be accepted with the mere announcement. But he believes it will be accepted sooner or later.

"I merely want to be on record as the discoverer of it," he says, "even if its correctness is admitted long after my death."

STRANGE GYPSY FESTIVAL IN LOS ANGELES OUTSKIRTS

Experiences of a Woman Writer Who Has Lived a Week With Romany Tribes Here

BY LEONA MONTGOMERY

"THE white moth to the closing vine,
The bee to the open clover,
And the gypsy blood to the gypsy blood
Ever the wild world over.

The wild boar to the sun-dried swamp,
The Red crane to her reed,
And the Romany lass to the Romany lad
By the tie of a warring breed."

For a week I have lived with the gypsies—played with them — and am filled with the romance of it all.

Few persons are aware that there are hundreds of gypsies, belonging to a dozen different tribes, camping just outside the city.

They have come here to help Aimee Semple McPherson open the temple of the Four Square Gospel near Sunset Boulevard.

Delegates from every tribe in this country packed their women and children into some kind of an automobile and made the long trip across the desert.

CAME LONG JOURNEY

The Mark tribe which makes its headquarters near Joplin, Mo., the Lee tribe from Boston and the Uwanawick tribe from Minnesota are camping on the San Fernando Road.

The Adams and Stevens tribes with some tribes from Mexico are in camp at Huntington Park.

They have taken me in to their tents and their lives with truest hospitality, even inviting me to open their Christmas with them on the seventh of January.

THRILLING PREPARATIONS

Preparations were thrilling. Great fires burned all night in the camps with pigs, turkeys and geese roasting on the spits.

Early in the morning, the celebration began. Each tent had its feast spread on the floor, lighted candles surrounding the roasted pig; and from tent to tent went the men of the tribe—great handsome gypsies in green flannel shirts, with massive watch-chains and rings of gold.

They were followed by hordes of women and children, decked in vivid silks and barbaric jewelry—the married women with their scarlet kerchiefs—the girls with flowers, evergreens, and even Christmas tinsel in their hair waving wands and favors of paper flowers. Any colorful thing they can get their hands on, is used to adorn their person.

One of the most gorgeous necklaces displayed in honor of the day, was worn by a daughter of the Uwanawick tribe who told me it had been her grandmother's. It consisted of festoons of huge gold coins of the United States as well as of the Old World, and would be returned for safety to the First National Bank in the morning.

FINGERS IN THE STEW

The men sat upon the floor about the feast, "dipped their fingers in the stew," and drank many healths to Romany in good red wine; while the women and children entertained them with songs and dances.

Occasionally a gypsy, cheered by the day and the wine, would rise, choose a gypsy girl, and dance to the singing and hand-clapping of the crowd. Perhaps he would then break into a solo dance, very Russian in character and full of athletic strength and vigor.

When the men moved to another tent, the women and children were free to eat and drink.

THE GREEDY BABY

One of the cunningest sights was a baby of 2 years with a seashell, tied on a wisp of black hair and hanging on its greasy grimy little forehead. He was feasting all by himself on a roasted pig, that was standing on a pole against the tent. The child, would stick its dirty little fist into the tunnel he had made and bring forth a delicious little chunk of fat—a small portion only ever reaching his mouth.

As the day wore on the men, more and more joyous, wandered unsteadily from tent to tent; and the women watching with sympathetic tolerance explained to me, that "the little drunk is all for the Christmas and the good God. The whisky is not from God, but the wine is." And I knew as I left when night came, that every husband would be taken care of by a faithful wife, who would not give him so much as a reproachful glance at breakfast.

MARY OF THE EES

The Queen of the Gypsies, if beauty gave that title, would surely be Mary of the Lee tribe. She was married at twelve and divorced at sixteen. When asked if this had been in our court, she replied that her bond was tied "in gypsy love and served by gypsy law." She added with a pardonable touch of pride, that her husband had paid her father $2000 for her.

While on the subject of courts last week, I was permitted to hear one of their trials. All the men stood or squatted in a circle around the disputants, who argued the matter out.

GYPSY COURT

It concerned a $100 paid to the "powers that be," to get fortune tellers into Fort Worth, Tex.; and as they shook their fists and yelled in their strange Romany language, it was a frightening scene. But the women respectfully listening in the background seemed not at all alarmed and although it all

THE DYING FIRE-EATER

'Ambrosio, the Old Cahuilla Medicine Man Who Chewed Live Coals'—but Drove a Flivver

BY MARY E. WALTER

The Fire-eater is about to die!

Who will be Fire-eater after him?

Ambrosio is very old and ill unto death!

Who will intercede with the spirits in place of old Ambrosio?

Ambrosio is fire-eater and medicine man of the desert Cahuilla Indians, living northwest of Salton Sea in Coachella Valley. He is 90, they say. As fire-eater and medicine man he has for years interceded with the spirits of his people and healed them, and because of this manifestation of super-power, his tribe has utmost faith in him.

Long before any but a few white men lived in Coachella Valley, Ambrosio was called in a dream by his guardian spirit to receive the power conferred generation after generation on fire-eaters and medicine men of his tribe, by the spirit Mukat. In the dream was revealed to him the mystery of how to eat fire without burning himself and what herbs and practices to use in healing.

With fervor of youth he sprang from sleep, exalted, for the supreme test.

He passed the supreme test. He ate fire. Many times since, he has eaten fire at fiestas of his tribe and whenever it was necessary to appease the spirits. And never has he burnt himself, he declares.

HIS LATEST EXHIBITION

His latest exhibition, as an old, old man, was at the Indio date festival.

A group of squaws sat about chanting. Ambrosio, in the midst, began to dance and "sing his song." This is a prayer to his guardian spirit. This song must precede every super act of a fire-eater and medicine man. If the spirit approves and there is no disturbing influence, the power comes. Jumping up and down, singing, blowing in the air, grunting, motioning upward with his hands, the Fire-eater shuffled with his feet in the coals till he kicked out a sizeable one.

He grabbed the coal in his hands, blazing red, and thrust it into his mouth. The smoke came out of his mouth. The bright coal glowed through his shut teeth. Ambrosio showed no pain. He danced on unpurturbed, the women chanted on. At last, it seemed to Ambrosio, the spirit was appeased and he gave back the coal to the fire, black and cool.

DIDN'T HURT A BIT

Sometimes he has swallowed it. He has never been burned. No one has ever seen a mark on his tongue and cheeks.

Yes, indeed, he has done this. Many in Coachella Valley have seen him.

Ambrosio is sufficiently the savage to have lived to a good old age and to have kept the supreme gift of fire-eating. Because his group of Cahuillas have dwelt isolated, comparatively undisturbed by the white man, they have, living in primitive desert fashion, preserved their ancient Indian customs to a greater extent than other tribes. Fire-eating, more than anything else, holds these Indians to faith in their medicine men. It is proof of the superpower conferred by the spirit Mukat.

MADE LOVE POTIONS

Moreover, Ambrosio has kept the spirit of youth, in that he is said to be gay and debonnaire among the women—this doubtless because as medicine man the spirits have given him power to concoct love potions.

And now he is sick unto death.

Medicine man and fire-eater though he is medium of the invisible gods, he has contracted a modern disease with a Greek name—trachoma—and has gone to a modern hospital for a modern operation by modern doctors.

Besides trachoma, Ambrosio has another mark of modernity—a '22 model Ford—whereas every other Indian on his reservation drives

POSTAL CLERK'S TROUBLES

Queer Dramas of the Stamp Window; School-Teachers and Preachers are the Crankiest Customers

BY U. S. M.

Clerking in a postoffice has its joys as well as its sorrows. You meet all classes of people. There is a universal demand for your product. The blue-overalled Mexican is just as anxious to get his letters to his senorita in Tampico as is the diamond-studded millionaire to dispatch instructions to his broker in New York. The liniment-smelling farmer ordering goods from some mail-order house in Chicago and the handsome dude and the giddy flapper seeking carriage for their wax-sealed love missives are on a common plane when they stand before the postoffice window.

Through the gates of windows we witness the comedies and tragedies of life, life as it really is—not poor attempts at reproduction.

Clergymen, as a general rule, are pretty good to get along with. The only trouble with them is that they are a little crabby; and when they are not in that peevish mood, they try to be unduly funny and witty. Perhaps, we judge them by a different standard.

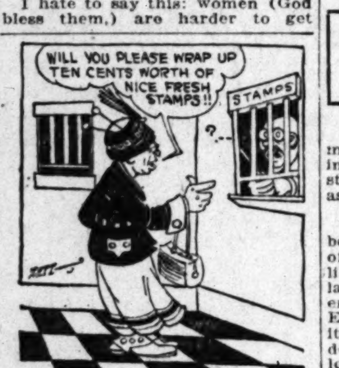
In the same class as these are school-teachers. These folks, for some unexplainable reason, demand special attention. If the windows open at 8, they'll knock on the side door and want service at 7. This seems peculiar when we consider that their hours are so much better than those of most working people. The mechanic who works from dark to dark doesn't expect nearly so much as the teacher who goes to work at 8:30 and is through at 3 or 4 o'clock. But in spite of their faults, we like them.

Doctors are exceptionally backward. In their offices and hospitals they may be the whole show, but in a postoffice they talk in a low voice and are ill at ease.

OH, THE WOMEN

Lawyers are pretty good fellows. Perhaps, they are especially considerate of the postal clerk because they expect us to reciprocate by giving them information concerning train schedules and the mail service. Through the agency of the postoffice they serve summons and notices.

I hate to say this: women (God bless them,) are harder to get along with than the men. These dames have such annoying traits. They stroll up to a window, not knowing just what they are after. It takes them a century to burrow into the innermost recesses of those purses. A good percentage of them make their purchases with pennies.



WILL YOU PLEASE WRAP UP TEN CENTS WORTH OF NICE FRESH STAMPS!!
STAMPS

If for some reason it is necessary for a woman to sign her name, she looks dumbfounded when you tell her about it. That request seems to frighten her. Another long procedure is the pulling off of a glove. She holds the pen that you put into her hand like it was a stick of dynamite. Then piteously, "Where shall I sign? Where shall I sign?"

WANT STAMPS WRAPPED

A postal clerk can nearly always tell how long a woman has been married. If she is a newlywed her signature is "Mrs. John Brown," after a few years of matrimonial cares, it is merely "Mary Brown."

Some of the dear old ladies insist on their stamps being wrapped up. I usually hunt around for a stray piece of wrapping paper; its easier to humor them than to argue.

The young matron with her first-born assumes a role of maternal tenderness that is not altogether sincere. I had one of them call me down once for awaking her child by loud talking.

Another thing that is often amusing as well as tragic is when a woman wants to hold her place in line by addressing a half-dozen letters or more at the window. It takes a lot of persuasion to get her to use the lobby desk and suggestion generally makes her indignant.

HAUGHTY FLAPPERS

Most flappers are all right. It is only when they have spent a year in college, or get a job as a secretary that they get stuck up. The average "secretary" would die of mortification if she were caught carrying a package through the streets. They always have the "men call for them."

And there's the little girl they send off to college. She goes away a nice pleasant little mortal and comes back a cultured snob. Instead of, "Hello, Bill," when she comes to the window, its, "Oh, how do you do?" and she'll brush past the motherly old ladies she's known all her life with not so much as a nod. A year in college works wonders with a girl.

But with a boy it's different. He goes off to university a good-hearted kid; comes back and he's the same old boy. Probably he'll work through a vacation driving a grocery wagon or jerking sodas.

BASHFUL MEXICANS

'ROUND ABOUT LOS ANGELES

Some one with a sense of humor recently chalked out the "i" in the sign of the West First-street firm that announces itself as Art Paints Makers.

A young Angeleno who knows books recently received a trunkful of volumes from his grandfather's library. Included was an immaculate copy of "Tamerlane and Other Poems," by "A Bostonian," i.e., Edgar Allan Poe, which is worth its weight in gold. It was a good deal like having a Western-avenue lot fall from the sky.

Los Angeles of the yesteryear is having a real estate boom all its own. The round-stomached expanse of Crown Hill is now being subdivided, and apartment-houses are crawling their long way over a near-by hill which long produced only a crop of winter grass and bush leaguers. Out Temple-street way, where forty years ago we had one of our first real estate booms, the Los Angeles Railway is double-tracking its car line and business buildings are rising where young America once did the caveman act.

I am adding to my education by diligent attendance at the sidewalk school. Recently in a ramble along San Pedro street I found the place where hods are made. Until then I thought that they descended from generation to generation of those who hold allegiance to "poor, old Ireland." I also found that milking stools are still being made, and that once in a while there is a call for a low-necked hack for use other than in the films. Oh, yes, I also witnessed the legal blowing of a safe that had refused to yield to the cajoleries of a Jimmy Valentine, who this time was within the law.

THE SUPERDOODLE BUG

It Discovers Oil by Standing on Its Head—Even Underneath a City Bank's Foundation

BY SAM SMALL, JR.

And just at this time—what with the holidays, the new year and its problems and promise of prosperity, the tourists, the Wright law, the bandits, the glorious weather, the shooting of husbands, dope and Arbuckle, and new oil gushers coming in almost daily in the Los Angeles fields—the Doodle Bug Man has come to town to add to the excitement.

There probably was never an oil field that amounted to shucks without its doodle-bug man and his doodle bug. To the uninitiated, if there be any, it may be explained that a doodle bug is a contraption that, allowed to have its way upon the surface of the earth, will react to the presence of oil hundreds or thousands of feet below the surface, and thus guide the prospective driller to the exact spot to sink a hole in order that he may reap his reward in liquid gold.

The doodle bug is to oil what the divining-rod is to precious metals or the willow wand to the location of water when a well is to be dug, only much more so in many ways.

THE DOODLE'S INSTINCT

Skeptical about it? Well, it is a coldly scientific age, and boring for oil is a coldly scientific business, with highly trained geologists to trace the formations and the faults, and the logs of wells to guide them every inch of the way down to the oil sands, but nevertheless and notwithstanding, the needle of the compass, though thousands of miles away, points unerringly to the magnetic pole, and so why can't the doodle bug point down a few thousand feet through the crust of the earth to a pool of oil?

And you show me the man, no matter how cold and scientific, upon whose drill site, where he is risking a fortune in boring for oil, the doodle bug has done its stuff in approved fashion, and I will show you a man who will wear a smile and sleep sounder at nights for many days to come while the bit is cutting dirt toward success or failure.

Of course, it is a cold and scientific age, with business men anxious to launch their greatest enterprises on Friday, the 13th, walking under ladders, paying no attention to black cats crossing their paths, and not a single person—no, sir, not one—repeating "Day by Day," etc., twenty times morning and night every day of their lives.

THE LAST DOODLE WORD

But to get back to the doodle-bug man who has just come to town. There are doodle bugs and doodle bugs, but this man came to town with the superdoodle bug—the doodle bug sans reproach—the last word in scientific doodle bugs in performance and reliability.

Every doodle-bug man has his secret. That is the stock in trade of doodle-bug men, and even the identity of this doodle-bug man must remain a secret for the present, or else the whole world would beat a path to his door, once having the faintest idea of the efficiency of his doodle bug.

The superdoodle bug is a good looker, too. Its body is a steel jacket the shape of an acorn, about six inches long, and, according to the doodle-bug man, filled with a radioactive substance. The composition of its interior is the doodle-bug man's great secret. From the head of the doodle bug—the cap of the acorn—project two long widely curving antennae of steel wire turning back toward the body at the tips in a half-circle. That is all there is to the appearance of the superdoodle bug—just an oversized acorn with a pair of long, thin, curving horns. But as to performance—

STARTLED THE BANK

The doodle-bug man came well recommended, with letters to banks, and all that, and a few days ago paid a visit to the cashier of one of the big banks on Spring street to present one of his letters of introduction. The cashier, sitting in his open office space in the great marble lobby, was politely interested in the doodle-bug man

KNOCKING THE "GIFT BOO

Christmas Buyer is Becoming Civilized; Th Ooze Morocco no Longer Called Fo

BY (THE) JAMES BROTHERS

At last an answer to the question that baffled the Sphinx: I want for Christmas? Pursued by the idea that the real the problem of that Christmas present lies in the question of people think I want, I did the obvious—I sought a bookseller other hopes fail the tocsin cry of the harassed is: "Let's book."

"What do other people think I want for Christmas," I asked C. J. Goodman of the Holmes Book Company, just like that, and he didn't muff it, for he started selling books when Santa Claus was a child, and is much wiser in his generation than the children of light, i.e., the book buyers.

"Wells's 'Outline of History,' 'Suzanna,' Gene Stratton-Porter,

WELLS' OUTLINE

THIS "DAY BY DAY" STUFF MIGHT HAVE SOMETHING TO DO WITH IT.

Zane Grey, 'Ramona,' Robert W. Service, Kipling, Masefield, Guest, Coue, and the 'Rubaiyat,' principally the 'Rubaiyat,'" he said all in a breath.

"People want action and they want facts," Mr. Goodman continued. "Wells's 'Outline' has been a big seller right along. I don't know whether you would call Coue's autosuggestion action or facts, but at any rate we sold 150 of his little books in one day and they are going faster now."

WHAT DO I WANT FOR CHRISTMAS?

"How is Longfellow in the red leather?" I asked.

"Oh, we get a few calls for the old padded backs, as well as for Longfellow, but generally speaking, Service, Kipling, Masefield and Guest in plain backs or elaborately illustrated are the Christmas books in the poetry line that we get the calls for. Longfellow and Whittier and the old narrow-gauge line of poets are mostly moribund outside of the classrooms."

"RUBAIYAT" LEADS

I turned to go, but Mr. Goodman had another thought.

"I mentioned the 'Rubaiyat' as the leading Christmas book," he said. "In season or out, Volstead or not, the book that celebrates the jug of wine and the rose garden de luxe is a winner. We have it scene by his overhanded bully tactics. There will be an orderly patient line, but this fellow will be in an awful hurry and make a run to shove some one out of line, or to side up to the window ahead of another. As far as I am concerned this kind of fellow gains nothing by these methods.

SOUTHERNERS USE PENCILS

The opposite of this kind is the person from the South. In a well modulated voice, he says something on this order: "A 2-cent stamp, please, suh." The only thing I have against southerners is that they loathe to use pen and ink in addressing mail. Why is it that so many southerners use pencil only?

And then the cheap-skate. He is always with us. He's the kind who insists your scales are not accurate, or that the cost of mailing one of his brick-heavy parcels is "an outrage." Such a person is mean and ugly; hard to get along with. After fighting over a 2-cent stamp he goes out and steps in a $6000 car.

Of course, we must say something about the big blow who comes in to make a complaint. He bellows until you would think the very walls would crumble with his power. But when you invite him to visit the postmaster he becomes suddenly meek, and begs off on the ground that he hasn't time." It is one thing to call down an $1800-a-year-clerk and another thing altogether to talk to the big boss.

I have seen postmasters come and go. Most of them are all right, but an occasional one gets the swell head to such an extent that nothing but a Presidential election is able to reduce it.

SURE-FIRE JOKE

A sure-fire joke is to call the postmaster, "Mr. Burleson," or "Dr. Work." That always pleases.

I was waiting on an old German once. In trying to talk and get his money out of his purse at the same time, his pipe dropped on the counter and ashes and tobacco went in every direction. "You'd better be careful," I said, "you'll burn yourself up some day." The old man wasn't flustered. "Dot's all right," he said, "I'm insur't."

I've given out thousands of letters at the General Delivery window, but not once has a person who comes for his neighbor's mail as well as his own, asked for his friend's mail first. He always asks for his own; then he requests his neighbors.

It is next to impossible to understand the average young fellow when he gives his name. It sounds something like, "ooh-ooh-ooh." About half of them must have catarrh. Maybe they smoke too much.

We run across a lot of illiterate folks. An old woman from Arkansas told me, "I caint read, and I caint write." And she stood there and laughed until her false teeth crackled. She thought it was a great joke.

PITIFUL DRAMAS

Sometimes it's our hard duty to read a letter to some frail old lady or a trembling old man, telling of the death of a daughter or other relative. Of course, we have a scene on our hands—but it can't be helped. I hate to pass out black bordered letters.

At that general delivery window we see the display of every kind of emotion. Sadness, joy, anger, impatience and worry. Those letters we handle contain queer messages.

Most men tear their letters open immediately, but the women walk away, weighing them in their hands. This is contrary to the general belief that women are the more curious.

An old man once came to the window for a money order. Upon being informed of the necessity of filling out an application, he demurred by stating he was a Republican and so not subject to the general rules. "Besides," he explained, "I've left my specks at home." I wrote the application for him.

HIS OWN DOOR KEY

An absent-minded man once handed in a door key with the statement that he had found it in the lobby. Several hours later he wanted it back, stating that it was his own key after all.

Postal clerks are bothered quite frequently by peddlers of pencils, and the wails of beggars. Canvassers for subscriptions to magazines, sellers of tickets to benefit dances and bazaars hie to the pos as do the agents of all the drives that come along. Where do they get the idea that a postal clerk has money?

Another pest is the borrower of pencils. Most clerks keep a supply of old stubs on hand for such people.

When the door leading to the mailing division is for some reason left open, there is a sudden rush by persons with "very important letters." As if the handing of them to a clerk will in any way change the train schedules!

I have yet to be handed a letter that wasn't "very important."

And all for 2 cents.

ANGEL WAYS

"I can't see why you call her an angel."

"Because she's always hovering

DOODLE BUG IN EXCITEMENT

and his performing doodle bug, but happened to catch sight of the tall military figure of Col. H. S. Howland, and called to him to come over, explaining to the doodle-bug man that here was a man interested in exploring for oil and one who would undoubtedly be interested in the doodle bug.

Col. Howland was interested, so much so that the doodle-bug man thereupon produced his precious doodle bug from its specially built traveling case and balanced it body down with the arc of its horns resting upon the open upturned palms of his hands to explain its reactions.

OIL UNDER BANK

Almost instantly the doodle bug did an amazing thing. It began to turn rapidly upon the axis of the arc of its horns, and the doodle-bug man, as surprised as anybody, watched it intently with bulging eyes. Col. Howland and the bank cashier looked on fascinated.

"Does it do that all the time and what makes it do it?" asked the bank cashier.

The doodle-bug man did not answer. His eyes were riveted on his gyrating doodle bug and his lips moved as a man who is making a supreme effort to keep an accurate tally.

Presently the doodle bug stopped throwing handsprings and settled into a regular pendulum-like swing with the doodle-bug man still intent upon keeping count. Then just as suddenly it came to a dead stop.

The doodle-bug man, pale and perspiring freely from nervous tension, then looked up and solemnly announced that if an oil well were drilled to a depth of 2300 feet on that very spot it would yield a production of 900 barrels a day.

HOW IT DOODLES

With land at that particular spot worth more than $1000 a square foot, with $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 worth of building over his head, and with the bank doing pretty well, thank you, it could not be expected that the bank cashier would grow wildly excited over the presence of unexplored oil and beneath his chair, but it is a comforting thought to the tired banker to know that if all else should fail, he has a piece of oil land to fall back on in a pinch.

The doodle-bug man thereupon explained that the complete revolutions of the doodle bug on the axis of the arc of its horns indicated the depth at which oil would be found, 100 feet for every revolution, and that the pendulum-like swinge of the doodle bug's body indicated the quantity of oil in the pool from which could be gauged the flow of a well.

After leaving the doodle-bug man Col. Howland went into conference with his friends, Arthur Gage, Elwell D. Moore and James A. Farraher, all partners in an oil well now being drilled and fished.

IN THE OIL FIELD

With Farraher at the wheel the party got an early start the next morning. The reactions of the doodle bug had been thoroughly explained to all members of the party, and the doodle-bug man, holding the doodle bug suspended by its horns from the upturned palms of his hands, was given the seat of honor beside the driver that the doodle bug might be transported in comfort and safety.

The first wide open space to be visited was a piece of land that Col. Howland has had his eye on for some time— a likely piece of land but some distance removed from actual production—and Farraher, was driving along at about thirty miles an hour—when all of a sudden the doodle bug did a quick flipflap.

Farraher burned out a brake lining in bringing the car to a quick stop. Like hunters stalking game the members of the party climbed out of the car, and with the doole-bug man leading the Indian file procession, holding his faithful doodle bug before him on extended palms, started back down the road.

THE DOODLE FLOPPED

Sure enough at the same place in the road the doodle bug did another energetic flipflap, and then shimmied and shook, and acted altogether in a strange and incomprehensible manner. The doodle-bug man said it had never acted that way before, and he couldn't quite understand it, but that the one flipflap meant that there was oil there within 100 feet of the surface.

Visions of post-hole wells pouring out great streams of wealth were not hard to conjure up, and the members of the party began to look about them at the lay of the land. Not a derrick in sight! An unexplored and virgin field!

An old-timer, plowing a piece of land on the side of the road, came to the end of a furrow, halted his team and approached the fence, attracted there by the presence of the group in the roadway.

"Ever been any oil wells around here?" asked Farraher.

"Not in my time," replied the farmer.

"How long have you been here?"

"Nigh onto thirty year."

"No oil wells at all?"

A MORTIFYING CIRCUMSTANCE

"No sir; the only thing we've ever had in the way of ile is that twenty-four-inch pipe line buried about three feet under where you're now standing, that feeds that tank farm over onder about two mile."

Pflop!

But there wasn't any blame to be attached to the doodle bug. It had done its part in showing there was oil there, even if it was in a pipe line, and had been right on the job. That was agreed, the doodle bug vindicated, and the trip resumed to the wide spaces lying beyond.

Arrived at the piece of land which was the first objective of the trip, the doodle bug did its stuff in great shape, revolving on its axis like a circus acrobat doing a giant swing on a horizontal bar, and then settling down to its pendulum swing in all parts of the field. Of course, the members of the party, all except the doodle-bug man, smiled indulgently at one another, but nevertheless kept their eye on the performance of the faithful doodle bug, and made mental notes.

PALE AND PERSPIRING

The doodle-bug man, again pale and perspiring, and with his eyes bulging, announced that the property lay over an immense pool of oil.

"If you'll drill right here," pointing to the spot, "you'll get a 6100-barrel well at 4750 feet," he said. "You just try it and see if I'm not right."

Of course there's the little matter of leases and royalty, and maybe $150,000 to sink a hole, but

PRETTY SLICK, EH?

"Arthur proposed to me twice the past week."

"Must have been practicing up for the proposal he made me last night."

such trifles shouldn't be allowed to stand in the way of proving up the character and veracity of a well-meaning doodle bug.

It was then decided that while they were about it, and the doodle bug was in such fine fettle, they would trace the boundaries of the pool underlying the property. This took the party quite far afield and finally right up to a weather beaten derrick—the only one in that vicinity—half smothered in a cloud of steam from the exhaust and swaying under the impulse of pounding and clanking enough to awaken the dead.

OFF THE POOL'S EDGE

A grizzled old foreman watched the approach of the little band through narrowed eyes, and Moore was told off to explain the visit. The old foreman's eyes opened wide and lighted up when Moore had concluded his diplomatic mission, and the doodle-bug man was told he was right welcome and to come right in.

The drill crew, becoming interested, knocked off work to look on with delight at the antics of the doodle bug, and when the proceedings were brought to a close, were all attention when their old foreman asked the doodle-bug man for the verdict.

The doodle-bug man shook his head mournfully. His was a sad task.

"You're just off the edge of the pool," he told the ancient foreman.

"How fur?" demanded the old fellow.

"Not more than six feet, maybe not quite that much," replied the doodle-bug man.

A YELL OF JOY

The grizzled foreman gave a yell of joy, and, turning to his crew, shouted:

"Now, ain't that the best luck you ever heard of?"

"We'll say it is!" chorused the happy crew.

The doodle-bug man bridled. Were these unbelievers flouting the verdict of his faithful doodle bug to his very face? He started in angrily to warn them how they would pay for their folly, when the old foreman, with an upraised hand, arrested his tirade, and said:

"No offense, stranger, but you don't know this hole we're a-drillin' like we do. Why, man, that darn hole is so crooked that I figger she corkscrews over about half an acre of ground, an' if the grease is down there, here or hereabouts, we'll sure hit it sooner or later if we keep on a-pluggin'."

That was fair enough, and seemed to satisfy everybody, but the doodle-bug man wanted to impress upon those present that when the doodle bug came to a dead point, it meant something, and still holding this superdoodle bug suspended by its horns which rested upon the open, upturned palms of his hands, the doodle-bug man invited Col. Howland to try to raise the bug from its point.

COULDN'T LIFT HIM

The thing looked so easy that Col. Howland suspected a hoax, but after he had exerted all his considerable strength without being able to so much as budge the doodle bug, he resigned the job.

Husky young fellows from the drill crew were anxious to try their strength against the doodle bug, but like the famed Georgia Magnet, the frail little woman that could not be lifted from the floor by the strongest men when she so willed it, the doodle bug could not be raised from its point.

"Call Bill," was the cry, and Bill, the young Hercules of the crew—the man who could pull a string of casing with his bare hands when the engine went out of commission—came forward and set himself for the test.

BILL, HE TUGGED

It was plain as soon as Bill set himself that something had to give, and when he gave a final great tug, something did give. One of the horns of the doodle bug snapped square off close to the head, the steel wire parting cleanly, but the doodle bug remained at its point.

"Well, I crippled it, anyway," declared Bill. It was true. The doodle bug had been crippled, and it's adventures for the day were at an end, but it had come gloriously through the tests, and with a new horn will be as good as ever—the greatest doodle bug that ever doodled on an oil field. If further proof is desired it may be obtained from Messrs. Howland, Gage, Moore and Farraher at their offices in the Pacific Mutual Building.

IMPORTANT NOTICE—Peter B. Kyne, the justly celebrated story writer and novelist, will soon weave the facts in the above exactly truthful and unvarnished narrative into a wonderful romance of the great open spaces of Southern California under one of his alluringly alliterative titles, "The Doodle Bug of Delomar," and picky and choosy authors and scenario snatchers are hereby solemnly warned to lay off'n it.

LINCOLN ON PROHIBITION

One of the hundred contacts of Lincoln's day as narrated in "Lincoln's Last Day," by J. W. Starr, Jr., was with Maj. Merwin, who lunched with him. Lincoln said to the major, "Merwin, we have cleared up a colossal job. Slavery is abolished. After reconstruction the next question will be the overthrow and suppression of the legalized liquor traffic, and you know my head and heart, my hand and my purse will go into this contest for victory. In 1842, less than a quarter of a century ago, I predicted that the day would come when there would be neither a slave nor a drunkard in the land. I have lived to see one prediction fulfilled. I hope to live to see the other realized."

This struck Merwin as so important a statement that he said: "Mr. Lincoln, shall I publish this from you?"

"Yes, publish it as wide as the

GYPSY FETE AT EDGE OF CITY

seemed a pow-wow, justice was evidently reached.

One old gypsy man described to me his system of health which might be an improvement on Dr. Coue's. To use his own words: "Get up in the morning—call on the good God. Wash the face—call on the good God. Eat the meal—call on the good God."

So on through the day, crossing himself at every repetition, and when night falls, "Call on the good God—go to bed—sleep like a millionaire." . . .

Chief Dewey, the richest gypsy in the United States, rules with a large-minded fairness; closing his eyes when his people cross themselves in the Greek church fashion, fasten charms on the new-born infants and tell the fortunes of the credulous rich.

No wonder he winks at this source of income for it is tremendous. The women are adepts at it and they hold one up so charmingly, that it is almost worth it.

FORTUNE TELLERS

After a few lessons I thought myself safe. One morning a new gypsy begged to tell my fortune and I told her she could tell me fifty cents worth.

"That all right, sister, cross your palm with it."

Unfortunately I could only produce a dollar and she made up her mind to have it all.

"I tell one palm fifty cents. I tell both hands for dollar."

"No, one is enough for me this morning," I said. "All right, sister. You come from good people—you have good fadder—good mudder—you look happy—you have trouble at the heart—you lika da good time with da good people—you no lika da good time with da bad people—you geta da letter sixteen this month. You taka da trip next month. Tuesdays and Fridays your lucky days for business—you have two enemies, one dark woman—one light woman. I tell you names for fifty cents—fifty cents no maka you poor—no maka you rich." I surrendered.

ALL BUNK

"One name—Mary."

"I don't know any Mary."

"No! no! you don't know her," she came back like a flash. "She lives in—in—Frisco. The other one Guido." Then instantly realizing the foreign name was a break, she looked more closely at my palm and said, "No it is Rosie."

Surrounded by the chief and his counselors one day at the Temple, I said, "Now, tell me the truth about this fortune-telling business—this palm-reading. What is there in it?"

Chief Dewey smiled and looked at the others; then replied, "You are sister McPherson's friend. We tell you the truth. There is nothing in it.

With a wave of the arm, another swarthy gypsy spoke up, "Fortunes, they are only stories—like—like—what you say—fairy tales."

THEIR HOME LIFE

These women fortune tellers, who, of course, can neither read nor write, are naturally as ignorant in the care of their children as were their ancestors.

Perhaps I can best paint the picture by describing the home life of one family who are now my close friends.

There is the picturesque father, the matronly mother with her gold coin ear-rings, the eldest daughter with the dazzling white teeth and dark eyes, the hosts of children and the old old grandmother. She has wandered over the world for a hundred and ten years and knows not where she was born. She sits in the sun smoking her long pipe and crooning over the tiniest baby.

Their tent open to the sunshine in the day time, is piled high at the back with goose-feather mattresses and gay-colored bags of clothing. Its only furniture is a small stove and a worn rug on the floor.

BABIES THICK AND FAST

The babies come thick and fast and the mother still in the thirties, looks middle-aged but not with care. She loves her children but takes them very lightly; all save the infant, which she carefully wraps in swaddling clothes, with its arms and legs tightly strapped down in true biblical fashion. This she does until the child is 7 months old to make it straight and strong and to prevent its bones from being broken. When Gilda, the oldest daughter, tossed the sleeping infant, just as one would a bundle, into a corner, the precaution seemed a wise one.

The rules of the camp require everyone to eat at his own tent in the morning, but for the remainder of the day hospitality reigns.

The women and children eat in separate groups, and after the men were seated around a kettle at noon, Gilda came for me to join the women.

SMEARY HOSPITALITY

We sat on the ground around two large dishes, one containing a stew of meat and potatoes, the other a salad. When they found me timid about dipping in with fingers, they eagerly chose choice bits of tomatoes, and after carefully smearing them around the dish offered them with fingers dripping with oil, but with such graceful hospitality that only a hard heart could have refused.

And so in Los Angeles today, as all over the world, these people are living the same lives, speaking the same language, plying the same trades, as did the race when its tribes first scattered over Europe in the dark ages.

They have been fortune tellers, coppersmiths and traders for centuries. But now they trade automobiles instead of horses; that is the only difference.

The thing that thrills me to the soul about these people is the way they have kept out of the melting-pot of the world. A free race, they live everywhere but never allow themselves to be swallowed up.

Legends have it that they left "Litill Egypt" on a pilgrimage of expiation for a great sin. They had failed to show mercy to Mary and Joseph when they fled into Egypt with the Christ child.

Satisfied to live in tents, they wander light-heartedly over the world, carelessly accepting the religion of every country, but never permitting themselves to be drawn into the intricacies of civilization; always a law unto themselves, settling their loves and their hates in their own way.

MEDIEVAL EUROPE

"Europe in the Middle Ages," by Jernle L. Plunket, is announced by the Oxford University Press, American Branch. The author's object has been not so much to supply students with facts as to make medieval Euprope live—in the lives of heroes and villains, the tenden-a buggy, small, rickety spiderlike, hitched to a fat, lazy horse.

CARBURETORS AND IGNITION

Ambrosio, the ancient fire-eater of his tribe, discusses carburetors and ignition—words without equivalent in the language known to the powerful spirits, Mukat and Tamaloit.

Perhaps the nerve strain of speeding gave him trachoma, a disease for which the guardian spirits have revealed no curative herb.

When word went through the reservation Ambrosio might die, eyes turned appealingly to Ruckie, for the tribe knew that Ambrosio wanted Ruckie to succeed him. Ruckie is his nephew. He is 20, stalwart, strong and in his eyes there is fervor.

Then Ruckie received the call of his guardian spirit as Ambrosio had done so long ago, to eat fire, to intercede with the spirits. At least Ruckie thought it was the call.

BURNED RUCKIE'S MOUTH

Maybe it was a devil whispering in Ruckie's ear that he could eat fire as he had seen Ambrosio eat it many times. Anyhow, Ruckie took the dare.

He would try anything once, even fire-eating.

But he won't try fire-eating again. Despite the pomp and ceremony of the squaw chant, Ruckie's maiden effort burnt his lips and tongue and he didn't taste food for days.

Some will say Ruckie's song "didn't go right," or there was a disturbing influence present. Long ago a medicine man heard the enemy white men were coming to Coachella Valley, and exercising his super power he made the weather so hot they didn't come. But since, despite the heat, despite the medicine men and the power of Mukat, white men are rapidly converting the sandy stretches of this ancient home of the Indian into vineyards and date gardens. Here, maybe, is the disturbing influence that displeases the spirits.

Alas, contact with modernity has touched Ruckie with a wand of forgetfulness of the inspiration of his tribe, has touched his ears to deafness for the voice of his guardian spirit.

"COULDN'T MAKE THE GRADE"

"I couldn't make the grade," says Ruckie, ultra modernist.

Ruckie tried to be medicine man, too, and failed. Has he heard too much of modern trachoma and modern hospitals and modern operations; has modernity broken the spell of simple faith and stood in the way of Ruckie's receiving from Mukat the marvelous power that has descended on his tribe, generation after generation?

Ruckie lives in a new era. He lives in the day of radio, years and years and years from the beacon fire days when Ambrosio qualified as fire-eater and medicine man.

And Ruckie will not try again.

WHO'S A CANDIDATE

So, who will be fire-eater after Ambrosio?

Will there again be a fire-eater and medicine man for the desert Cahuillas of Coachella Valley?

And what of the spirits? How will they be apepased now? Must they be forced to flee from these people they have guided so long, back among the purple shadows of the Coachella Valley Mountains, up onto snow-capped San Jacinto, away into the amethyst and flame of those inimitable desert sunsets?

And the Indians? Unguided by fire-eater, unaided by medicine man, unguarded by spirits, will they turn their backs on the sacred primitive beliefs and go forward with modernity, in the march of Ford cars and trachoma?

NEW NOVEL BY MAY SINCLAIR

come back to his old home on leave, eager to see her again.

His hasty marriage to Maisie follows. But even then Anne remains true to him, true to the task before her. Then comes Jerrold's awakening, the disillusionment of his marriage to the lovely girl who loved him but whom he thought cold and weak.

How Anne became involved with Jerrold before she had met Maisie, and how these three, all temperamental, all determined to do the right thing, and all thwarted at every turn, work out the peculiar triangular situation, is the crux of the story.

It is, of course, with Miss Sinclair, not the deed but the deed's effect on the individual, not the outer action but the inner drama, that is the thing of importance.

One may find the book, if he is so constituted, very questionable in point of view as regards conventional morality, with too frank a lifting of the curtain on certain scenes and with a solution not at all to his liking. Another reading deeper may find in it only the highest standards, the truest morality, the right and courageous way of meeting life.

The picture of the manor house, Wyck-on-the Hill, with its green terraces and wide, flat-topped yew walls, with the beech avenue leading to it, is one that lingers, only less clear than the characters, each so highly individualized, each done with such simplicity and restraint. While Anne is a dear not soon to be forgotten, it is in Aunt Adeline, the sensuous, self-centered feline beauty that Miss Sinclair has done her best work.

A RADIO PROPHET

W. A. Rogers, dean of American cartoonists and author of "A World Worth While" (Harper's,) made an interesting property to a radio public last week from Newark, N. J. Mr. Rogers had never written a book before "A World Worth While," and the critics are all agreed that he made an extremely good job of it. The same was true of his radio debut. However, Mr. Rogers prefers to say it with cartoons, which fact probably prompted him to conclude has radio speech as follows: "I remarked when I began this little talk that I was speaking into a tin cup. Now let me assume the privilege of a man who has made his living by selling his imagination for many years, and make a prediction . . . . Within two years I believe that I will sit in a broadcasting radio station with a drawing board before me and that you in your homes with a receiver on your eyes instead of your ears will son to expect in view of the fact that the events treated are seen in such a close perspective. The work, on the whole, as all true history should be, is free from bias. It is close-packed with source material and no historian of the future will attempt a more complete and seasoned history of the war without frequently consulting Mr. Buchan's splendidly conceived and admirably executed work.

The chapter devoted to the Gallipoli campaign, which the author describes as "the most tragic chapter of the British chronicle," is, in spite of its disastrous ending, one of the most interesting and romantic pieces of historical narrative that the reviewer has meet with in recent literature.

Not the least valuable part of the work is the author's evaluation of the great leaders, political and military, who directed the conduct of the war in office and in the field. In his picture of William II he says:

"He loved the pageantry of war, but had no knowledge of its practical meaning, and rattled his saber as a rhetorical gesture. As a statesman he was without aptitude or judgment, and yet with him lay the last word in his country's statecraft."

Describing Gen. Joffre, who commanded the French armies in the early stages of the war, he has this comment:

"Joffre, at his headquarters in Champagne, awoke on the morning of Monday, the 24th (Aug., 1914,) to confront a falling world. The battles of the frontier had one and all ignominiously failed, his three offensives had been met and broken, and the main armies of France hurled back within their borders. . . . He had to face the tragic fact that this first round had been won by the enemy, not by superior numbers, but by superior skill. Moreover, the fighting had shown the French inferior in many important details—the use of airplanes, heavy artillery and wired entrenchments—all matters vital to a war of defense . . ." He continues: "That day, the 24th, Joffree issued his 'Note to all the armies,' and the following evening his famous 'General Instructions, No. 2.' Presently there followed a degringolade of general officers, thirty-three army, corps and divisional commanders being removed. In this holocaust the innocent suffered with the guilty—the far-sighted and competent Lanrezac equally with some creature of lobby intrigue. With incomparable courage and patience and with the mental elasticity of his race, Joffre faced the crisis, jettisoned his cherished preconceptions and prepared a new plan on the grim facts now at last made plain.

But when he comes to deal with the intrigue and milling that took place in the field, the jealousy and bickering among the commanders, he spares no one. Not that there is animus in this account, there is not. It is a clear and definite statement of the facts as he sees them.

No review short of covering several columns could begin to do justice to this work. It is, excepting as has been stated, comprehensive and illuminating. The style is flowing and colorful. The arrangement is simple and logical and though the subject ranges wide over three-quarters of the globe, no intelligent reader can lay this book down without having a clear and definite conception of the world's greatest and most disastrous military undertaking.

was born the idea of the Bagdad-Bahn."

Charles Lane Poor, author of "Gravitation versus Relativity," is head of the department of celestial mechanics at Columbia University. His book, written in readable style for the layman, is an examination of Einstein's theory of relativity.

In discussing tne novel of tomorrow William Allen White has this to say:

"The novel is for the day, as the newspaper or the skyscraper or the park monument is. It finds its market in spite of our rules of art. Each novel circulates upon its own level. Its public knows it instinctively. It is all vanity of vanities and vexation of spirit, this price-making for posterity, this attempt to say what is good and what bad with the miserable rules and standards which we are setting up today."

London has only just discovered Florence Irwin and evidently the English will use her book, "The Complete Auction Player," already well-thumbed here, for purely commercial purposes. "London Opinion" points out the sad fact that "people will persist in calling no trumps on two kings and a hope," but sees financial possibilities and the dawn of a new day in Miss Irwin's sprightly and authoritative work. "The average purchaser, who studies it," says its reviewer confidently, "should get back the purchase price a hundredfold."

Henry James Forman, whose new novel, "The Man Who Lived in a Shoe," is now in its fourth printing, has been invited by Newnes, the English publishing house, to contribute the section on modern American literature to their forthcoming work, "The Outline of Literature."

The title of Katharine Fullerton Gerould's new volume of stories, "Valiant Dust," recently published by Charles Scribner's Sons, is drawn from "Much Ado About Nothing," Act II, Scene 1. The lines are spoken by Beatrice:

"Not till God makes men of some other metal than earth. Would it not grieve a woman to be overmastered with a piece of valiant dust? to make an account of her life to a clod of wayward marl? No, uncle, I'll none; Adam's sons are my brethren; and truly, I hold it a sin to match in my kindred."

MOON MARKETING

Let's go to market in the moon,
And buy some dreams together.
Slip on your little silver shoon,
And don your cap and feather;
No need of petticoat or stocking—
No one up there will think it shocking.
Across the dew
Just I and you,
With all the world behind us;
Away from rules
Away from fools,
Where noboby can find us.

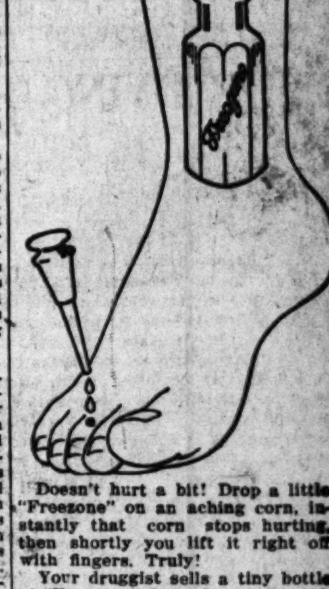
Corns

Lift Off with Fingers



Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.—[Advertisement.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of this hamburg tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacupful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—[Advertisement.

Kills Catarrh Germs

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of French scientist. This drugless method kills the germs. In three minutes your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night. It costs absolutely nothing to prove this in your own home. Simply send name and this wonderful Germicide will be sent postpaid. If it does not do the work to your entire satisfaction, you owe nothing. Don't pay the Postman a cent. Use it freely and if satisfied, you may remit the small cost of powders and mailing; but if not satisfied, just return remainder of package and you owe nothing.

Surely you should send name today, as 25,000 others have done, and get immediate relief. A

OF ART AND ARTISTS

BY ANTONY ANDERSON

Lochanilaun

This is the image of my last content;
My soul shall be a little lonely lake,
So hidden that no shadow of man may break
The folding of its mountain battlement;
Only the beautiful and innocent
Whiteness of sea-born cloud drooping to shake
Cool rain upon the reed-beds, or the wake
Of churned cloud in a howling wind's descent.

For there shall be no terror in the night
When stars that I have loved are born in me,
And cloudy darkness I will hold most fair;
But this shall be the end of my delight:
That you, my lonely one, may stoop and see
Your image in the mirrored beauty there.

Krasnow and Two Points of View

One of the interesting exhibitions of the year is that of about seventy-five small sketches and twenty-five larger canvases that Peter Krasnow, a young painter of original gifts, is holding at the MacDowell Club, Tajo Building. This exhibit gives promise of much discussion, pro and con, for we may say of it, I suppose, that it is one of ultra-modern tendencies.

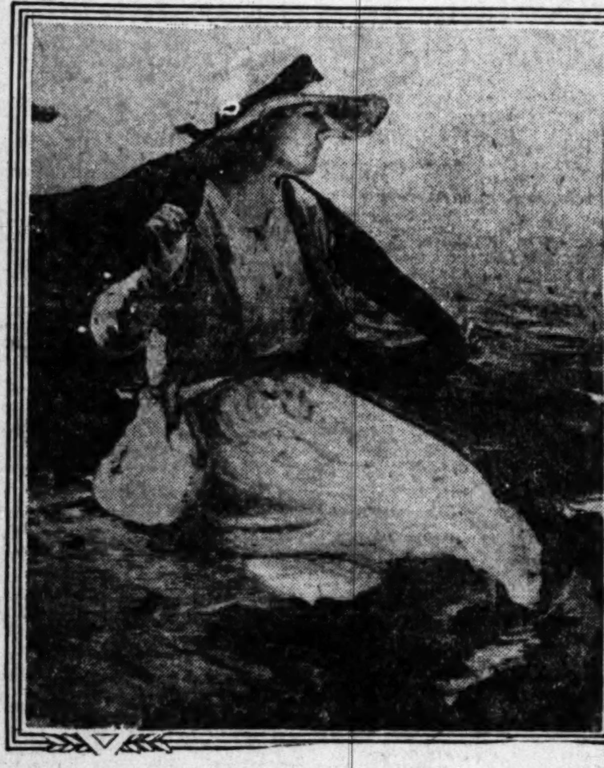
Krasnow came from Europe to America at an early age, and studied art in the Art Institute of Chicago, where, no doubt, he was as conservative as the other students—but where he learned to draw exceedingly well, which is what all students go to art schools for, and, of course, for nothing else. You can't "teach" any one to become an artist.

The pictures at the MacDowell Club, though they cover a brief period of only three years, show three marked stages in the young artist's development. A delightful colorist from the very first, he devotes more and more attention to pure and significant form. His sense of esthetics, for the beauty of design, is very great, and not a few of his later pictures could be transformed, exactly as they now stand, into designs in stained glass.

I suggested this to him, but with no great hope that he will ever work out the suggestion—at least, not until he has exhausted all the resources of oil pigment, whose manipulation gives him so much delight. His aim is ever toward fuller self-expression in this, his chosen medium. Though a modernist in the widest sense of the word, he declares that he thoroughly believes in the essentials of art as practiced by the old masters and tries to reconcile it with the spirit of today. He does not attempt to imitate any school or form, post-impressionism, cubism, futurism, what-not, though of course he expresses his ideas in modern terms. His method—if he has a method—is entirely his own, or as nearly his own as any method can be.

In spite of his own theory—the theory that his later forms are "abstract"—they seem concrete enough to me, unless he means that when he paints abstract forms he eliminates all nonessentials. His forms are three-dimensional, simple, static as a piece of sculpture. At any rate, this is true of his later work, and in some measure it is true of all his work for the past three years. What he practiced before that time I cannot say, not having the data, but in all probability his bent toward the esthetic point of view, toward form for its own sake, was early displayed.

His studies of the Ghetto in New York are remarkably beautiful records, impressive in form, radiant in color. I call them records as well as pictures, for undoubtedly when the Ghetto passes and changes with the shifting of civilization's kaleidoscope, they will remain as one of its most fascinatingly variegated "slides." They will have value outside their worth as pictures, though their esthetic value is great. Hunt them out in the present exhibition—judge for yourselves. Study them carefully. Their beauty will grow upon you, until you will be overwhelmed with the significance of the modern movement in art, which is, after all, only the old movement, the search of the masters for form that has meaning in plastic and visual art.



"Passing Ships," by Jean Mannheim

Instead of going over a number of these pictures in descriptive detail—I may do so next week—I am going to quote, today, the opinions of two "experts" on modern art, the first a scientist, the other an art critic. They show us two radically different points of view and I leave it for you to decide which viewpoint is the more satisfactory. The eye of the scientist and the eye of the critic may not be focalized on exactly the same spot, but at least they are turned on the same group of objects.

It has alwas been a matter of difficulty for a scientist to "see" art. He has never had much use for the "vision and the dream." On the other hand, the artist lives in a land of esthetic emotion, an ecstasy to which he essays to give visible expression, and it has ever been the mission or business of the critic to interpret, however feebly, the aims of the artist to a nonesthetic world.

Which of these two estimates of "modernism in art" shall we accept as perhaps being nearer to the truth? The answer depends absolutely on whether we love science more or art less. The scientist is Stewart Paton M. D., and I quote from his book, "Signs of Sanity." The critic is Clive Bell, whose book bears the simple legend, "Art."

"Without understanding their own motives," writes Dr. Paton, "these ultra-modernists seem to be intent on proving that 'savages are a sort of contemporary ancestry.' The ultra-moderns are really preprimitives. This is brought out if we compare the idols and images of savage races with the compositions of the futurist school of sculptors or painters. That the artist who produces these creations is often natural and sincere does not alter this fact; 'the dark subcellar abode at once of simplicities and deformities, exists in the best of us.'

"The futurist art expresses, not intellectual superiority, but very primitive emotion, and illustrates a reversion to ideas and ideals of the stone age. It is not what its devotees claim for it, the product of conscious idealization of the creative spirit. The futurist like a good many other people who are trying to find some compensation for defects in their personality, instead of being an interpreter of new sensations and emotions, is expressing those that were more characteristic of man during the early periods of his history than they are of human beings today.

"The literary, as well as musical moderns, in their unsuccessful efforts to find new and startling lines of expression, have practically only succeeded in recalling some forgotten memories of very primitive ancestors. The furturists practically depend for their inspiration upon the revival of subconscious mental activities that extend far back in the history of the race, and they surrender unconsciously to the primitive visions and emotions of an almost forgotten past.

"Their philosophy of art is based almost entirely, upon illusion and fallacy; for, instead of listening to reason, they have simply succeeded in giving expression to very primitive tendencies that have been successfully inhibited by the real intellectuals who have contributed to the progress of civilization."

This from Mr. Bell, only a few paragraphs in a remarkably interesting and illuminating book:

"Like all sound resolutions, post-impressionism is nothing more than a return to first principles. Into a world where the painter was expected to be either a photographer or an acrobat burst the post-impressionist, claiming that, above all things, he should be an artist. Never mind, said he, about representation or accomplishment—mind about creating significant form, mind about art.

"Creating a work of art is so tremendous a business that it leaves no leisure for catching a likeness or displaying address. Every sacrifice made to representation is something stolen from art. Far from being the insolent kind of revolution it is vulgarly supposed to be, post-impressionism is, in fact, a return, not indeed to any particular tradition of painting, but to the great tradition of visual art. It sets before every artist the ideal set before themselves by the primitives, an ideal which, since the twelfth century, has been cherished only by exceptional men of genius.

"Post-impressionism is nothing but the reassertion of the first commandent of art—Thou shalt create form. By this assertion it shakes hands across the ages with the Byzantine primitives and with every vital movement that has struggled into existence since the arts began.

"Post-impressionism is not a matter of technique. Certainly which has been adopted and elaborated, more or less, by the majority of his followers. The important thing about a picture, however, is not how it is painted, but whether it provokes aesthetic emotion. As I have said, essentially, a good post-impressionist picture resembles all other good works of art, and only differs from some, superficially, by a conscious and deliberate rejection of those technical and sentimental irrelevancies that have been imposed on painting by a bad tradition."

Again I ask my intelligent readers to go and study Peter Krasnow's exhibition at the MacDowell Club, which is in the Tajo Building. I promise them an unusually good time.

Counterfeit Presentments — XXIV

Over Pasadena way there lives a painter, a Native Son, who is honored by his fellow-citizens each New Year's Day in a most appropriate manner.

So few communities really know how to pay tribute to their artists that Pasadena deserves credit for the pretty little innovation. Each New Year's Day they gather billions of posies and strew them along the path this Native Son will tread the coming year.

This stupendous, spectacular, gigantic, elaborate and artistic tournament each New Year's Day in his name should serve as an incentive to other communities. (Friends of American art please take notice) on how to treat their favorite artists.

It's a wonderful thing to be a Native Son of California.

It's a wonderful thing to be an artist.

The combination of the two is an achievement worthy of all the traffic blocking it occasions.

Next time I am cast in the role of an artist I'm going to see to it that I am born in California.

As the recipient of this overwhelming adulation, his modesty is amazing. But after all, if your fellow-citizens do your boasting for you, and your neighboring city calls you on advisory committees, and your club bids you serve on art juries, and the newspapers quote you and reproduce your paintings every other Sunday, and the art dealers run after you, and the exhibitors invite you, and patrons buy you, it's a trifling matter to be becomingly modest.

Only recently I bought and read a book about this follow-painter and his works. It was gratifying to think that any one had shown the good judgment to publish a book about one of us while we yet lived among you.

This fortunate son of California is no wayward child. His delineations of his native hills and plains, the sea and sky that embrace them, are as full of love and tenderness as a most exacting parent could hope, and every mother's son who loves her feels such a thrill of pride, that even we adopted children, who stand to one side and join in the chorus of "We love you, Californian," do so with no spark of envy—we put real feeling into our part of the song. We realize Californians can't help boosting their own crop.

And he? Well, all the honors that Paris heaped upon him couldn't keep him long away from his own. No doubt about its being a perfect affinity.

Vive le Californian!

Finger-Print Evidence

A painting of "St. John," by Leonardo da Vinci, in obscurity and unknown to the art world for over 400 years, was recently discovered in the art collection of George T. Pearsons, president of the Fire Fighting Devices Company of 70 Fifth avenue, New York City. The discovery was made by Arthur R. Sowaal, noted finger-print expert and criminologist of New York City, during his investigation for finger-print evidence appearing on various paintings in Mr. Pearsons's collection. Mr. Sowaal in examining the painting of "St. John" discovered certain finger prints embedded in the paint itself which immediately attracted his attention on account of its peculiarity as to ridge formation and a scarred area appearing therein.

The finger prints discovered were those known to the finger-print profession as the plain arch type, with the mold of a scar appearing therein making an impression similar to an elongated figure eight or two circles. This finger-print evidence Mr. Sowaal found to be the same that he discovered appearing on the paintings, "Mona Lisa," "Madonna" and "Child With St. Anne," in the Louvre, Paris, and the "St. Jerome" in the Vatican, Rome, all of which were painted by Leonardo da Vinci, thus establishing on an unassailable scientific basis that this "St. John" painting of Mr. Pearsons is a Leonardo da Vinci. Finger-print evidence cannot be questioned, for it sends criminals to the penitentiary and murderers to the chair and gallows.

It is a well-known fact that Leonardo da Vinci, who was a sculptor as well as a painter, used his sculptoring technique in his paintings and used his thumb on the wet paint to attain certain effects, and thus left his thumb print on all of his paintings.

As long as this particular painting remains, just so long will the characteristic scar and the molding technique which the artist made with his right thumb remain in the painting. The right thumb left the impressoins. In each convolution he left contours of lines. In some of the convolutions he left the impressions. In each con- of his thumb with the scar as positive evidence, both in the chiroscuro and in the high lights.

The peculiar scar of the finger print, showing on all the various paintings enumerated above, was calibrated by Mr. Pearsons with delicate instruments. All the finger prints check up with each other with such a degree of accuracy as to prove that the same hand executed all the paintings enumerated.

This scar on the finger print is defined as an elongated figure eight or a double circle. The scar may have been a permanent one—that is to say, the ducts may have been destroyed. In that event the ridges would never regain their former appearance—in fact, they also would be destroyed.

It is a matter of record that in 1510 Moelli, a contemporary of Leonardo da Vinci, pointed out to a group of friends the finger print of Da Vinci appearing on a painting in his studio showing that even at that time Da Vinci's characteristic finger print was recognized.

Sir Charles Holmes, curator of the National Gallery, London, has had illustrated in the Burlington Magazine the finger-print evidence found on the painting, "Virgin of the Rocks," in the National Gallery, London, which was compared and found to be identical with finger-print evidence appearing on Leonardo Da Vinci's known works in the Louvre, Paris, and which are identical with the finger-print evidence Mr. Sowaal found appearing on the St. John painting.

Group of Independents

The newly formed Group of Independents will hold their first show at the MacDowell Club through the month of February. George H. Fisher is president of the group; Desmond V. Rushton, secretary; Sophia Lerner Fisher, treasurer. Others among the organizers are Boris Deutsch, Max Reno, Ben Berlin and Mot Nat. Communications should be addressed to the secretary, at 631 Bryson Building.

The "manifesto" of the Group of Independents has recently been spread broadcast, and part of its contents is as follows:

"To all workers in the graphic arts who rebel against the rule of thumb in art! . . . has been organized to bring together experimental and creative artists, and, by holding frequent exhibitions of their work, afford opportunity to the public to follow the progress made in the field of artistic research . . . The group maintains that artistic manifestations, such as Cubism, Dynamism and Expressionism, are sincere intellectual efforts to obtain a clearer aesthetic vision . . . The apparent preference, in the past, for dead form, is not so much a preference arising from free selection as a habit due to the fact that any new work of an evolutionary charactor has been refused to exhibitions and thereby withheld from the public view . . . The public will at last have an opportunity to comprehend the New Form, and an incentive will thus be provided for a more fluent [illegible] part of the artist."

Store and Office

ADVERTISING MANAGER AND SALES MANAGER.

When one gives has qualifications in a "Want ad" he usually is either too egotistical or else insane. I sincerely don't wish to be the one nor the other. So much for the introduction. What I am seeking is a regular job with a regular concern at a salary my record and experience warrants, either for all or part of my time. In this advertisement I want to interest a manufacturer with sales and promotion problems; the maker of a food product with advertising and distribution complexes; or a large department store. I have "put over" products from inception of idea through various stages of securing local and outside distribution and know exactly the chronological order in which each step should be taken. Have been years with large manufacturers and wholesalers; was nine years advertising manager of large eastern department store; fully understand catalogue and mail order work; also merchandising; have lived in Los Angeles two years and can give real references as to ability and integrity from local concerns and advertising agencies. Formerly was advertising manager of Chicago Journal, associate editor System Magazine, etc.; know the technical end of advertising thoroughly; am 36 years old, college man, married, own my home and have saved some money; if you need a man of initiative, experience, expert knowledge of his work, loyalty, pep and enthusiasm; my record recommends me. Address C. A. TARBEL, 730 S. Gramercy Place, or Phone 567281.

IS THERE a sales manager who can use as his assistant a young man with experience in sales promotion and advertising field, specializing in sales letters and following up salesmen's calls? Can show specimens of work and furnish best references. Address E, box 380, TIMES BRANCH.
